COURT ORDERS
LOBBY KEPT CLEAR
FOR BABY HEARING

Judge Becker and Associates Act to Prevent Repetition of Demonstrations by Spectators.

MRS. MUENCH BARRED FROM COURTROOM

Anna Ware's Case About Complete—Respondents Will Have Opportunity to Present Theirs.

As the result of demonstrations in the lobby of the St. Louis Court of Appeals by spectators gathered there at previous sessions of the Anna Ware habeas corpus hearing, no persons will be allowed to gather there at future sessions of the case, Judge William Dee Becker, presiding in the case, announced from the bench this morning.

The demonstrations reached their highest point yesterday when about 200 spectators in the lobby gave what amounted to an ovation to Anna Ware, cheering and hand-clapping. Judge Becker later came out on the balcony above the lobby and ordered them not to make any further demonstration, threatening punishment for contempt of court if his orders were not obeyed.

As a result, Mrs. Nellie Minton Musser made her way to the elevator with her police escort without any demonstration. Earlier in the day, however, some of about 125 persons on the first floor of the Court Building had been and heard her, and on other days the crowd in the twelfth-floor lobby had shown hostility toward her.

The Court's Order. Judge Becker issued the court's order this morning after the court had taken the bench for the transaction of routine business, no proceedings being scheduled in the Ware case until 10 a. m. tomorrow. He said:

"Mindful of our duty to those who have matters on hearing in this court, to afford them protection and assure their safe arrival and departure in attendance upon the Court's session, the court, in light of the unusually large numbers who gather in the foyer of the twelfth floor of this building on days when hearings are had in the Ware vs. Muench case, and the threatening attitude of a few of those so in attendance displayed against some of the parties hereto, now orders that no person shall be allowed to gather in said foyer at future sessions of said case, after the few available seats open to the public in the courtroom are taken."

Only about 15 seats are available to the public in the Court of Appeals room. The remainder are taken up by persons authorized to be in attendance upon the case. This morning about 30 chairs were placed in the foyer primarily for the accommodation of witnesses, but latterly used by spectators, were removed.

Mrs. Muench Barred. Mrs. Muench is barred from the courtroom during future proceedings of the court in the Anna Ware habeas corpus suit because of her stormy demonstration before the entire court yesterday. Judge Becker told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the meaning of his order yesterday to the Muench case was that the court would not take the case into consideration if Mrs. Muench will be kept out of the courtroom during the proceedings, as I have already indicated.

The order was made after Mrs. Muench, screaming and berating the court, had been ejected following an order that the baby boy she had brought to Court be taken for custody "as evidence" in the case, and placed in St. Louis Children's Hospital.

By her actions she was in contempt of court, but the Court did not take recourse to imposition of a fine or commitment to jail, as was within its power.

Ex-Mayor Walker Home,
Greeted by Band and Crowds

Boats Bearing Welcoming Flag Meet His Ship in New York Harbor—"My Day Is Done," He Says.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York City, who left the country for his health three years ago at the close of the Seabury investigation of Tammany control of the City Hall, returned home today.

Though he resigned under a cloud and remained out of the country, at first in France and then in England, until things quieted down, he returned more or less as the popular idol he once was. During his absence he was sued for various large debts, and his wife divorced him and he married Betty Compton, actress; but the litigation was finally settled and at length there appeared to be no reason for not coming home.

"It's marvelous," Walker said, as he stood on the bridge of the liner Manhattan with his second wife at his side.

About the liner circled a squadron of welcoming craft, whistling salutes. From their masts fluttered banners, reading: "Welcome home, Jimmie," and "Hello, Jimmie."

"I am just Mr. Walker now," I have made no political arrangements—I have not been asked. I don't come back with the idea of doing anything.

A crowd estimated by police at a thousand had gathered at the pier on the Hudson River. About 4000 persons held passes admitting them to a better view of the homecoming.

A shipment of old clothes baskets, however, piled high on the pier, effectively shut off any view of the pier.

Walker amplified his statement that he was through with a political life. "I've had my day and that day is done," he said. "All I want now is two seats on the aisle, and time to do a lot of listening and looking to catch up."

John F. Curran, leader of Tammany Hall during Walker's term, was the first to board the liner to greet the ex-Mayor.

Ticker-tape and papers fluttered down from the office buildings facing the waterfront.

Sound trucks blared the streets about the Manhattan pier shouting words of greeting and bearing banners of welcome.

The crowd cheered and the band struck up "The Sidewalks of New York" when Walker appeared on the after promenade deck of the liner as it was warped into the pier.

ROOSEVELT SAYS
HIS JOB PROGRAM

Blames Private Business for Failure of Re-Employment Scheme to Work Out as Planned.

STILL SEEKING FOR SOLUTION
Asserts Payrolls Have Not Kept Pace With Production—Hard to Figure Number of Jobless.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Roosevelt unemployment relief formula has failed to work out as planned and the President puts the blame on private industry, in which employment and payrolls have not kept pace with production.

The formula advanced by the President last spring, when he explained how he expected to spend the $4,800,000,000 work relief appropriation, was based on estimate of at least 10,000,000 unemployed workers in the country. At that time the President said that the Government would put up funds for the hiring of 3,500,000 persons to work on Federal and local Government projects. The employment of these men through Government funds, he predicted, would result in the hiring of another 3,500,000 workers by private industry.

The remaining unemployed workers, mostly unemployables, would have to look to state and local agencies for permanent relief, according to the President.

Searching for a Solution. At his press conference yesterday afternoon, the President was asked how this formula was working out under actual conditions. He avoided a direct answer by saying that the Federal Government was doing its part, but for some reason, known to him employment and payrolls in private industry were not increasing in proportion to production.

He disclosed that he was conferring almost daily with industrial leaders to find what solutions they had for the problem.

The President also disclosed that for two years he had tried in vain to learn the actual number of unemployed in this country. He said the difficulty was in the question of what constituted unemployment.

The usual unemployment estimates, he said, such as those by the American Federation of Labor, were based on samples and were not a true unemployment census covering the 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 workers.

With a show of pride, the President declared that the Federal unemployment relief program was going along all right and that by the end of November the great majority of the 3,500,000 persons to be employed through Federal funds would be at work.

Varying Estimates on Jobs. There have always been varying estimates as to how many persons are put to work in private industry by Government work projects.

Some officials, such as Secretary of the Interior Ickes, have said that for every person employed by Government on permanent improvements, three men were hired by private industry. Other officials, such as army engineer officers, have said that the ratio is one to one.

He said that the ratio is one to one, that is, for every man hired by the Government, one is hired by industry. The relief rolls indicate that even this low estimate may be wrong, particularly if the Federal funds go for "boondoggling" instead of permanent improvements.

In his recent radio speech the President said that Department of Labor figures showed a gain of 350,000 factory workers in September. During that same month about 1,000,000 persons got jobs on Federal projects paid for out of the $4,800,000,000 appropriation.

The ratio was about three persons hired by the Government to one hired by industry.

In commenting on the Government's work relief formula, the President shifted the discussion to the disparities between production, employment and payrolls. Using indexes based on 1923-25 averages as 100, he said that in 1932, to use that year as a base, production went down to 60, employment to 50 and payrolls to 40.

Production and Payrolls. At present, he continued, production had climbed to about 90, employment to about 82 and payrolls to about 74. He said the problem was to bring employment and payrolls abreast of production. He said that he was asking industrial leaders why this condition existed.

When a reporter volunteered that the plant had been caused by technological improvements in production during the last five years and in the increased profits of industry, the President said that he was not sure that was the whole story. He said that he was not sure that was the whole story.

ONE DEAD, MANY

Today's Shocks Most Severe Since Oct. 18—Man Killed When Brewery Smokestack Falls.

Spokane, Wash. and Calgary, Alta. Jarred—People Driven Into Streets in Near Zero Weather.

By the Associated Press.
HELENA, Mont., Oct. 31.—Many persons were injured and one was killed here today in an earthquake that shook an area 500 miles wide.

An unidentified man was killed when the smokestack of a brewery fell when the first of a series of shocks struck here. Another man, Ed Orien, was reported gravely hurt and several injured persons were treated in hospital.

St. John's Hospital had to be evacuated because of damage. The shocks today were the most pronounced at Helena since Oct. 18 when a tremendous shock caused $2,500,000 damage and death of five persons.

Felt 500 Miles Away. Today's shock was felt at Spokane, Wash., 500 miles northwest of here, in Calgary and Lethbridge, Alta., and in Western Montana towns, including Butte and Missoula.

At Spokane, a bank building was cracked and in Calgary furniture was shifted and water spurted from fountains in downtown office buildings. At Missoula and Butte, the shock was felt distinctly. Plastered walls were shattered at Great Falls.

PICK UP.—123 Workmen Thrown From Scaffold. Two men were thrown from a scaffold at St. Mary's School and were taken to a hospital.

The new high school, badly damaged Oct. 18, was believed to be a "ruled out" St. Louis application for PWA funds to carry out the Thomas Jefferson Memorial river front development. "I don't see how they can qualify under our regulations," he said.

There has been nothing new on the project since my conference with Mayor Dickmann and the others," he said.

ITALIAN STUDENTS SHOUT "DOWN WITH ENGLAND!"
Demonstration in Front of Embassy in Rome; Stores Showing British Influence Stormed.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Oct. 31.—Students demonstrating against Great Britain storming stores they thought to be British-owned tonight, following a morning demonstration in front of the British embassy.

Shouting "Down with England!" they broke a big lamp hanging in front of a tea room on the Via Sistina and pasted a map of Adowa, Ethiopia, on the window. The place is owned and operated by Italians, but the students saw signs printed in English and thought it was a British restaurant.

A crowd of about 200 students carrying flags of Emperor Haile Selassie then started for the Embassy night club, which is operated by Americans and English, but the managers lowered the iron shutters before the students arrived.

Police tried to arrive in time to block the demonstration. At the British embassy the students shouted, "Down with England." They marched through the city and frequently were cheered by crowds. Some carried banners denouncing Great Britain.

ROOSEVELT AT HYDE PARK TO VOTE IN STATE ELECTION
Arrives on Special Train From Washington; No Business on Schedule Today.

By the Associated Press.
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt arrived today at his family estate here and announced he was taking the day off. Coming here to vote in next Tuesday's State election, the President arrived by special train from Washington at 8:30 a. m., and motored in an open car to his mother's home in time for breakfast. He told newspaper men that there was nothing on the calling or business list today.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary, accompanied the President here and established an office in nearby Poughkeepsie.

Wearing a light gray suit and hat as he left the train, the President donned an overcoat in the open car for protection from the cold morning air. Town folks were at the station and school children on the way to classes waved a greeting as he passed through the village.

PEACE TALK

Rome Spokesman Says Italy Is Willing to Negotiate—Baron Aloisi Being Sent to Confer With British and French.

ECONOMIC SANCTION
RESPITE EXPECTED

Mussolini Likely Will Be Given Until Nov. 15 Before Buy Nothing Bar, in Which 42 Nations Are United, Is Imposed.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)
GENEVA, Oct. 31.—An Italian spokesman announced today that his nation was willing to negotiate for peace with Ethiopia. He made this assertion in the League of Nations office Italy's final interval for consideration of settlement of the East African conflict before being subjected to an economic blockade.

"Italy is willing to negotiate," he asserted in reference to the visit to Geneva of Baron Pompeo Aloisi, representative of Premier Mussolini, who is due tomorrow for the meeting of representatives of 42 national governments to set the date for actual enforcement of economic sanctions. Italian circles said Aloisi was coming at the request of the British and French governments.

British Spokesman's Statement. A British spokesman conceded that Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare also would be pleased to sound out the situation before application of the boycott, probably 15 days hence.

Premier Pierre Laval of France was known to be particularly eager to find a quick solution of the dispute.

A compromise view, held widely in League lobbies as the representatives of 52 nations met to act on the date for actual enforcement of economic sanctions was that Nov. 15 probably would be designated. Between now and that "deadline," League sources said, Premier Mussolini would be encouraged to think earnestly of the advantages of peace in East Africa over a continuance of war—and an ensuing world-wide economic campaign.

Main Committee Session. Dr. Augusto Vasconcelos of Portugal, president of the General Sanctions Committee, opened a public session of the body at 6:35 p. m. today.

He announced that 49 countries had adopted an arms embargo against Italy, and emphasized that the United States had imposed an embargo previous to the League's action. He said 47 nations had accepted financial sanctions against Italy and 48 had adopted economic measures.

These totals were reached today when Mexico announced the acceptance of the arms embargo plan, financial sanctions, and two of the economic boycott sanctions, while Greece accepted the project for mutual assistance of nations participating in the punitive campaign.

"This shows," said the committee head, "how the members of the League, when called upon to shoulder responsibility for a collective effort to insure peace, have fulfilled their duty. The replies also show the determination of the members of the League to observe the new law which governs the international community."

Vasconcelos then announced that Ecuador, Iran and Haiti had accepted most of the sanctions. It was understood that they were included in the totals he previously had given. Before the committee adjourned at 6:51, Vasconcelos said Colombia also adhered to the sanctions.

Egypt to Join in Sanctions. Egypt, although not a member of the League, announced today that it had decided in principle to apply economic and financial sanctions against Italy. The following telegram was received at League headquarters from the Egyptian Foreign Minister:

"The Egyptian Government, has decided in principle to adhere to the application of economic and financial sanctions in connection with the Italian-Ethiopian conflict and execute within the limits of possibility such measures as may be decided upon by the League of Nations. The text of the decision follows by post."

An assertion by British Foreign Secretary Hoare that he was coming to Geneva for "further soundings," indicated clearly that peace

ONE MAN KILLED

UPSETS IN COUNTY

Two Others Hurt, One the Wife of Elwood Christian, Taken From Car by Police Before Accident.

An unidentified man was killed and two others persons, a man and a woman, were injured when the automobile in which they were fleeing from county police officers overturned on Highway 61 near Matinee, St. Louis County, at 3:15 p. m. today.

The injured persons, who were taken to St. Louis County Hospital, are Mrs. Josephine Christian, 25 years old, of Ava, Mo., driver of the car, and Fred Walker, whose address was not learned. Mrs. Christian suffered a broken right leg and Walker, fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Mrs. Christian's husband, Elwood Christian, was arrested when the car was first stopped by officers at the intersection of Highway 61 and the Meramec River. He was taken to the office of the State Highway patrol at Kirkwood. The cause of his arrest was not immediately ascertained.

A crowd of about 200 students carrying flags of Emperor Haile Selassie then started for the Embassy night club, which is operated by Americans and English, but the managers lowered the iron shutters before the students arrived.

Police tried to arrive in time to block the demonstration. At the British embassy the students shouted, "Down with England." They marched through the city and frequently were cheered by crowds. Some carried banners denouncing Great Britain.

U.S. 'DISCOURAGES' TRADE WITH TWO NATIONS AT WAR

TRANSACTIONS AT 'CITIZENS OWN RISK'

Secretary of State Hits at Profits Derived at Expense of Human Lives and Human Misery.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in statements extend discouraged American dealings of any description with either Italy or Ethiopia.

The Chief Executive, after hitting at commercial profits gained from war, declared: "Accordingly the American Government is keeping informed as to all shipments consigned for export to both belligerents."

Hull, employing stronger language than at any time past, asserted that the neutrality policy was intended to "discourage" dealings with both of the countries and added:

"I again repeat that an early peace with the restoration of normal business and normal business profits is far sounder and far preferable to temporary and risky war profits."

The two mimeographed statements, obviously prearranged to follow close upon each other, were handed to newspaper men after questions had been asked at the regular White House and State Department press conferences.

In both cases the questions, clearly anticipated, whether action was being taken in line with the policy of discouraging trade with the two combatants.

In line with resolution, which first he read aloud and then handed to newspaper men, follows in full: "In dealing with the conflict between Ethiopia and Italy, I have carried into effect the will and intent of the neutrality resolution recently enacted by Congress."

"We have prohibited all shipments of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to the belligerent governments. By my own public statement of Oct. 5, which was emphasized by the Secretary of State on Oct. 10, we have warned American citizens against transactions of any character with either of the belligerent nations except at their own risk."

"This Government is determined not to become involved in the controversy and is anxious for the restoration and maintenance of peace."

"However, in the course of war, tempting trade opportunities may be offered to our people to supply materials which would prolong the war. I do not believe that the American people wish for abnormally increased profits that temporarily might be secured by greatly extending our trade in such materials, nor would they wish the struggle on the battlefield to be prolonged because of profits accruing to a comparatively small number of American citizens."

"Accordingly, the American Government is keeping informed as to all shipments consigned for export to both belligerents."

Observers quickly noted the word "discourage" in Hull's statement, which was given out after a reporter had asked if the Government was keeping in touch with exports to the combatants.

"At this stage," Hull said, "I reiterate and call special attention to the definite implications of the effect of the policies of this Government to discourage dealings with the two belligerent nations as set forth in the President's public statement of Oct. 5 and my statement of Oct. 10, warning our people not to trade with the belligerents except at their own risk."

"The policy of the Government as thus defined rests primarily upon the recent neutrality act designed to keep the nation out of war and upon the further purpose not to aid in protracting the war."

The statement repeated Hull's belief that "our citizens will not be disposed to insist upon transactions to derive war profits at the expense of human lives and human misery."

for shoes which was received from Italy.

Lunching with the President at Hyde Park in September, before hostilities began, George F. Johnson, president of the board of the shoe company, mentioned he had received an order for heavy shoes from Italy, obviously suitable for military use. The President said he remarked that he would not accept such an order, and Johnson immediately agreed that his company would turn it down.

Johnson-Endicott Head Denies Getting Shoe Order From Italy. BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—George F. Johnson, chairman of the board of the Endicott-Johnson Corporation, in a statement given to the Binghamton Press for publication today denied his corporation had ever received a large order from the Italian Government for army shoes.

Johnson's version of the discussion with President Roosevelt says: "I asked if boots and shoes would be considered munitions of war. The President replied 'This will be determined later by the committee chosen to define munitions of war.' I told the President that certain parties were negotiating with our department for the purchase of large numbers of heavy shoes."

"Personally, I would not advise our company to accept or fill any such order. No such order has ever been received. Not one pair of shoes, not even a shoestring, has been shipped by this company to either of the belligerent countries now at war; nor to any other country who in turn might ship to the belligerents."

dustry, the President merely smiled and made no comment.

When one of the reporters indicated that it might help the situation if the Federal Government knew how many unemployed persons there are in the country, the President countered by saying that no two persons could agree on how some individuals temporarily out of work should be helped. He illustrated his contention with a recital about the family of a journeyman carpenter who has supported his wife and two daughters by odd jobs through the depression.

This, the President said, might be classified as unemployed if a census taker happened to come to his home during a week when he had no work at hand. One of the daughters, the President continued, gives music lessons and had made from $100 to $400 a year for pin money and to give a little financial aid to the family. The other daughter, the President said, is a substitute school teacher, who has a few months' work a year. How should these daughters be classified, in an unemployment census? the President asked.

A. F. L. Figures Limited. When a reporter observed that all indexes and censuses were constantly changing, and that, while no index was perfect, the changes registered were valuable, the President merely agreed, saying that the American Federation of Labor estimate of unemployment was based on reports on about 4,000,000 workers, whereas there were from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 workers in the country.

The President did not indicate what replies he was getting from industrial leaders on employment. He emphasized that no formal conferences would be held and they had nothing to do with George L. Berry's survey for the NRA.

ICKES REPLIES TO JOHNSON Says General "Kicked Out, Suffers From Mental Saddle Sores."

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Asserting that Hugh S. Johnson's criticism of the PWA resulted from the fact that he was not allowed to direct it, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today:

"The trouble with the General is that since he was kicked out of the saddle at NRA he has been suffering from mental saddle sores."

Ickes was replying to Johnson's recent article referring to him as an "honest lawyer" who was not able to get the PWA program going.

possibilities were not ignored amid the sanctions preparations. Existing Contracts Proposal. The League's Committee of 18 made a technical examination of the replies from various governments on the question of sanctions and spent an hour discussing how to handle existing contracts with Italy.

It adopted a Spanish proposal that any contracts with Italy or Italian firms which were fully paid up to Oct. 19, the date on which sanctions were voted, can be fulfilled without violation of the sanctions obligations.

The question of how to handle contracts on which partial payments have been made will be discussed later. Some delegates contended that if, for example, an 80 per cent payment had been made, it would be unfair to the contractor not to let him complete his contract.

Another complication concerns the compensation in agreements where nations have a trade balance with Italy in their favor and would like to import sufficient goods from Italy to maintain this balance.

Switch by Customers of Italy. League economic experts said they could detect already the beginnings of a serious disorganization of Italian financial and economic activities, citing two cases.

(1) In view of the unsettled conditions, they said, one New York company had started to buy a certain kind of oil from Spain, instead of from Italy.

(2) The Belgian textile industry had suddenly received from foreign countries orders for tissues which league experts said had been placed hitherto in Italy.

The experts anticipated that Spain, Southern France, Northern Africa, Greece, Yugoslavia and Palestine would profit particularly by the boycott of Italy.

Of the 10 non-member states questioned concerning their attitudes toward sanctions, only the United States had replied thus far, citing its neutral stand. The others questioned were Germany, Japan, Brazil, Costa Rica, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Iceland, Lichtenstein and Monaco.

Britain's Eden Arrives. Headed by Anthony Eden, the British delegation arrived this morning.

An authoritative source indicated that Foreign Secretary Hoare, who is due tomorrow, will probably make a "statement," rather than a formal speech. This source forecast that the statement would be a summing up of the "peace explorations" conducted recently.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Premier Pierre Laval conferred today with Vittorio Cerruti, Italian Ambassador to France, and Sir George Russell Clerk, British Ambassador. The conference took place just before Laval's departure for Geneva to renew further direct contacts with Italian and British statesmen.

Laval received Clerk after talking to Cerruti. Officials professed ignorance of what was discussed. They said, however, that the outlook seemed to be for "sanctions first, and hope for peace afterward."

Laval's forthcoming Geneva conference said as saying: "Peace will be made. It will be made despite malevolent indiscretion, spiteful controversies and misleading reports spread by circles calling themselves authoritative. Bad news only confirms me in my conviction."

MUSSOLINI DEDICATES NEW ROME UNIVERSITY

Tells Students and Faculty to Join "Implacable Resistance" to Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 31.—Premier Mussolini told blackshirts and academicians today that Italy would oppose League of Nations sanctions with "the most implacable resistance."

In a speech inaugurating the new University of Rome, he called on students and instructors alike to join in keeping Italy's spirit inviolable. He declared: "The University of Rome was inaugurated at a time in which our soldiers are carrying civilization forward with their courage and their sacrifice, without asking anything of anybody."

"Nor should it be ignored that the University of Rome is being born Oct. 31 while at Geneva the coalition of egotism and plutocracy is striving unsuccessfully to check young Italy of the blackshirts."

"In the face of economic siege for which the entire civilized world should have a sense of supreme shame; in the face of an experiment which is being made today for the first time against the Italian people, let it be said that we shall present the most implacable resistance in the firmest of our decisions."

"You comrades of the university will make of this university, as of all others in Italy, a gymnasium, a bulwark and a fortress of the spirit of arms which, when united, assure victory."

ferences with Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy were to be the first meetings of fully accredited representatives of the three nations since the breakdown last August of the Paris peace talks.

The negotiations have continued to the last moment, Laval receiving the papal nuncio and the Soviet Ambassador before his departure at noon.

One of the most delicate points in the negotiations is the question of an Ethiopian outlet to the sea, spokesmen for diplomatic circles said. France, Britain and Italy all have an interest in this matter, these sources said. France holding a monopoly over Ethiopia's foreign shipments through Djibouti, French Somaliland, and the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railway; Italy wanting any Ethiopian port in Eritrea, and Great Britain in British Somaliland. Diplomatic sources said the French would not want to lose this trade for fear of a decline in Djibouti, now on a paying basis after many years of losses.

The British anticipated an Italian "stranglehold" on Ethiopian trade if the port was in Eritrea, these sources asserted. The Italians felt they would hold no real economic control of the East African country without supervision of its access to the sea.

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO RULE ON COAL ACT

Chief Justice Hughes Rejects Plea to Issue Temporary Writ at Once.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—An injunction to restrain enforcement of the Guffey Coal Act was sought today in the Supreme Court by attorneys for J. W. Carter, coal company head, but no action will be taken until Nov. 11 at the earliest.

The attorneys attempted to obtain a conference for this afternoon with Chief Justice Hughes in an effort to obtain a temporary injunction. Hughes refused, explaining the petition would have to be presented to the full court.

The next conference of the Justices will be on Nov. 9. If a decision is reached at that time it ordinarily would be announced on the following Monday, Nov. 11.

Earlier Carter's attorneys had filed a petition for review by the Supreme Court, contending they had been denied due process of law by the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Yesterday, Carter was denied an injunction against the Guffey Act, a 15 per cent tax on the value of coal levied under the Guffey act from those who do not abide by the coal code. At the same time, the District of Columbia Supreme Court, at Carter's request, enjoined his company, the Carter Coal Co. of Washington, which operates in Virginia and West Virginia, from complying with the code setup. The latter was conditional on posting bond for $1500 a day for 10 days.

Ordinarily an appeal would first have to be heard by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. In his Supreme Court appeal today, however, Carter contended the $1500 daily bond and threat of prolonged trial in lower courts entitled him to prompt consideration by the Supreme Court.

Carter told the highest court he had attempted to obtain a test on constitutionality of the Guffey Act before Nov. 1, the day the tax becomes effective. He added that Government attorneys prevented that.

His brief today contended that the 15 per cent tax on the price of coal at the mine is in fact a "penalty" and added it "can be imposed only if the regulations themselves are within congressional power."

At the time they petitioned the United States Supreme Court for a review, Carter's attorneys appealed to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia protesting against the ruling of Justice Jesse C. Adkins of District Supreme Court in refusing to collect the Government from collecting the tax. They also noted an exception to Adkins' order that the company post bond of $1500 daily for the duration of the trial in the District Supreme Court.

It was explained this action was necessary before the United States Supreme Court would review the decision.

The action taken to the highest tribunal raises only a part of the constitutional issues involved in the case. Attorneys explained that the question of whether the Guffey act violated the interstate commerce clause could not be taken to the Supreme Court until the case was decided in the lower court.

ROBBERS HOLD UP 13, ESCAPE UNDER FIRE

Exchange Shots With Constable Who Arrives as They Are Leaving Store.

Two robbers, one apparently drunk, held up 13 persons in the Zimmerman Drug Store, Hales and West Florissant avenues, West Walnut Manor, shortly before 9 o'clock last night and escaped after exchanging shots with Constable Rudy Baumer.

The robbers, young men, ordered soft drinks, then drew pistols and held up Dalton and Leo Zimmerman, owners of the store; Vincent Vassallo, the clerk, and six customers—three women, a man and two boys. One robber stood near the door, threatening the victims, who stood with hands raised.

The second man, who appeared to be drunk, took $65 from two cash registers and handkerchiefs from the Zimmerman brothers and Vassallo. He shoved Vassallo, dropping his pistol, which he recovered. The man customer, whose name was not learned, was searched and robbed of a small sum of money.

As the robbers loitered in the store four boys entered, and were ordered to line up with the other persons. A passerby observed the holdup and telephoned the Sheriff's office at Clayton. A report of the robbery, broadcast over the radio, was received by Constable Baumer at his office, 2043 McLellan avenue, about six blocks from the drug store.

Baumer drove hurriedly to the scene with an acquaintance, Carl Erling, an employee of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. When they stopped their machine outside the drug store one robber had entered an automobile in which a third man had waited, and the second man was leaving the store.

The robber fired at Erling, who dropped unharmed to the ground. Baumer fired four shots at the man, who fled through an alley and was shot at by the robber's car which sped away. Baumer chased the machine for about two miles, to Emma and Janet avenues, where he lost trace of it.

CHARGES CORRUPT POLITICS IN MISSOURI WORK RELIEF

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Republican National Chairman Henry F. Fletcher, in an address last night, said:

"Just before I left Washington, I was in receipt of a telegram, which will be given to the public in a few days, from a responsible citizen of Missouri, giving the details of how the entire work relief fund of that great State has been placed wholly in the hands of one of the most corrupt political organizations in the United States."

As has been told in the Post-Dispatch a charge that the WPA organization in Missouri "clearly and unmistakably is to function as a partisan political machine" was made Oct. 23 in a telegram sent to Administrator Hopkins by Arthur M. Curtis, Missouri's Republican National Committeeman.

"Speaking broadly, everyone owes a duty to the State in the judicial administration of justice to disclose whatever he sees in the administration of truth. This applies not only to his testimony but to demonstrative evidence—his body, his chattels and premises. (Citing 4 Wigmore on Evidence, paragraph 224, page 633; 224, page 710, and paragraph 740) in this case it was further held that reasonable orders made by a court requiring the disclosure of evidence do not violate the constitutional rights of a litigant."

"If a person, by virtue of his very existence in civilized society, owes a duty to the community to disclose for the purposes of justice all that is in his control which can serve the ascertainment of the truth, this duty includes equally the mental impressions preserved in his brain, the documents preserved in his hands, the corporeal facts existing on his body and his chattels and premises within his control.

PRIOR DECISION STATED LAW ON MUEENCH APPEAL

JUDGE ELLISON CITES IT IN MEMORANDUM

Joining in Baby Case Ruling, He Points Out Duty of All to Disclose Whatever Will Aid Truth.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 31.—Chief Justice George R. Ellison of the Missouri Supreme Court has cited a brief memorandum giving his reasons for concurring yesterday afternoon in the action of five of the other Judges on Tuesday, denying a writ of prohibition sought by Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and his wife, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench of St. Louis. The writ was sought to block enforcement of an order by the St. Louis Court of Appeals for production in court of the child the Muenches had in their home, in the Anna Ware habeas corpus case.

With the writ denied, the Muenches yesterday complied with the order and took the baby to court, where it was taken in custody by the Court of Appeals, to be a relative and was not to be published in the reports. In this decision the Court held:

"Speaking broadly, everyone owes duty to the state in the judicial administration of justice to disclose whatever will serve the ascertainment of truth. This applies not only to his testimony but to demonstrative evidence—his body, his chattels and premises. (Citing Wigmore on Evidence, paragraph 2214, page 653; 2216, page 710, and 2220, page 740) in this case it was further held that reasonable orders made by a court requiring the disclosure of evidence do not violate the constitutional rights of a litigant."

He said paragraph 2194 of Wigmore on Evidence, stated:

"If a person, by virtue of his very existence in civilized society, owes a duty to the community to disclose for the purposes of justice all that is in his control which can serve the ascertainment of the truth, this duty includes equally the mental impressions preserved in his brain, the documents he has served in his hands, the corporal chattels existing on his body and the chattels and premises within his control. There can be no discrimination. The latter forms of disclosure, though more rarely asked for, are not whit the less necessary or proper. They are included in the general duty."

"Every Form of Disclosure."

The Judge quoted from paragraph 2216 of the same law text-book, as follows: "The testimonial duty includes every form of disclosure which may exist in the ascertainment of the truth. It is not confined to utterances of the voice, it extends to documents. It extends also to the human body and to chattels and premises possessed."

He quoted further from paragraph 2220, in which the text-book discusses court orders requiring corporal exhibition, to this effect: "For sundry other purposes—for example, identification—the inspection of a civil opponent's body or some similar expedient has been considered to be properly demandable."

Judge Ellison briefly discussed a point made by attorneys for the Muenches that the St. Louis Court of Appeals exceeded its jurisdiction in providing in the order involved, that the child should be held under order of the court or its special commissioner, "subject to view, examination and identification."

"We cannot assume that the Court of Appeals will pursue an unreasonable course in this matter," Judge Ellison said. "The question of the identity of the child is involved and that court has a right to require the production of the child as demonstrative evidence, just as it would require a litigant to submit his own person to an inspection."

Contention Rejected.

He rejected a contention that Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh had prepared and filed the order in advance, thus denying the Muenches an opportunity to be heard. "In the instant case the final order of the Commissioner against which our writ of prohibition is asked," Judge Ellison said, "was made after the relators had been accorded a hearing. The first order made by the Commissioner was withdrawn."

The five Judges who voted to deny the writ last Tuesday were Judges Charles T. Hays, Ernest S. Gantt, William F. Frank, C. A. Leedy Jr. and John C. Collet. They did not file a memorandum giving their decision, as it is not customary to do so in cases involving denial of original applications for writs of prohibition.

Judge Ernest M. Tipton, brother of Mrs. Muench, was the only member of the Court who did not sit in the deliberations. He was disqualified by law because of the relationship.

The Missouri Supreme Court's formal denial of the motion of the Muench counsel for a writ of prohibition, to prevent the required presentation of the baby in court yesterday, was received today at the Court of Appeals office. "Now at this date," the Supreme Court stated, "on consideration of the petition for writ of prohibition herein and the responses thereto, the Court and Commissioner of the Court of Appeals, it is ordered by the court here that the said petition be, and the same is, hereby denied."

The respondents will have an opportunity to present evidence after the petitioner's case has been completed. Respondents include the Muenches, who when called to the witness stand by the petitioner declined to testify on the ground their answers might incriminate them; Mrs. Helen Berroyer, faithful friend of the Muenches; and Attorney Wilfred Jones, the baby broker in the case and off-the-record adviser of Mrs. Muench, whose testimony last week is under investigation by the grand jury as the result of a denunciation by Commissioner Limbaugh, who said from the bench that Jones had been "guilty of perjury of the most flagrant character."

Court Takes Custody of Child.

The baby was taken in custody by the Court shortly after it had been brought there by Mrs. Muench in response to the Court's order. It was turned over to a uniformed nurse and taken to the Judges' assembly room back of the courtroom, where it was viewed by eight persons authorized to do so by the Court. These included Anna Ware, two physicians specializing in the treatment of children, two hair specialists summoned by the result of the previous testimony indicating the child's hair may have been dyed, and a process-server and two newspaper reporters who previously had seen the child in the Muench home.

The infant and its new nurse remained in the assembly room until 11:45 a. m. Then Judge Becker and a Deputy Marshal of the Court accompanied the nurse and her charge to Children's Hospital. Judge Becker went into the hospital, as he explained later, to sign the necessary papers and give instructions on behalf of the Court. Judge Becker, asked if the Court would authorize a daily bulletin on the condition of the baby, said that it would not, that the child was to be kept in seclusion just as it would be in a private home.

Court Takes Custody of Child.

The baby was taken in custody by the Court shortly after it had been brought there by Mrs. Muench in response to the Court's order. It was turned over to a uniformed nurse and taken to the Judges' assembly room back of the courtroom, where it was viewed by eight persons authorized to do so by the Court. These included Anna Ware, two physicians specializing in the treatment of children, two hair specialists summoned by the result of the previous testimony indicating the child's hair may have been dyed, and a process-server and two newspaper reporters who previously had seen the child in the Muench home.

The infant and its new nurse remained in the assembly room until 11:45 a. m. Then Judge Becker and a Deputy Marshal of the Court accompanied the nurse and her charge to Children's Hospital. Judge Becker went into the hospital, as he explained later, to sign the necessary papers and give instructions on behalf of the Court. Judge Becker, asked if the Court would authorize a daily bulletin on the condition of the baby, said that it would not, that the child was to be kept in seclusion just as it would be in a private home.

Order for Care of Child.

The Court's order for transfer of the child to the hospital was that it have a private room and special nurse, and included the observation that it would be "in the hands of the very best men who know the necessary problems of child feeding."

No one, Judge Becker said, in announcing the order, was to be allowed to visit the child except upon an order signed by the Court. Judge Becker instructed counsel for the Muenches, who were not in the courtroom when the order was given, to advise them of its terms, so that they might not be embarrassed by visiting the hospital with the mistaken idea they might see the child. He also asked Anna Ware if she had heard the order. She nodded affirmatively.

Wilfred Jones Moves to Have Commissioner Disqualified Himself.

Wilfred Jones filed in St. Louis Court of Appeals last evening a motion that Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh disqualify himself from any further proceedings in the habeas corpus suit, so far as they relate to Jones as a respondent.

Commissioner Limbaugh, after hearing Jones' testimony and that of other witnesses last week, as to his handling of Anna Ware's baby and the Price baby, his predecessor in the great baby hoax which the Post-Dispatch has exposed, declared his belief that Jones "has been guilty of perjury of the most flagrant character." He directed the attention of the Circuit Attorney to the case, "to determine whether or not Mr. Jones should be indicted and proceeded against according to law."

Jones was arrested, "suspected of perjury," and placed under $2500 bond. The grand jury began hearing of testimony in his case at a special session Monday afternoon.

In his motion filed with the Court, Jones stated that "The Commissioner will take judicial notice of his acts and proceedings during this hearing, which are indicative of, and judicially conclusive of, the Commissioner's bias and prejudice against the respondent (Jones)."

"The Commissioner," Jones continued in his motion, "is biased and prejudiced against this respondent. Wherefore, the respondent respectfully moves the Commissioner, voluntarily and sua sponte, to disqualify himself as to any further findings, proceedings, hearings or conclusions regarding this respondent."

A motion was filed yesterday afternoon by counsel for Mrs. Helen Berroyer, respondent in the suit, moving that the reply of the petitioner, Anna Ware, to the return made by Mrs. Berroyer to the writ of habeas corpus, be stricken out. As a ground for striking, it is alleged that the reply "tenders no issue under the habeas corpus act."

The filing of this motion was considered a formality. The Court previously informed Mrs. Berroyer's lawyer, on inquiry made by him, that such a motion would be considered as having been filed, and would be overruled.

Helen Harmon Refuses to Plead Guilty, Take Life Sentence at Cleveland.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 31.—Helen Harmon yesterday, scorned the State's offer of a life sentence if she pleaded guilty, and chose to stand trial on a first degree murder charge, on which her two male companions in a holdup already have been sentenced to death.

The Chicago girl, accused in the killing of Albert Wesosky, Cleveland butcher boy, in a robbery, April 11, rejected advice of her attorneys that she plead guilty.

Selection of a jury was begun. The girl accused that she participated with Donald Eberle and John Pleyer in a number of robberies. Eberle at his trial three weeks ago admitted that he shot Wesosky. Pleyer, sentenced last week to the electric chair, pleaded vainly for mercy, contending he did not fire a shot.

"I never held a gun in that robbery," Helen Harmon said, and was heard to say: "The cab driver who had brought us there (to the butcher shop which was robbed of $24) got out and picked up a rock. I thought he was going to hit me with it, so I yelled at him to drop it and he ran away. That's all I did."

Intently watching the proceedings was Miss Harmon's father, William Harmon of Chicago, a foreman in a steel mill.

DEFAULT JUDGMENT AGAINST MRS. MUEENCH AND HER SURETY

$270 Award Ordered in Suit Instituted by Creditor of Her Mitz Shop.

A default judgment for $270.01 against Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench as proprietor of the Mitz Shop, was ordered by Circuit Judge Granville Hogan today in favor of the Roth-Worsky Co. of Chicago. The judgment represented $190 for merchandise sold to the Mitz Shop in 1927 and $80.01 accrued interest. Judgment was also entered against Martin D. Lohmann, former Ninth Ward Alderman, who was Mrs. Muench's surety on her appeal bond.

The Chicago firm filed suit against Mrs. Muench in a Justice of the Peace court here in 1927. Judgment by default was ordered January 1928, but Mrs. Muench appealed to the Circuit Court.

Jones' Shop, exclusive women's apparel store at 392 North Euclid avenue, was placed in bankruptcy by creditors in April, 1928. In June, 1928, a first and final dividend was paid to general creditors, amounting to 15.3 cents on the dollar.

The new Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street is now open to the public. Fountain Rothwell, custodian of Federal property, announced yesterday.

Many branches of the Federal Government here have already moved into their new quarters. The offices of the District Attorney and Federal District Clerk, and the two divisions of the Federal District Court are scheduled to move Nov. 6 and 7. That will about complete the moving.

The old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets will then be turned over to the census bureau for the compilation of a card index of the 1930 census, to be used in checking applications for Federal pensions.

LABOR BOARD ACCUSES BROWN SHOE COMPANY

Charges Women at Salem Plant Were Laid Off for Joining Union.

The first complaint issued for the Eastern Missouri-Southern Illinois district by the National Labor Relations Board under the recently passed National Labor Relations Act was made yesterday against the Brown Shoe Co., Inc.

It cited charges by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union local of Salem, Ill., that the company laid off four women workers at its Salem plant a month ago because they were members of the union, and has since refused to reinstate them. The women were Mrs. Reba Powell, Miss Dorothy Harvey, Mrs. Fonda Wheat and Miss Muriel Vanatta.

By its layoff of the women, the company coerced its employees in the exercise of rights of collective bargaining, discouraged membership in the union and engaged in unfair labor practice, the complaint alleged.

Since last July 5, it further charged, the company has induced citizens of Salem who have formed a "Citizens' Committee," to "coerce, intimidate and interfere with" the employees at the plant joining the union by "warnings, threats, acts of violence and other conduct."

It was charged that the company and its officers attempted to destroy the union local altogether by threatening to close the Salem plant, by "exhibiting open hostility to the union," and by threatening employees with discharge or discrimination for joining it.

Hearing of testimony on the complaint was set for 10 a. m. Nov. 13, in Room 518 of the new Federal Building, by Harold T. Garvey, Regional Director of the Labor Board. Dean Alphonse G. Eberle of the St. Louis University Law School was appointed trial examiner to conduct the hearing. After hearing the case, the examiner will file an intermediate report with the board at Washington, D. C., giving his findings and recommendations.

John A. Bush, president of the Brown Shoe Co., which has its offices at 1600 Washington avenue, declined to discuss the matter.

DEATH OF 12 IN PLANE CRASH ASCRIBED TO PILOT'S ERROR

Bureau of Air Commerce Reports on Accident Oct. 7 Near Cheyenne, Wyo.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—An error in judgment of altitude and distance from the airport by the pilot of the United Airlines plane which crashed Oct. 7 near Cheyenne, Wyo., was given by the Bureau of Air Commerce today as the probable cause of the accident.

All on board, including Pilot H. A. Collison, a co-pilot, a stewardess and nine passengers, were killed and the plane destroyed.

"Investigation disclosed," the report said, "that the airplane while on a direct radio course to Cheyenne Airport and while flying in a normal slightly descending path had first collided with the ground just a few feet below the top of a small knoll, tearing out both engines."

"From here it had rebounded and continued through the air for a distance of 1120 feet, where it came to rest."

"Checks on the ground at the point of first contact made by the propellers, fuselage and engine indicated that the airplane struck in a normal flying attitude."

The pilot apparently was executing a power glide to the airport when the accident occurred.

HEADS PRISON ASSOCIATION

Minneapolis Woman First of Her Sex to Hold Office.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Blanche J. La Du of Minneapolis, who introduced beauty parlors in hospitals for the insane, was elected president of the American Prison Association yesterday—the first of her sex to hold that office. The plan of beauty treatments to restore the interest and self-confidence of feminine patients is now used widely in the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was unable to attend the convention, was re-elected a vice-president.

More Details of Mrs. Winner's Statement of Her Connection With the Anna Ware Baby Case

No Light Shed on Why Midwife Got Young Mother to Write Description of Her Child.

Whether the circumstances under which Anna Ware was induced to write a description of her baby on the back of an old envelope will be further disclosed at the hearings of her habeas corpus suit to recover the baby probably depends on what testimony is offered in behalf of the respondents after the petitioner's case is closed.

As was told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, Anna wrote the description Sept. 13 at the request of Mrs. Rebecca Winner, retired midwife, at whose home at 6015 Maple avenue, Anna's baby was born last Aug. 17. Mrs. Winner said in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter that she was asked to get the description by her cousin, Carl M. Dubinsky, then acting as her attorney. Both Mrs. Winner and Dubinsky were dismissed as respondents in the case after part of the testimony had been heard.

Anna Ware's Case Nears Close.

Attorney Harry C. Barker, representing Anna Ware, announced court yesterday that he expected to close the petitioner's case tomorrow after presenting testimony of physicians and hair specialists who were to examine the baby again today in cross-examination of witnesses for the respondents.

In response to an inquiry by the Post-Dispatch today he recalled that statement and said he could add nothing to it, but, of course, could not predict what might develop in cross-examination of witnesses for the respondents.

A sworn statement that Mrs. Winner made to Associate Prosecuting Attorney Frank Matthews, Sept. 19, giving details of her conversation with the baby case, omitted any reference to the description Anna wrote of her baby, but did mention the visit to Anna which she stated in her interview published yesterday was for the purpose of getting the description.

Prosecuting Attorney was made in response to questions which he put to Mrs. Winner. The questions and answers were transcribed and then sworn to by Mrs. Winner before a notary public.

One of the last questions asked her was, "Was anything else said?" to which she replied: "No, nothing much. And Carl (Dubinsky) took me to his office."

PENDERGAST OFF OF KEATING, HE SAYS

Holds Muench Lawyer Misrepresented His Organization on Liquor Question.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 30.—Thomas J. Pendergast, the most powerful figure in Missouri politics, told the writer today that Edgar J. Keating, attorney for Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench in the great baby hoax, lost the backing of the Pendergast political organization some time ago and has been barred from the office of "the Boss."

Keating, a member of the State Legislature, who has announced that he was serving Mrs. Muench without compensation and was "taking all the heat," was elected with Pendergast support.

"He has known for a couple of years that neither I nor the organization I represent has any use for him," Pendergast said, "and he knows that I ordered him from my office and told him not to show his face here again."

Pendergast said that the organization sent Keating to the Legislature only "to have him misrepresent us." He accused Keating of misrepresenting the organization's attitude on the repeal of the prohibition laws.

"Everybody knew how I stood on repeal," Pendergast observed, "wet all the time, without compromise. Keating made it appear as though the organization was not wholly in favor of it."

Pendergast, interviewed at his political headquarters at 1908 Main street, said also that Pendergast, one of Mrs. Muench's principal attorneys in her recent trial at Mexico, Mo., did not have the support of his organization and that to the best of his knowledge he is not even acquainted with any of the many lawyers associated with her case, except Cross and Keating. Cross is another Muench attorney who announced he was serving without fee.

"I never saw or heard of Cross until about six months ago," Pendergast said. "When he was brought to my office and asked me if I would support him for Governor. I told him that I could not be for him."

Pendergast, who said his only knowledge of the Muench case came from newspaper accounts and casual remarks by persons not associated with them, added that, "If there's a single lawyer connected with her outside Keating and Cross, I don't know him."

Baby's Weight Supports Claim of Anna Ware

Child Produced in Court Too Heavy for One Born at 6 1/4 Pounds as Described by Muench Nurse.

Dr. Paul J. Zentay's testimony yesterday that the baby he saw in the St. Louis Court of Appeals appeared to weigh between 12 and 13 pounds, when considered with reference to tables of normal rates of gain in the weight of new-born infants, throws an interesting sidelight on Anna Ware's claim that the baby which has been in the Muench home is in fact her child, which the Muenches have attempted to "pass off" as their own.

What the tables show, in brief, is that Anna's baby, if it made normal progress, would now weigh about the same as the baby which was produced in court, and that if there were a Muench baby, it would weigh substantially less.

Anna's baby, it will be recalled, was born to her Aug. 17, and taken from her that night, an hour or so before the time announced as that when a baby arrived at the Muench home.

Weight at Birth.
Anna's baby, at birth, weighed 8 1/2 pounds on a kitchen scale, according to the testimony of Mrs.
Rebecca Winner, the retired mid-wife at whose home, 6015 Maple avenue, the child was born.

The baby in the Muench home, according to the testimony of its Negro nurse and a Negro maid, weighed 6 1/4 or 6 1/2 pounds when placed on a kitchen scale shortly after its birth, and the next day, when placed on an infant scale, its weight was about the same.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, for many years Health Commissioner of Chicago, has compiled a table of normal rate of increase in the weight of infants which appears in his book, "Our Babies."

According to this table, a child which weighed 8 1/2 pounds at birth (Anna's) would, if it made normal progress, weigh 12 pounds 5 ounces at 10 weeks.

A child which weighed 6 1/2 pounds at birth would, if it made normal progress, weigh 9 pounds 8 ounces
at 10 weeks.

Said Child Was Premature.
But Dr. Muench stated in the birth certificate he filed that the child born to his wife was premature, and premature babies do not make normal progress. For the moment disregarding the testimony of other physicians that in their opinion the baby produced in court by the Muenches was not premature, it is interesting to compare the relative progress of full term and premature babies.

The book, "Infant Care," published by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, contains the comment that "very small" premature babies are making satisfactory progress if they gain from 1-3 to 1/2 ounce a day—2-3 to 3 1/2 ounces a week.

Dr. Bundesen, in his book, gives 6 ounces as the average weekly gain of 6 1/2-pound babies, and 8 ounces for 8 1/2-pound babies. These figures are for normal, full-term babies, and show a rate of progress about twice that of premature babies.
They relate to the early months of an infant's life, as in later months, according to "Infant Care," even premature babies may approach the average as they outgrow their early handicap.

Mrs. Winner's Statement.

Another pertinent fact here is the statement of Mrs. Winner, published in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, that she saw the baby in the Muench home weighed on Sept. 12 and that its weight then, lacking only two days of four weeks after its birth, was 6 1/2 pounds, indicating that it had made no gain at all.

Yet in the next six weeks, if the baby the Muenches produced in court yesterday was the one Mrs.
Winner saw in her home, the child made phenomenal progress, doubling its weight.

In connection with Mrs. Winner's statement concerning the weight of the baby in the Muench home nearly four weeks after its birth, the testimony of Dr. Edgar F. Schmitz, who testified as an expert several days ago, takes on new significance.

Before Dr. Schmitz took the stand, the Muench nurse, Oleeta Lewis, had testified that for the first three or four days of its life the baby had no food or water. Dr.
Schmitz was asked what, in his opinion, would be the effect of that treatment on a premature baby. "I think that baby would be dead," he answered. Oleeta had described the mixture of milk, water and corn syrup she said was fed to the baby with a dropper for the next week of its life. Dr. Schmitz asked what he thought of that, said it was a weak mixture, but repeated his assertion that the baby would be dead, and said, "I don't think you would have a chance to feed the baby that."

Dr. Schmitz was not asked whether he thought a healthy full-term baby could survive such treatment.

Both Dr. Schmitz and Dr. Zen-tay testified yesterday that in their opinion the baby produced in court could not have been a premature child, assuming that its age was correctly stated as 10 weeks.

8 WOMEN TO EVERY 7 MEN ELIGIBLE TO VOTE IN BRITAIN

31,000,000 Parliamentary Electors
Will Have Opportunity to Cast a Ballot Nov. 14.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 31.—Eight women to every seven men will have opportunity to cast a vote in Britain's general election Nov. 14, when a total of 31,000,000 parliamentary electors are asked to go to the polls. England proper has more than 25,000,000 potential votes to be cast. Of that number more than 3,000,000 are credited to London.

To attract these voters, with the short time at their disposal, campaign leaders are resorting to whirlwind election tactics, with highly modern vehicles of propaganda.
Large vans equipped with talking picture apparatus and loud speakers, airplanes and novel advertising stunts.

When the electioneering is all over a total of about £1,350,000 (about $6,750,000) will have been expended, political experts estimate, on election costs. Individual candidates are expected to spend from $500 to $5000 in their efforts to win a seat in Parliament.

DIGNITY IN LEGION PARADES

Officials Recommend That Marshals Inspect Each Unit.

By the Associated Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—
American Legion department commanders and adjutants in annual conference yesterday recommended that the national executive committee act to make more dignified the former service men's convention parades.

J. Ray Murphy, national commander, earlier in the week criticized costumes worn by some Legionnaires in the parade at the recent St. Louis convention. The department commanders and adju-tants recommended that marshals be appointed to inspect each parade unit with a view to making the marchers "pageants of patriotism and dignity in keeping with the principles of the American Legion."

BANKS THAT FLOATED LOANS AIDED BONDHOLDERS' COUNCIL

J. Reuben Clark, former Undersecretary of State, testified before Securities Commission.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Testimony that the Government-fostered Foreign Bond Holders' Protective Council, Inc., has been partly supported by funds from the banks that floated foreign loans was given to the Securities Commission yesterday.

J. Reuben Clark, former Undersecretary of State and council president, testified the Council had received such contributions despite presidential declaration that the committee was to have "no connection of any kind" with such banks.

Clark insisted, however, that "connection" meant to him the absence of any association which would indicate banker control or influence, and repeatedly asserted the lack of such influence or control.

He produced lists of contributors to the Council, which was set up to furnish a non-partisan agency for negotiating with foreign Governments to protect the rights of American bond holders, including the names of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Guaranty Co. and Dillon Read & Co.

New Java-Philippines Air Route.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 31.—Plans for commercial air service between Java and the Philippines, starting in February, were disclosed here today. The line would close the last gap in air service around the world.

Heinrich Nieuwenhuis announced the service would be inaugurated by the Royal Dutch Airlines, which he represents. The first flight, he said, would be made in co-operation with the Holo-Negros line, a Philippine concern, which will start a weekly service tomorrow between Manila and Davao in the southern Philippines and on the proposed line of flight to Java.

to be placed in a very comfortable home and is going to inherit a lot of money.

Jones' Memphis Story.

Mrs. Winner said Jones told her the baby was for a client who lived in Memphis, Tenn., whose name he would not divulge, but she understood Anna's baby was to go to the same persons for whom he had obtained the Price baby, that is that Jones had only one client for whom he was procuring a baby.

She told of Jones having taken Anna for examination to his nephew, Dr. Chester H. Denny, who later attended her at childbirth, and of Jones saying at various times that Anna was to go to the Deaconess Hospital or the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. On the night of the baby's birth, she said, no arrangement had been made for the girl to go to a hospital and she could not reach Dr. Denny until too late to move Anna.

The questioning of Mrs. Winner turned to the taking of the baby from her home between 11 and 12 p. m. on the day it was born. She said Jones came for the baby, accompanied by a "nurse." When asked to describe the nurse, she said: "I didn't try to picture her out. I was busy talking to him (Jones). We had an argument about the money. I never saw her before."

Pressed further for a description of the nurse, Mrs. Winner said: "She was a medium-sized woman. I thought she was a dark blonde, kind of light brown hair. Of course, she didn't have much hair showing, just a few strips sticking out. The woman looked to be about 28 or 30 years old. She had a nurse's garment and some kind of a coat—I think a white coat—but no nurse's cap."

"Nurse Johnson."

She quoted the woman as saying, "I am Nurse Johnson and I came to take the baby to the Jewish Hospital to put it on a schedule of food."

When asked what the nurse said to Anna, Mrs. Winner replied, "I don't really know because I made it my business to keep out of the room."

Mrs. Winner then was asked for further details of her conversation with Jones about the money. She said:

"He was supposed to give the girl that $50 for her clothes at the time when he was taking the baby." She added that Jones explained he did not have that much money with him but assured her Anna would get the money. Mrs. Winner said, however, that at that time she was paid the $50 Jones had promised as her fee.

She said when the baby was taken away she understood, "the adoption business would be later."

She related that the nurse dressed the baby in a little dress, sweater and jacket that Anna had bought and which Anna at the time asked should be given to the nurse, then wrapped the baby in a small blanket and handed the mother for her to kiss it goodbye.

Mrs. Winner Describes Baby.

Mrs. Winner described the baby briefly, saying it was "almost bald-headed, but had a showing of dark hair, just like when a man needs a shave, but it was dark—it was very dark; I thought it was going to be black hair."

She said Anna asked her if there were any marks on the baby and she replied she did not see any.

Anna called her attention to the baby's ears, she said, which she described as "very flat, right to the skin, and small and round; very small little ears." She added: "I think the man that she (Anna) liked or loved had a certain shape ear, and she kept on looking at the little ear."

About the eighth day after the baby's birth, Mrs. Winner related, Anna saw in the Post-Dispatch a news item of the announcement by Dr. and Mrs. Muench of the birth of a baby to them on Aug. 18, and said to her: "Isn't that funny that a woman of 43 gave birth to a baby boy the same evening as mine was born that morning. If I thought that she has got my baby I would want him back."

Anna Said "Jones Is Scared."

After Anna had been taken by Jones to the boarding house at 3317 Manchester road, Mrs. Winner related, Jones and Anna came to her house and Anna took her aside and whispered in her ear, "Jones is scared." When Mrs. Winner asked why, she continued, Anna said, "someone is looking for my baby."

She related that she asked Jones about what Anna had said, and Jones replied: "Oh, the newspaper just wants a story; it doesn't amount to anything."

"We kept on asking him to straighten things out," Mrs. Winner continued, "and have her adoption papers signed. He said, 'There's no rush; adoption papers are not signed right away; the baby is recorded in the name of the people who are going to get it and that is just as good as the adoption papers.' He said their name is Perkins." (Anna's name had been given as Perkins to the doctor who examined and attended her.)

Mrs. Winner had told earlier in the examination of having visited Anna at the Manchester road boarding house, and said Anna kept saying, "Do you think that Mrs. Muench got my baby?"

Mrs. Winner was asked when she hired Dubinsky, her cousin, as her lawyer.

She said it was after a Post-Dispatch reporter came to her home (Sept. 12) to inquire about Anna's baby. As has been told, a St. Louis County grand jury had that day begun an investigation of what became of Anna's baby, with the purpose of determining the truth or falsity of the reported birth of a child to Mrs. Muench.

Phone Call to Dubinsky.

Mrs. Winner said she telephoned Dubinsky and asked him to come to her house. Over the telephone, she continued, "he said that he

After Anna had been taken by Jones to the boarding house at 3317 Manchester road, Mrs. Winner related, Jones and Anna came to her house and Anna took her aside and whispered in her ear, "Jones is scared." When Mrs. Winner asked why, she continued, Anna said, "someone is looking for my baby."

She related that she asked Jones about what Anna had said, and Jones replied: "Oh, the newspaper just wants a story; it doesn't amount to anything."

"We kept on asking him to straighten things out," Mrs. Winner continued, "and have her adoption papers signed. He said, 'There's no rush; adoption papers are not signed right away; the baby is recorded in the name of the people who are going to get it and that is just as good as the adoption papers.' He said their name is Perkins." (Anna's name had been given as Perkins to the doctor who examined and attended her.)

Mrs. Winner had told earlier in the examination of having visited Anna at the Manchester road boarding house, and said Anna kept saying, "Do you think that Mrs. Muench got my baby?"

Mrs. Winner was asked when she hired Dubinsky, her cousin, as her lawyer.

She said it was after a Post-Dispatch reporter came to her home (Sept. 12) to inquire about Anna's baby. As has been told, a St. Louis County grand jury had that day begun an investigation of what became of Anna's baby, with the purpose of determining the truth or falsity of the reported birth of a child to Mrs. Muench.

Phone Call to Dubinsky.

Mrs. Winner said she telephoned Dubinsky and asked him to come to her house. Over the telephone, she continued, "he said that he wants to see me, too, on important business."

Dubinsky came that evening, she related, and told her that someone had informed him "that I or my son made an affidavit that my son carried the baby off to Mrs. Muench and that I made an affidavit that the baby at Mrs. Muench's was Anna's baby, and my answer was that it is absolutely not so."

She said Dubinsky asked her if she would recognize the baby born at her house, and she said she was "quite sure she would," whereupon Dubinsky suggested she should go to Mrs. Muench's and see the baby there.

She then told of going to the Muench home the next morning in a taxicab and meeting Dubinsky there.

After stating that she thought the baby in the Muench home was not Anna's, one reason being that it had "bright red hair," Mrs. Winner continued:

"When I said it didn't look like the baby that was born in my house, she (Mrs. Muench) got hysterical and started screaming and crying and her husband quieted her down and she said she was crying because she was happy the baby didn't resemble the baby that was born in my house."

"Was anything else said?" Mrs. Winner was asked.

"No, nothing much," she replied. "And Carl took me to his office."

No Mention of Description.

She then told of having seen Anna a week earlier but made no mention of the description she had asked Anna to write. As has been told, Spencer R. McCulloch, a Post-Dispatch reporter, testified in the habeas corpus case that Mrs. Muench, when he interviewed her

Sept. 20 at her home, told him she had in her possession the "original description" by Anna Ware, that it was in the safe of her brother, Supreme Court Judge Ernest M. Tipton, at Jefferson City, and that she then telephoned to some one she said was Judge Tipton and requested that the description be sent to St. Louis. The description was produced at the hearing by counsel for Dubinsky, but was not introduced in evidence, remaining in possession of the lawyer.

ORPHIR NEARLY GOES ON ROCKS IN STORM

Captain Roused at 3 A. M. by Rattling of Chains as Ship Drags Anchors.

By GILBERT McALLISTER.

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, Oct. 31.—The storm which has prevented Diver Jim Jarratt from making a second descent to the hulk, which we are certain is the Lusitania, almost wrecked the Orphir against a wall of rock at the eastern shore cove near the Old Head of Kinsale.

Capt. Henry Russell was roused at 3 a. m. by rattling of the anchor chains. He found the anchors dragging and the salvage ship drifting toward the cliff.

Fortunately, a good head of steam had been held ready for just such an emergency. Russell had the engines put ahead at slow speed to take the strain off the anchor chains. Though the gale increased, we rode the storm out safely till the dawn, when weather conditions bettered.

Despite the violence of the gale, there is little fear that the mooring buoys guarding the resting place of the hulk have been torn away. The battleship anchors hold them in place are capable of standing great strain.

ILLINOIS WELFARE LEADERS HONOR JANE ADDAMS

Tribute Paid to Late Director of Hull House at Dinner Program at East St. Louis Convention.

A change in attitude toward profit-taking and social security for workers is taking place, Paul U. Kellogg, editor of Survey Graphic, told an audience of welfare workers last night at a general session of the fortieth annual Illinois Conference on Social Welfare at Anad Temple, East St. Louis.

The session was preceded by an annual conference dinner held in honor of the late Jane Addams of Hull House and president of the conference. Among the guests of honor were Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, widow of the Speaker, and Gov. Henry Horner. The conference will end today.

One of the most far-reaching changes has come in the field of meeting unemployment cycles, Kellogg said. "Although the idea of instituting public works is not new, the unprecedented scope of the Roosevelt administration's efforts to create employment has been a distinctive contribution to the technique of dealing with periodic unemployment."

Base for Job Planning.
"Clearly, however," he continued, "we face not only an overhang of mass unemployment, but forces that will augment it. Looking ahead, the establishment of Federal-State employment services gives us a base for unemployment planning. Old age pensions and old labor laws will reduce working time and ease competition, and unemployment insurance will carry the worker over short periods without work."

Another change has come in the field of collective bargaining, Kellogg said. The old strife between labor and capital has been reduced, because of the establishment of the National Labor Relations Board, empowered to hold elections, investigate unfair labor practices, and issue orders to cease and desist and to proceed in the courts to enforce them, he said.

Shifts in population, the speaker continued, have presented one of the greatest challenges to social and industrial planning. As the depression deepened and urban payrolls collapsed, he said, the tide of internal migration, which in the 1920's swept toward the cities, reversed.

"It is the old story, of people in search of a living," Kellogg said. "Now the weak and the strong seem to be milling about, drawn and driven by forces which they can neither control nor understand."

Tribute to Jane Addams.
President Weigel, speaking of Jane Addams, urged all welfare workers to emulate her, "remembering that the progress of the world is the product of sweat and blood of the pioneer, and never the mirage of the revolutionary. Man's supreme law that gives life its meaning, and saves it from being sheer futility, is to better the lot of his fellows, and to bring to the weaker a greater measure of security."

"Jane Addams understood," he continued, "the motives of those who place obstacles in the path of social justice. In any other person, such complete tolerance might have led to laissez faire. But in her, tolerance was no mere academic exercise; it took the form of a generous compassion toward the exploited and exploited alike, and became a powerful moving spirit for almost three generations of faithful effort in behalf of the underprivileged, the handicapped and the weak."

Morning Session.
At the morning session on health and economic problems, Dr. K. E. Miller, senior surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, attacked the inadequate health and sanitation facilities of rural Illinois communities.

"Rural health officials are generally laymen, like the Mayor or Chief of Police," Miller said, "and are subject to political influences. Having no trained staffs, they are not equipped to cope with epidemics and they disregard tuberculosis and social diseases almost entirely."

Difficulties in financing an adequate health service, the speaker explained, could be overcome by consolidating townships and counties and setting up expert staffs free of political control. County, State and Federal resources should be pooled to finance efficient health facilities, he said.

Economy in Relief Urged.
Prof. M. H. Hunter of the University of Illinois, in discussing relief revenues, urged relief administrators to operate their organizations with the utmost economy. "Ultimately," Hunter said, "we must pay for what we get from the Government, so we must disabuse our minds now of the notion that Government funds are 'gravy.'"

The burden of paying taxes for relief expenditures should be placed on those most able to pay. He said, adding, however, that inequitable methods of making assessments and abolition of the State's 50-cent real estate tax did not permit this. Since the State has abolished the tax, he said, the big corporations in Illinois now pay only $4,000,000 annually toward defraying relief costs.

their capital stock, Hunter declared. Capital stock of mercantile and manufacturing establishments is assessed at the point where the headquarters of the corporations are, and the tendency is to place these headquarters in small rural towns where taxes are low, even though most of the business may be transacted in large cities, it was explained.

Local Boards of Assessors, Hunter charged, are too amenable to political influences, on too prone to do favors for political associates, so that gross inequalities in assessments sometimes result. The Assessor's office, he said, should be removed from politics and placed in charge of a non-elective expert on real and personal property valuations.

Program for Today.
The conference program today includes a series of sectional round-table discussions at the Catholic Community House, Fifth Street and St. Louis avenue, on education, group work, mental hygiene and organization of social forces.

Concluding the conference, in the afternoon, there will be a general session at Anad Temple. The speakers will be John Martin, chairman of the Illinois Relief Commission, A. L. Bowen, director of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, and Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare Association.

The orders of United States District Judge Davis approving the $2,000,000 sale at foreclosure of the Ambassador, Missouri Theater and Grand Central Theater buildings, and approving a bondholders' committee plan for reorganization, were affirmed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in a decision received here today.

However, the Court of Appeals modified the decision to allow the principal appellant, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., to participate in the reorganization to the extent of its holdings of $154,800 in second mortgage bonds on the properties. The properties were purchased March 26, 1934, by a bondholders' committee headed by Thomas N. Dysart. The sale and reorganization plan of the committee were approved in July, 1934, after Dysart testified 85 per cent of the bondholders had accepted the plan. Warner Brothers, who owned one-third of the buildings through a subsidiary, had argued that the plan was inadequate, and advanced proposed organization plan of its own, which was rejected by the Court.

In its ruling, the Court of Appeals said the bid represented the approximate market value of bonds foreclosed, which had a par value of $5,967,000.

LACLEDE GAS WORKERS TESTIFY AT HEARING

Three Appear Before Committee Trying to Arbitrate Strike.

Three employees of the Laclede Gas Light Co., testified before an arbitration committee hearing wage demands of union employees of the company yesterday at Hotel Mayfair. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow afternoon before former Gov. Elliott Major, chairman; Prof. Joseph M. Klamon of Washington University, for the union, and A. E. Wyatt, personnel director for the company.

Ernest Shay, vice president of the Gas House Workers' Union, 208 Adelia avenue, Luxemburg, testified he is paid 76 cents an hour as a pipefitter and the union is seeking to raise his pay to 90 cents an hour. He said pipe fitters who are members of a craft union get $1.43 an hour but have only irregular employment.

He testified John Doerres, superintendent of the coke plant where he is employed, intimidated he would be fired unless he signed a paper saying that he would have nothing to do with the union. Shay said he signed, but when Doerres told him he could apologize for having joined the union, he refused to do that.

Shay also testified he owns two shares of utilities stock, paid for by deductions from his pay check. He said the stock is almost worthless now.

William Gavin, a sulphate operator at the coke plant, 8102 Minnesota avenue, testified he was formerly a "booster operator" but was replaced by a non-union man. Both his present and former positions pay the same, 62 cents an hour, but the booster operator job is considered a better one, he said. During the recent strike of gas house workers, he testified, he lost $450 in wages. Between 1927 and

He testified he had been in the high pressure department but was demoted to the sulphate work because he refused to sign a paper stating he would have nothing further to do with the union. He is paid 62 cents an hour and the union is seeking to have that raised to 99 cents an hour. Members of the union are asking

ALL GERMAN MOTOR VEHICLES TO BE TESTED FOR ARMY USE

General Inspection to Determine Suitability for Requisitioning Them in Emergency.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Germany announced a nationwide "motor muster" yesterday. Motorists and commercial drivers were advised to watch for the date of a general inspection of all motor vehicles, designed to determine their suitability for army use in emergency.

The population was enjoined to save its money to achieve "freedom and bread," which was taken to mean the savings will be used to further unemployment projects, including rearmament aspects.

It also was announced research workers of the Seamens' Industrial Works had discovered a method of plating gold, silver and other metals with a sort of aluminum oxide. This discovery, it was believed, opens a wider field for aluminum, which Germany can produce more readily than other metals.

Two Killed by Auto Fumes.
MARENGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—Peter J. Berg, 58 years old, and Francis McGuire, 31, were found dead of automobile exhaust fumes in Berg's garage yesterday. The bodies were found in the front seat of Berg's car by Police Chief Fred Nelson and Charles McGuire, a brother of one of the dead men. The ignition of the car was turned on and the garage doors were closed. Nelson said he thought the men had fallen asleep after driving into the garage early in the morning.

Increases ranging from 5 to 30 per cent, retroactive to July 17, when the gas house workers settled their strike. Another arbitration board recently rejected a 10 per cent wage demand of gas company employees not affiliated with the union.

4 KILLED WHEN AIR LINER FALLS IN TEST FLIGHT

13-Passenger Plane Crashes on Hilltop Near Cheyenne, Wyo., After Being Overhauled.

By the Associated Press.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 31.—Four men were killed when a 13-passenger airplane on a test flight, crashed on a low knoll six miles south of here last night.

The victims, who had taken the United Air Lines plane on what was to have been a leisurely cruise through rough weather, were:

M. T. Arnold, 35 years old, chief of test pilots for the United Air Lines at Cheyenne.

Manley G. Cohn, 32, veteran air service pilot, of Denver, formerly of Sheridan, Wyo.

Edward Yantis, about 28, of United Air Lines instrument crew, Cheyenne.

Harold Kaufman, 21, apprentice instrument man of United Air Lines, Cheyenne.

About 20 persons saw the crash. Burned After Explosions.

The plane had been aloft about 25 minutes when the motor began to sputter. Two minutes later the plane plummeted with an explosion, bounded high into the air with a second explosion, and fell in a mass of flames.

W. P. Hoare, manager of the air line offices here, said immediate inspection failed to determine the cause of the crash.

The plane, he said, was a Boeing twin-engine passenger which had been taken off a regular transport run and reconditioned in the shops here. The flight was a routine test flight, he explained, such as all ships of the line are given following the routine overhauling and before they are again placed in service.

Wreckage Guarded.

Company guards stood over the wreckage throughout the night, in frigid winds to keep the debris intact as curious crowds beat a trail to the hilltop.

Meanwhile, Frank Caldwell of Chicago, general manager of the line and a Department of Commerce investigator flew here to conduct the inquiry.

The air tragedy was the second in the Cheyenne area this month. On Oct. 7, a giant plane crashed 13 miles west of here, killing 12 persons. The disaster last night was 15 miles from the site of the previous crash, in the same sort of hill-studded terrain.

Hoare said snow was falling when the ship took off, but there were no blizzard conditions. During the half hour the plane was in the air, the temperature slumped rapidly and was at the zero mark at the site of the crash.

Yantis' parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Yantis of Liberty, Mo. His wife was at Cheyenne at the time of the crash.

Kaufman is survived by his widow, his mother, Mrs. C. M. Yoey; two brothers, Robert and Edward; and two sisters, Marion and Carol Kaufman, all of Cheyenne.

Surviving Cohen are his widow, Mrs. Pearl Cohen of Denver, and their two sons, Graydon, 9, and Harry, 8. His parents live at Sheridan, Wyo.

Arnold is survived by his wife.

OLIN AND LEWIS EQUAL CHOICES FOR TONIGHT'S TITLE BOUT

Champion and Negro Challenger Are Fit For 15-Round Bout

By W. J. McGoogan.

Bob Olin, New York, will defend his world's light heavyweight boxing championship in a 15-round bout at The Arena tonight against the challenger who is rated No. 1 in the boxing world—John Henry Lewis, Arizona, Negro, in the first world title contest held in St. Louis in many years.

For about two weeks the men have been in St. Louis putting the finishing touches to their training and to all outward appearances, at least, they seem to be in perfect condition to do their best.

Despite the fact that Lewis scored a victory over Olin in a non-title match in California last spring, there has been a decided shift of opinion among those familiar with the fight game here in the past few days in favor of Olin retaining his title.

Olin Very Rugged. It is based on the fact that the champion has trained well, is in excellent spirits and seems to be too rugged for the Negro over the long route.

At the same time there are plenty of Lewis backers who feel that his better boxing will turn the tide in his favor and that he will be declared the winner at the end of 15 rounds.

There is little betting on the result, but two bookmakers are quoted as laying 4 to 5 and take your pick, while another is reported as laying 7 to 5 with Olin the favorite.

Neither man is undefeated and neither possesses a killing punch, judging from the past records, which show that Olin in 65 bouts has won 46, 19 by knockouts, 27 on decisions, has lost 13, fought five draws and was knocked out once.

Lewis, in 40 contests, has won 34, 19 by knockouts, lost three and has fought three draws.

Olin has been boxing professionally since 1923, going into the money ranks shortly after winning the New York Golden Gloves championship, while Lewis only turned professional 1931.

Among the men to win over Olin besides Lewis, are Charley Massers, Tony Shueco, Al Gainer and Joe Banovic, while Lewis has dropped verdicts to Maxie Rosenbloom twice and to Jim Braddock.

Physically, the men are about evenly matched. The weight limit of the class is 175 pounds and Lewis scaled 174½, while Olin, 173, when they weighed in at the Business Men's Gymnasium this afternoon. Olin is 27 years of age and Lewis is 21.

Both prizes were pronounced by Dr. Joseph F. Mayer, commission examiner, as in perfect physical condition, and in shape to give their best efforts, as he found them Monday in a preliminary looking over.

The champion has a reputation of being an in-and-out fighter, that is,

Holder of Championship Is Rough and Rugged; Rival Is the Clever Boxer

Olin is a rough, rugged type of fighter who keeps relentlessly after his foe and takes many punches to land one. Lewis is a boxer of the clever type who stays with a left hand then occasionally lashes out with his right.

The promoters have arranged for Joe Louis, sensational Detroit Negro heavyweight, to appear and referee a lightweight match between two Negro boys, Holman Williams and Andy Bundy, billed as the Negro lightweight championship.

Louis is expected to be in John Henry's corner, where also will be Jack Blackburn, Negro trainer of Joe Louis, who has supervised John Henry's training for more than a week.

Also on the card is a lightweight contest between Max Massey, Philadelphia veteran, and Jimmy Garrison of Kansas City in eight rounds, while in another eight-round bout Everett Williams, a Sioux City featherweight, is to box Paul Estrada of Kansas City.

Nightmare has appeared here before and on the recent Canerini-Chonally card fought a fine bout with Paul Lester of Indianapolis, a contest which many spectators thought was the best on the card.

Joe Parks, St. Louis light heavyweight, will make his first start here in some time in the six-round opening bout with Marty Sampson, New York. Both have acted as Olin's sparring partners since the champion has been training here.

To Name Referee. The referee will be appointed by Ernest E. Oakes, Missouri Athletic Commissioner for this district, who likely will confer with the managers of the two men after the weighing in this afternoon. No doubt the referee, as well as the two judges, will be from St. Louis, although there is a possibility that if no agreement is reached on a local referee a man may be brought in from Chicago. The managers of the two boxers cannot name the official, but may make reasonable objections to any they think unfit to be the third man in the ring.

The bouts are under the auspices of the Jackson Johnson Jr. post of the American Legion, of which Ed Byrnes is matchmaker, but the real promoters are understood to be Benny Greenberg and Lew Raymond, who have handled previous ones here before.

Olin is being guaranteed $15,000, according to the contract on file in the commission office, while Lewis is to get 12½ per cent of the gate. The sum to be paid Olin is the largest ever guaranteed a boxer.

(130) vs. Paul Estrada, Kansas City (121½), eight rounds; Joe Parks, St. Louis (167) vs. Marty Sampson, New York (165½), six rounds.

one who boxes well one time and badly the next time, and his record seems to bear out this reputation, despite the fact that he contends that most of his defeats have been suffered because of sickness or injuries due to matters outside the ring.

Wants to Keep Title. Olin now contends that he believes the day of big purses in the boxing game is just around the corner again due to the increase in interest in boxing brought about by the sensational rise of Joe Louis, and for this reason he is particularly anxious to keep his title and perhaps for the same reason Lewis is just as anxious to win it.

The bout promises to be a battle between a puny Olin, a boxer, Lewis, when they met before, reports stated that Lewis won seven rounds rather handily but that Olin came strong after that and was going strongly at the finish.

It is believed that Lewis will have the better of early fighting tonight but that if Olin can withstand the early storm that he will come on and win in the end. There is little talk of a knockout and the only guesses are that if one is scored Lewis will score it.

The champion has a reputation of being an in-and-out fighter, that is, here, at least in modern times.

The promoters have contended that with the reasonable seat prices they have set, they expect the show to draw 20,000 persons and a gate in excess of $30,000, but these estimates may be optimistic.

That interest is being displayed in the championship bout outside the city is evidenced by the fact that Mike Jacobs, who has moved to the fringes as a bootlegger, promotion man, among them Ed Van Every, veteran boxing writer of New York, and two or three tentative reservations from Chicago.

There will be no radio broadcast of the title fight, the promoters have announced.

Julian Black, co-manager with John Roxborough of Joe Louis, arrived in the city last night to attend the title battle this evening. Louis did not accompany Black, but will arrive here at 7:15 p. m. from Louisville.

Mike Jacobs Here. Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Club of New York, promoter of the Louis-Baer million dollar fight and holder of a contract on the services of Joe Louis, will attend the bout tonight with a view to using the winner later, if he makes a satisfactory showing.

Will Broadcast Game. By the Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—The Ohio State-Notre Dame football game Saturday will be broadcast by WOSU, WSBT at South Bend and through WLW to the Mutual Broadcasting System.

By the Associated Press. DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 31.—Bill DeLaney, catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, fighting off a possible attack of pneumonia, underwent his sixth operation today for the removal of pleural fluid from the right lung.

Dr. Samuel C. Crispin, the attending physician, said DeLaney's condition is improving and his appetite is picking up at an astonishing rate. Dr. Crispin announced that six pints of fluid had been taken from DeLaney's lung.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Some light on the question of whether last summer's revival of "million dollar" boxing gates—as evidenced by the Joe Louis-Max Baer scrap—was due to new interest in boxing or merely to the rise of the Detroit bomber, may come tomorrow when Primo Carnera and Walter Neusel open the indoor season at Madison Square Garden.

Before he ran afoul of Louis' punishment, Carnera was something of a drawing card among the heavyweights. Neusel's greatest venture into big-time battling came when he was knocked out by Max Schmeling.

Just Another Bout. As far as title aspirations and the like are concerned, it will be just another heavyweight fight unless one or the other can win decisively enough to hop into the ranks of the contenders. As an indication of public interest, however, the attendance may be of considerable importance.

Between them they've managed to work up to go, finally settled at 10 rounds, also helped to build up interest. Carnera's pilot, Louis Sorel, once threatened to call the whole thing off because he claimed to have signed for 12 rounds instead of 10.

The supporting card includes a meeting between Tony Galento, Eddie Mader, and one between Max Baer of Chicago, who once trimmed Louis as an amateur, and Bob Pastor of New York.

By the Associated Press. BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The board of governors of the International Hockey League returned yesterday its proposed working agreement between the two circuits. The board objected to the agreement, a renewal of that signed by the two leagues Sept. 24, 1930, because it made Frank Calder, president of the National circuit, sole judge in the event of a dispute over ownership of a player and allowed the International League club in a city the National desired to enter only $10,000 compensation. The board asked $25,000.

In addition, the International loop heads objected to the Montreal Canadiens having the sole right to all players of French-Canadian origin born in Quebec.

They'll Battle for a World Title Here, Tonight

Fighter Floored by a Low Blow, In Battle Tonight, Must Get Up And Fight or Lose on Knockout

A foul will not decide the light-heavyweight championship bout between Bob Olin, defending champion, and John Henry Lewis, challenger, tonight when they meet in their 15-round match at the Arena.

The Missouri State Athletic Commission passed a special ruling at its meeting last night in the Statler Hotel, that decision cannot be rendered on the basis of a foul, but that the delivery of a low blow shall automatically cost the contestant delivering the blow the loss of the round.

The action was taken by the Missouri commission yesterday, following talk that both fighters were bony punches. The managers of both fighters were present and the action was agreeable to them.

The new ruling is similar to that of the New York Athletic Commission and those of other states. In those states new protective equipment for the boxers is being used that makes it almost impossible for the boxer to be seriously injured by a low blow. Boxers are more careful under this rule, as a foul will cost them the round.

The commission also lifted the indefinite suspensions of Sam Plan and Art Wink, co-managers of Barney Ross, welterweight champion, the ruling being effective today.

Commissioner Harrison suggested, and the commissioner passed, a resolution that all promoters may be awarded dates for shows 30 days in advance. This applies to wrestling as well as boxing.

The victory put the Lions back in the Western division race. It was their third victory in six starts and they now are in a tie for third place with the Chicago Bears.

A 50-yard pass that caught the Redskins unawares accounted for the first touchdown near the end of the first period. With four minutes to go, Ernie Cadell swept wide of the line and ran on his own 40-yard line and passed to Schneller, who was all alone, 15 yards from the goal line. He literally walked over. Frank Christensen placekicked the extra point.

Midway in the final chapter, a pass, Pressnell to Edging, put the Lions on the 25-yard line and Pressnell drove through to the 16-yard line. Clark followed to the 12-yard line and Edging ran for a touchdown and a first down.

A pass, Pressnell to Clark, advanced the ball to the four-yard line and it was third down and three yards to go when Clark was knocked out of bounds on the one-yard stripe.

Then Olin, who had been in the center for a touchdown and Clark added the extra point via a drop kick.

The fog was so heavy near the end of the game it was impossible for the fans to see the players, and officials stood in close to watch the plays.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Some light on the question of whether last summer's revival of "million dollar" boxing gates—as evidenced by the Joe Louis-Max Baer scrap—was due to new interest in boxing or merely to the rise of the Detroit bomber, may come tomorrow when Primo Carnera and Walter Neusel open the indoor season at Madison Square Garden.

Before he ran afoul of Louis' punishment, Carnera was something of a drawing card among the heavyweights. Neusel's greatest venture into big-time battling came when he was knocked out by Max Schmeling.

Just Another Bout. As far as title aspirations and the like are concerned, it will be just another heavyweight fight unless one or the other can win decisively enough to hop into the ranks of the contenders. As an indication of public interest, however, the attendance may be of considerable importance.

Between them they've managed to work up to go, finally settled at 10 rounds, also helped to build up interest. Carnera's pilot, Louis Sorel, once threatened to call the whole thing off because he claimed to have signed for 12 rounds instead of 10.

The supporting card includes a meeting between Tony Galento, Eddie Mader, and one between Max Baer of Chicago, who once trimmed Louis as an amateur, and Bob Pastor of New York.

By the Associated Press. BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The board of governors of the International Hockey League returned yesterday its proposed working agreement between the two circuits. The board objected to the agreement, a renewal of that signed by the two leagues Sept. 24, 1930, because it made Frank Calder, president of the National circuit, sole judge in the event of a dispute over ownership of a player and allowed the International League club in a city the National desired to enter only $10,000 compensation. The board asked $25,000.

In addition, the International loop heads objected to the Montreal Canadiens having the sole right to all players of French-Canadian origin born in Quebec.

Dempsey's 'Discoverer' Picks Olin.

RED "WINDY" WINSOR, one of the early managers of Jack Dempsey, who lays claim to the Old Mauler by right of "discovery," writes to put himself on record as picking Bob Olin to retain the light-heavyweight championship, in his fight with John Henry Lewis, tonight.

Winsor, who is interested in the fight because he himself is managing a "challenger" George Simpson, saw Olin fight Lewis in California, and the veteran's judgment, based on that battle, is interesting. He says:

"I saw the match here (San Francisco) and Olin was winning in the ninth and tenth rounds. If the fight had been for 15 rounds, Olin would sure have won, as he was outgunning and outsmarting Lewis. At the time of this fight Olin claimed to have been sick."

"If he is in condition he should retain his title against Lewis. For the first six or seven rounds he may look bad; but watch him come down the stretch! He is a stretch runner and a good one, game as a pebble and knows how to fight."

"I would like to challenge the winner of Thursday's fight for my boy, George Simpson, the most colorful fighter now boxing on the Pacific Coast."

Winsor, who claims to have been the discoverer of Jack Dempsey, was Dempsey's adviser for a short period, prior to the time Doc Kearns took charge of the Mauler and brought him East.

Winsor, a veteran handler of fighters, also handled the heavyweight "hope," Tony Fuenteb, who knocked skippy for a time and then fell, following the "confession" of Fred Fulton that he had taken a dive to Fuenteb.

The confession was discredited, but Fuenteb faded out, a couple of years later.

22 years of age until next May, all the drizzling care of fame and fortune has not unbalanced this tawny young man, who has kept his mental poise with commendable control.

If he maintains it, he may, some day really be rated at the top with the mighty men of history—John L. Sullivan, Corbett, Old Egg Fitz, Jim Jeffries and Jack Dempsey.

So, Joe—keep your feet on the ground and avoid the White Lights. Then your shadow will increase.

Classifying Joe Louis. LOUIS is not yet the world champion; however, because "Inquirers" already are wanting to know if the experts think he is the greatest fighter of all time.

That's the anticipating the story—better wait until Joe wins the title or satisfies the world about the now famous query: "Can Joe take it?"

Jack Sharkey said a mouthful when he remarked: "How can they say Louis is a great fighter when nobody has given him a fight?"

There are things not yet known about Louis, due to the brevity of his career and the fact that he has not faced a professional able to hurt him, to any extent. The present crop of heavyweights hasn't been able to make Joe perspire. However—

What One Expert Says. HERE'S what one of the veteran fight authorities of the ring, Tom Andrews, thinks of the matter. Andrews has handled fighters for many years and has written of them for many more; he has led invasions by American boxers of Europe and Australia. He has seen all the famous big fellows for the past 40 or 50 years.

Answering a question: "Is Louis better than Dempsey, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and other famous champions of earlier times?" Andrews writes:

"I have seen all the great fighters and I cannot say Louis is the greatest of all time. However, Louis is entitled to consideration. Our choice for an all-time champion would be James J. Jeffries in his prime."

"From what I have seen of the two I would pick Dempsey to out-punch Louis. He's the harder hitter and with his weaving style he would have had a great chance to whip Louis."

"John L. Sullivan fought only one glove fight—that was when he was old and worn out. In a bare-knuckle fight John L. would have whipped them all. It was never much more than a middleweight, but with his shifts and his dancing, he has given Louis plenty of trouble."

"Corbett, extremely fast and clever, would have had a first-class chance of outpunching Louis and so would Jack Johnson, in limited round bouts, although Louis would be my choice in a finish battle. In my opinion Louis would defeat Tunney, despite the fact that Tunney beat Dempsey."

Too bad we can't see Louis opposed to a fighter of the quality of any one of the past greats named—we'd know more about Joe's right to rank with the all-time greats of the ring.

McKENDREE TEAM IS READY FOR IMPORTANT GAME WITH TEACHERS

Coach Paul Waldorf's McKendree College Bearcats of Lebanon, Ill., impressive in their past two decisive conference victories, will be girding for a former teammate next Saturday when they meet the Carbondale Teachers in McKendree's thirteenth annual homecoming game.
Dale "Fuzzy" Hill, a star on McKendree's freshman team three years ago, is the nucleus of Southern Illinois Teachers' running attack this year. Last year the 145-pound halfback took advantage of his former brother gridders and squelched them almost single-handed, 19-12, at Carbondale.
The McKendree mentor spent almost two hours yesterday in replenishing the effect of aerial attack which has played such a prominent part in placing the Bearcats in a three-way tie for leadership in the Little Nineteen Conference. The passing offense is centered about Kenneth "Spit" Wilson and Johnny Rauth, hard-blo'ing quarter-back.
"Chuck" Norris, sensation of the team this year, will be given every opportunity to hit the line Saturday, Coach Waldorf announced.

By James M. Gould.

Unless he decides on a last-minute change, Coach Muellerleile of the St. Louis University Billikens will send 10 of the 11 men who started last week against Arkansas State in to oppose Mississippi University when the teams meet tomorrow night at Walsh Stadium.
The new starter, Joe Vollmer, replaces Al Banfield at left guard. Vollmer, heavier than Banfield by 10 pounds, started in several previous games this season. With Vollmer in the line, the Billikens and "Ole Miss" will be nearly equal in team weight, the difference in favor of the visitors being 22 pounds a man.

Otherwise the starting team has Mitchell and Fitzgerald at the ends, Russell and Cianciolo at the tackles, Putnam at the other guard and Krause at center on the line, while Lou Drone at quarter, Capt. Hudson and Wood at the halves and Kloppeier at fullback, complete the backfield. There was rejoicing today at St. Louis U. because of the practical certainty that Gus Cianciolo, veteran tackle, would be able to play tomorrow night. Gus was bothered by a leg infection and there was fear he would be unable to participate in the festivities, but the infection cleared up and the dependable lineman is scheduled to be at his post.

Southerners Use Passes.

Scouting the Mississippi-Marquette game last week, Coach Muellerleile noted that the Southern eleven tried many passes. True, they weren't very successful with them, but they tried them in character. St. Louis defense this year hasn't been of the highest class, the Billikens are spending hours in practice against freshman heavies tossing from Mississippi formations. Several of these are likely in character, some including first a "shove" before a lateral. Against the freshmen, the varsity has been fairly successful in stopping long passes, but some of the shorter ones worked too often to suit Muellerleile.

With his team in excellent physical condition, the Billiken coach won't take any chances with scrimmages this week. There will be some of the dummy variety today to finish up the real practice, but no man-to-man warfare. Incidentally, Muellerleile rather deplores the stand taken by followers of the team that Mississippi will prove a weak opponent. "What is the issue no question that the Billikens looked better against Marquette than Mississippi did, the coach maintains that Marquette was much better against Mississippi than against St. Louis.

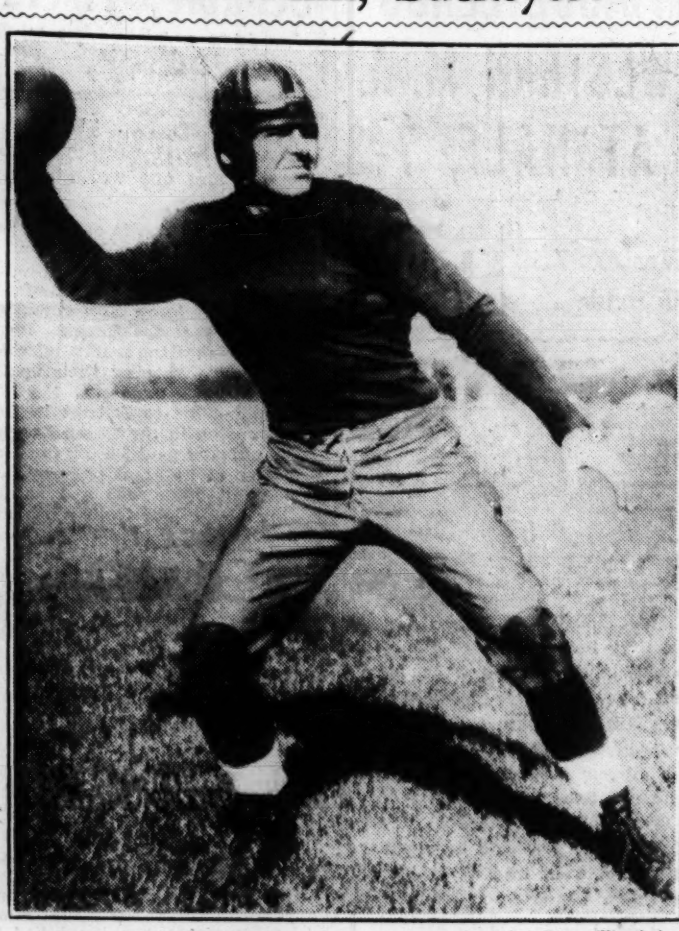

The presence of Clarence Hapes at full-back for "Ole Miss" gives the Southern eleven its slight weight advantage for Clarence tips the old beam at 225 pounds. Despite this weight, he is fast and a dependable ball-carrier and passer. The Billiken line has about a three-pounds-a-man edge over the Mississippi forwards with the Mississippi backs averaging 111 pounds more than their Billiken opponents.
Nunn is a Fine Passer.
St. Louis has had real success with passing-plays this season. It may be that Johnny Nunn will make his entry into the contest soon after the whistle blows as Johnny is an accomplished heaver of the football and Muellerleile would like, if possible, to get the jump on the opposition. The left side of the Mississippi line is heavier than the right side and therefore the Billiken running plays are quite likely to be aimed at the weak side with occasional shots at the strong wing. If St. Louis does take to the air for most of its offense, spectators are likely to be looking at many floating footballs for everything points to the employment of the air-lines by the Southerners.

Two systems will be opposed. The Billikens use the Notre Dame system with some few Muellerleile variations while Mississippi favors the double wing-back of Pop Warner. Ed Walker, Mississippi coach, was a player under Pop Warner at Stanford and, naturally, he adopted the "Old Man's" system.

AMERICAN HORSES RUN TWO, THREE IN NEWMARKET CLASSIC

Dugout Generosity.

BERT giving $1000 to Charley Gelbert last year and a full share of their 1935 world series money to Pat Crawford, the Cardinals were hailed throughout the baseball world as a team of unusual generosity. They can thank Frank Francis Frisch for putting them in such a favorable light. Frisch grew up under the McGraw influence. Frank now has spent more time with the Cardinals than he did with the Giants, but while he was learning about baseball and the world, he was in the McGraw school.

McGraw was an uncompromising taskmaster and disciplinarian, but a man of unusual generosity. "I thought I had the dumbest captain in the world when I had that so-and-so," he frequently told Frisch. "He was a lumberhead. You are a concrete head. Concrete is much harder than lumber. It won't absorb anything. You are the last word in stupidity."

That was when something went wrong in a ball game. Perhaps the pitcher threw a ball inside when he should have kept it outside. Perhaps Frisch had warned the pitcher about the particular batter in the previous inning. He thought the pitcher would remember for a few innings. The pitcher didn't remember, and it was Capt. Frisch who was raked over the coals in the clubhouse barbershop that always followed disaster born of a mistake.

Rewards for Good Work.

"It was tough to take that abuse," Frisch reminisced one day in the dugout. "But it was fine to open your locker two or three days later and find a check for a hundred bucks for driving in the winning run or stealing a base in the pinch. Making a play that McGraw thought was a smart one. There was only one McGraw. What a man he was!"
It was Frisch who guided the Cardinals into the playoffs and then to the world series. He told the players to consider the importance of public opinion.
"Don't ever let the baseball world yell at you that you are a lot of cheap bums," he warned them. "This is something that you ought to do for the other fellow, but you're doing it for yourself, too. Be big and the baseball world will accept you as big. Be cheap and the world will jeer and get you down."

Of course, there were a few objectors when it was proposed to give $1000 to Charley Gelbert, who hadn't even had on a baseball shoe during the 1934 season and when it was suggested that Pat Crawford, still in bed, with a permanently stiff hip joint, could use and should be given a full share of the 1935 swag. But the decent majority—and it was almost unanimous—whipped down opposition. But it can be told that one Cardinal player held out to almost the bitter end. His final wall was that "if you're going to give money to people that need it, how about giving my father a full share. He sure could use it!"
Hornsbey and the Browns.
THE latest rumor about the Browns is that Rogers Hornsbey's new contract, providing for a substantial increase in salary, also provides that in a contemplated reorganization, the Rajah is to take over extra office duties, functioning as business manager as well as director of the St. Louis American League forces on the field. However, the rumor is still very much alive that Bob

PROPHETS SEEM CONFIDENT OHIO STATE WILL WIN

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31.—Coach Francis A. Schmidt, watching the Ohio State freshman squad complete forward passes against the highly touted Ohio State regulars, moaned: "You guys will have to do better than that, for them Notre Dames are better than our freshmen."

And when the secret practice was over, he moaned again.
"We're having such a tough time trying to do up a way to stop Notre Dame that we can't find time to practice our offense."

The dopesters today were talking about Ohio State winning by a pair of touchdowns or more in this alleged football "battle of the century."

1. The Irish showed their hand against Pittsburgh under the eyes of Er Layed scouts. The Bucks: "You ain't seen nothin' yet."
2. "Jumping Joe" Williams' flying feet will offset Bill Shakespeare's phenomenal punting.
3. Ohio State's decided factor of reserve—big men who can go in their fresh and fighting.

Ergo, said the dopesters, Notre Dame, two touchdowns, Ohio State four or more. "Slow and slippery when wet. Proceed at your own risk. Don't bet your rent."

Notre Dame will start one and possibly two Irishmen in the big game.
Jim Martin, right guard, is the one proud son of Erin virtually sure to be in the starting lineup. The second, a possibility because early season injuries may keep him out, is Mike Layden, right halfback and brother of the Notre Dame coach, Elmer Layden.

The rest of the "Fighting Irish" starting lineup reads like a League of Nations poll with a half-dozen nationalities represented.
The general opinion was that Coach Layden would use the same lineup that opened the winning game against Pittsburgh: Wayne Miller, left end; Dick Pfefferle, left tackle; John Lauter, left guard; Fred Scott, center; Martin, right guard; Frank Kopeck, right tackle; Marty Peters, right end; Wally Fromhart, quarterback; Bill Shakespeare, left half; Wojchowski, right half, and Fred Carideo, fullback.

Layden, who learned his football under the late Knute Rockne and starred as a member of the great four horsemen, plans to use straight football against the Buckeye powerhouse. It is strange but true that the Irish haven't been given more than a half-dozen new plays all season.

Cubs Should Win Pennant Next Three Years, Herman Says

By The Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—ILLY HERMAN, second baseman of the Chicago Cubs said at a banquet in his honor here last night that "the Cubs with their great young team of hustling players should win the National League pennant for the next three or four years."

Herman, a native of nearby New Albany, Ind., was presented with a set of silver dishes, the gift of baseball fans in this section.
"The Cubs' second baseman said that in his opinion Manager Charley Grimm had used "absolutely perfect judgment" in allowing Jurgens and Larry French to bat in the ninth inning of the eighth world series game. Herman said "a number of people" have asked him what he thought of this strategy."

St. Edward's Eleven Wins.

Conzelman Expects Bluejays to Attack Bears From the Air

By J. Roy Stockton.
Jimmy Conzelman, expecting the Washington University Bears football game with Creighton Saturday afternoon to develop into a battle of forward passes, sent his squad through a long serial drill last night and will devote much of the available time this evening to a passing attack and a defense against thrusts from the air.

Creighton combines a running game with passes, the familiar Notre Dame system. With Fullback Vinciquerra standing out as the man the Bears will have to stop, Conzelman and his assistants are not paying any attention to the lugubrious tales from Omaha about the crippled condition of the Bluejays and are impressing on the athletes the fact that Creighton, having defeated St. Louis University, 13 to 0, is certain to be a powerful enemy.

According to the Omaha "bear" stories, Coach Marchmont Schwartz will find it difficult to put eleven men on the field. Klem is out for the season, Bokmuller, Vana and Holland will be handicapped by injuries, and there will be a shortage of reserves.
However, if there were any tendency to accept the hard luck story, it would be made unimportant by the fact that the Bears will have to take the field without several of their best men. As has been told, Ray Hobbs and Irving Londy will not be ready, and while Don Wimberly and Chick Droke were out last evening, running through signals, Coach Conzelman said he would not use them in Saturday's game.

It is very likely that halfbacks who have not figured in previous aerial attacks by the Bears will try to do a bit of passing against the Bluejays. Joe Bukant, an excellent football caster, has done most of the throwing for the Bears this year, but against Michigan State Nate Tutinsky and Mutt Martin were on the tossing end of several completed passes, and it was decided to split up the passing assignment against Creighton.

CREIGHTON IS FORCED INDOORS BY RAINS TO PRACTICE FOR BEARS

By The Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 31.—A driving rainstorm forced Creighton University's Bluejays inside for a skull session yesterday and Coach Marchmont Schwartz said the rain washed away all his hopes of victory over Washington University at St. Louis Saturday.

"We won't be prepared for Washington," Schwartz said. "Our plans called for a long defensive session last night, but this rain ruined the program."
Herb Haakinson, assistant coach, who scouted the Washington-Michigan State game, told the squad the Bears have an abundance of power, both in the backfield and on the line, but warned them to be concerned particularly about Bob Hudgens, ace Bear ball carrier.

If weather permits, Schwartz said, the Bluejays will be put through a long workout today before enroute for St. Louis. He indicated the drill would be confined to defensive work since he feels Creighton's offense is ready.

Washington's 60-piece band, which was indignant because the institution wouldn't send it to East Lansing, Mich., or buy it any new uniforms, has settled its difficulties.

Boxer Ordered to Give 15 Percent of Purse to Charity

By The Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—THE California Athletic Commission yesterday "sentenced" Hank Bath, Fort Morgan (Colo.) heavyweight, to fight Terris Hill here Nov. 12, with 15 per cent of the proceeds to charity, as atonement for the recent fiasco at the Olympia Auditorium here.

On that occasion Hill was not allowed to go into the ring on the grounds he was intoxicated, and Bath, Jack Kearns' new protégé, met his sparring partner, Ralph Norwood, instead, knocking him out in one round.
The commission announced that the temporary suspension of Bath, Hill, Kearns and Jimmy Murray, manager of Hill, would be lifted as soon as Bath and Hill met in a regulation bout.

Flyers to Meet Rochester Club In Hockey Game

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
GALT, Ontario, Oct. 31.—The old guard has at last stepped back into the limelight in the St. Louis Flyers' hockey camp here. At least one of the players has, anyway. He is Mickey Murray, the goalie, who has been one of the big stars of the Mount City sextet for the past two seasons.

While the newcomers—both young amateurs just coming up and veterans who are seeking berths on the squad—continued to show flashy style as the skaters went through two spirited workouts yesterday at the Galt Municipal rink, Mickey loomed like a Goliath guarding the "first team" net.
That he will again be on hand at his old position and may be one of the leading goal minders in the American Association this season, was presaged by the way in which Murray leaped and dodged in warding off shots sent at him from all angles.

Galt is Mickey's home during the interim between hockey seasons, and it was a cheering crowd of locals who gathered on the sidelines to watch their "local boy make good."
Frank Ruppenthal, owner, and Alex "Shrimp" McPherson have delayed for another day the selection of the squad which will go against the Rochester team here tomorrow night and which will then begin intensive training for the defense of the Flyers' American Association title.

BRUNSMANN SETS TWO MARKS IN CLASSIC TENPIN LEAGUE

BUDWEISER AGE GETS 290-GAME AND TOTAL OF 753 FOR THREE

Ervin Brunsmann of the Budweisers established two records in the Classic Bowling League on the Washington alleys last night when he put over a 753 total for an average of 251 and a high single game of 290. Brunsmann opened the third game of the series with a spare and then put across 11 consecutive strikes for his high score. His other individual counts were 239 and 204.

With Brunsmann showing the way, the Budweisers had games of 1097, 952 and 1128 for a 3177 total, to win two out of three from the league-leading Hermanns. The losers, led by Sam Garofalo, with 623, totaled 2987. Harry Frederic had 651 and Ray Newton 637 for the winners to give Brunsmann his greatest assistance.

Chris Sottrell, who is leading the league with an average of 212 for the season, scored 711, with games of 241, 253 and 215, as the Old Judge five totaled 3142 to win three straight from the Rogers Recreation. Oscar Whitehead totaled 685 to help Sottrell, while Lee Badaracco counted 606 to top the losers.

The Althoffs rolled 3151 to win the odd game from the Charles J. Krohn with 2980. In the final game, the Krohns won, 1053 to 1023. Sittler, 699; Techter, 649, and Shirley, 635, were the high men for the winners, while Willis, 678, and Penconeu, 638, did the heavy gunning for the losers.

The Silver Seals, after a poor start, came through with games of 1006 and 1096 for a total of 3020 to win two out of three from the Say It With Flowers. Windy Glaub, 656, and Buzz Tonkovic, 664, were the team leaders.

Following Sottrell in individual averages for the season are Garofalo with 209 and Frank Boehm, 206.

UNBEATEN COLUMBIA HIGH TEAM OPPOSES ST. CHARLES TOMORROW

The undefeated Columbia (Mo.) High School football team, with young Bob Faurot in the lineup, will oppose St. Charles High on the latter's field, under flood lights, tomorrow night. St. Charles has won four games, tied one and lost one. Bob Faurot is a brother of Don Faurot, coach of Missouri University. Among the victims of the Columbia team is Mexico (Mo.) High, which was defeated by a 25-0 score.

St. Charles' single defeat this season was suffered at the hands of Kirkwood last Saturday. Since that time, Coach C. W. Duerger has given a lot of attention to strengthening the line and expects an improved showing from his Pirates tomorrow night.

SUIT AGAINST ONE OF LOUIS' MANAGERS

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Julius Brody, former business partner of Julian Black, co-manager of heavyweight Joe Louis, filed an amended complaint in Circuit Court yesterday charging that Black used the assets of their partnership to obtain a half interest in the management of the sensational Negro boxer.

The bill alleges that $5000 of the partnership's assets were used by Black to obtain his interest in Louis from John Roxborough of Detroit, July 10, 1934. The suit demands that Black pay Brody half the money he has received from his connection, an amount that would equal one-twelfth of Louis' net earnings over a year and four months.

THIS WEEK'S

FOOTBALL

Maybe This Is The Year.

ONE of the most interesting games of the week-end is that scheduled at New Haven between the Blue of Yale and the Green of Dartmouth. Not only do the teams appear most evenly matched, but there also enters into the picture one of the most potent "Indian signs" in the history of football. It will be the nineteenth meeting of the two eleven in a series which started 51 years ago. Yet, in all that time, Dartmouth never has defeated Yale.

Old Eli has scored 15 victories in the series and, three times, the teams played each other to a standstill. A few years ago, Dartmouth was a heavy favorite but, when the final gun sounded, expert accountants figured out that the score was 33-33.

This year, Dartmouth again appears powerful, but Yale, beaten only by the Army, has had the harder competition and will at least be conceded an even chance of victory.

Ever Hear of Another?

PENALTIES are a part of football and necessarily so for, if officials let the players do as they please, there might be a flood of mayhem charges after many contests. For the spectator, too many penalties spoil the broth of the game and so, when fouls and the punishments therefor are few, a "fast game" results and everybody is satisfied.

But, players will get off side and backs will be in motion when the ball is passed. The temptation to hold an opponent sometimes is too much for even the cleanest linemen. So, penalties accrue and are inflicted. Cast back the old memory and see if you can remember when you saw a game in which neither side was penalized in a full-time contest.

Long time, probably, if you have any such memory. Well, there was one this year. It happened last Saturday when Carnegie Tech upset the football world in general and Purdue in particular. Jim Masker, the dean of Big Ten officials, refereed the game, and neither the Tartans nor Boiler-makers lost a yard in the 60 minutes of play.

Lafayette, You Are Game.

PERHAPS the 1935 Lafayette College football team isn't so very much as a team but, for gameness, the players are worthy of big medals. Already, they have absorbed beatings at the hands of Colgate and Pennsylvania and, in two weeks, they will be called on to furnish opposition to Yale on what originally was an open date for both teams. Getting wallowed in the regular season's schedule by out-of-your-class eleven is bad enough, let alone playing an extra game to take another trouncing. They say, but can do several things that Wilson isn't called upon to do. Moreover, the Bears claim Aggett is the better defensive player.

North and South.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY players have this year opposed two backs who, without much doubt, must be considered in nominations for places on any All-America for 1935. They are Aggett of Michigan State and Wilson of Southern Methodist. Probably, if a poll of the Bears were taken, the Northerner would get the call. He may be no faster than Wilson, they say, but can do several things that Wilson isn't called upon to do. Moreover, the Bears claim Aggett is the better defensive player.

Real Demoralization.

DOWN in West Virginia there is a high school football coach who, when he "shakes 'em" team surely "shakes 'em." This school team had been going badly in the first weeks of the season and, with each defeat, the coach got more and more peeved following an old coaching custom. Finally, the "big" game of the year came and this coach's club took a bad beating.

The next day, the coach changed his team from end to end, letting not a single player stay in position. He even included the water-boy in the shake-up for, he said, "Even the water-boy was terrible; right in the middle of the game he carried water to our opponents."

CHICAGO RACE SEASON TO END TODAY WITH LONG-DISTANCE EVENT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Railbirds with weak heads were warned to stay away from the closing feature of Chicago's long racing season at Sportsman's Park today.

The featured finale was a race of 2 1/4 miles around the half-mile track. Such a distance calls for the horses to pass the finish line five times on the journey.

Kentucky Moon won the marathon last year from a good field of turf tortoises, spotting his rivals almost a full lap and then winning by open twilight.

The Chicago District racing season, which opened May 1, was one of the most successful in years.

South Has Only One Undefeated Football Team

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 31.—The South may be without an undefeated major team for the first time in 11 years, when this dizzy football campaign closes late in November.

Dixie's last hope is North Carolina—an eleven that has not finished with a perfect record in 37 years. The Carolina Tarheels must clear four more hurdles if they are to uphold the South's streak of producing at least one undefeated eleven annually since 1924.

While Alabama, Tulane, Tennessee, Louisiana State, Vanderbilt and all other favorites were falling victims of startling reversals, North Carolina has won five straight games. The Tarheels turned back Wake Forest, Tennessee, Maryland, Davidson and Georgia Tech. They have yet to meet N. C. State, Virginia Military Institute, Duke and Virginia.

Dixie still boasts several other powerful teams, at least eight having reached the November stretch with only one defeat.

Auburn has been beaten only by Tennessee, Georgia, by Alabama, Louisiana State, by Mississippi, by Marquette, Alabama by Mississippi State, Clemson by Duke, N. C. State by Georgia and Mississippi State by Vanderbilt.

These ranks will be thinned further this week-end.

Auburn and L. S. U. clash at Baton Rouge in a game that may go a long way towards helping solve the Southeastern puzzle. Alabama must meet Kentucky in its comeback. Mississippi State faces the Army at West Point Saturday, and Mississippi invades St. Louis U. territory Friday night.

ALTON, Ill., Oct. 31.—Scoring its first touchdown of the 1935 campaign, McBride took a 7 to 3 half-time lead over Western Military Academy here this afternoon in the game that may determine the current champion of the Preparatory School League.

Western, which needed only a victory over McBride to retain its 1934 title, went into a 3 to 0 lead in the first quarter on Humphreys' field goal. The Cadets started a drive after Montooth recovered a fumble on Western's 33-yard line.

Bruno Tachann then went 28 yards around right end and on the next play passed 16 yards to Montooth. Tachann made 10 yards and another first down. Western picked up four yards on three plays and was penalized five yards for offside, putting the ball on McBride's 11-yard line. Humphreys then dropped back to the 20-yard mark and booted a perfect kick from placement.

A beautiful run-back of a punt started McBride on its way to its first points of the season. Saffa caught the ball in midfield and returned the kick 35 yards to Western's 15-yard line. Line plays and two passes from Evans to Horton moved the ball up to the one-yard line and Bob Murphy, recently returned to the lineup, carried it over. Evans flipped a pass to Horton for the extra point.

This game marked McBride's debut to the Prep League.

WELLSVILLE, Kan., Oct. 31.—For the third successive year, Lawrence House of Goodland romped home yesterday with the Kansas Corn-Husking title, out-bag-bagging 18 aspirants to the crown.

With 600 spectators watching, House tossed husked ears into his wagon for a net total of 24.51 bushels in the 80 minutes of competition.

Also for the third successive year Cecil Vining of Baldwin finished in second place behind House. His net total was 24.47 bushels.

House and Vining will represent Kansas in the National Contest at Fountain, Ind., Nov. 8.

Schuble, Tigers' First-String "Jockey," Is Released to Toledo

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Helene "Kid Boots" Schuble, the King Jester and No. 1 "Jockey" who "rode" the Detroit Tigers into two pennants and one world championship, won't be with the Detroit club next year.

Detroit sold Schuble outright yesterday to the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association for an unannounced sum. Some of the fans may not know he's gone, but it's certain that the Bengals themselves will miss the utility infielder credited with keeping their spirits high at crucial moments.

Schuble came to Detroit in 1929 from Houston in the Texas League, and the Tigers paid $35,000 for him. He looked like a great prospect, but his lack of endurance and erratic fielding kept him from a regular job in the Bengal infield.

But "Kid Boots," his teammates often agreed, earned his salary on the bench. He was the scourge of opposing players, and the only member of the Detroit club who dared to "kid" Manager Mickey Cochrane.

On one occasion in St. Louis, Jack Burns, Browns' first baseman, made a great stop of a drive by Cochrane, when the Tiger manager was in a batting slump and hitting but 250. "Hey, Jack," yelled Schuble, "you 250 hitters certainly don't help yourselves, do you?"

Schuble's caustic remarks were credited by Manager Cochrane with keeping the Tigers "on their toes," and Schuble was one of the most willing workers on the club. Pitching in batting practice regularly, he was given plenty of chance to play his first three years with Detroit, but muffed his opportunity by fielding misplays or wild throws.

"I quit reading the papers," he remarked once. "Every time I pick up a sheet it says 'Schuble boots another.'"

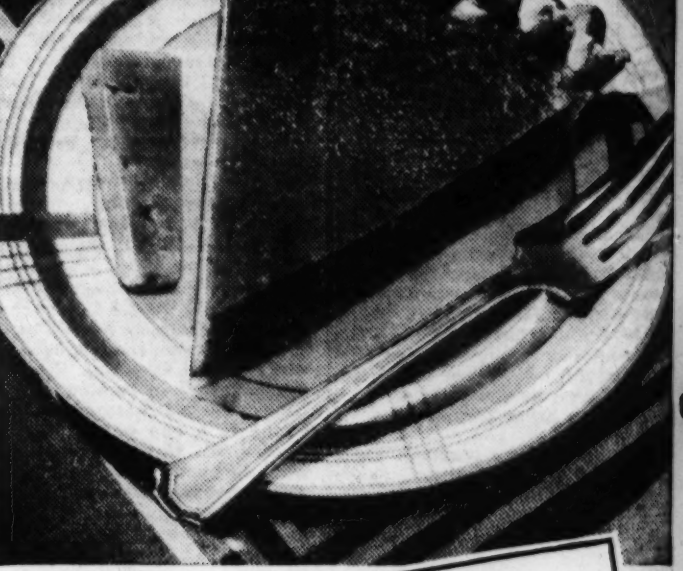

Schuble, although receiving a full share in each of the last two world series, played in fewer than 40 games.

JOE LOUIS TO FIGHT IN CHICAGO, JAN. 10; OPPONENT NOT NAMED

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Joe Louis, sensational Negro heavyweight, will fight in the Chicago Stadium Jan. 10 against an unnamed opponent, possibly Charley Retzlaff, Duluth puncher.

The January encounter, billed to go 10 rounds, fits into Louis' plans to box once a month in leading boxing centers of America until he gets a crack at James J. Braddock for the heavyweight title.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York, who holds an option on all Louis' bouts, arranged the match with the Chicago Stadium matchmaker, Nate Lewis. Jacobs also is making arrangements with Barney Ross of Chicago to fight the welterweight crown at Miami in January or February possible against Jimmy McLarnin again.

JEAN BART AND HOLLYWOOD ARE LIKELY CHOICES FOR THE EVENT

By the Associated Press.
PIMLICO, Md., Oct. 31.—The $25,000 Futurity, last of the waning Eastern season's rich stakes, will be renewed after a lapse of two years at Pimlico Saturday, with about a dozen juveniles entered for the one-and-one-sixteenth-mile test.

With virtually all the other big stake winners, including Red Rain, Tintagel and Coldstart, either not eligible or in retirement, Hollywood and Jean Bart stack up as the probable choices. They finished second and third, respectively, back of tintagel in the Belmont Futurity.

Wayne Wright, Rensburg (Idaho) veteran, and Joe Wagner of Lexington, Ky., apparently are determined to carry their battle for 1935 jockey honors right down to the end of the year. After yesterday's activity, Wright held a lead of two, 168 to 166. R. Neves is in third place with 156.

The entire active racing stable of C. V. Whitney will be campaigned in Florida this winter. Thomas J. Healey, veteran trainer of the horses carrying the famous light blue and brown silks, has applied for 40 stalls at Hialeah Park.

Although his luck in the last few weeks has not measured up to his early season successes, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt has a strangle hold on money winning honors among the owners. His charges have earned $291,645, compared to $195,380 for William Woodward.

Football Briefs

By the Associated Press.
SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Stan Hemingway of Newburgh, N. Y., and Abe Issacs of nearby Middletown, are continuing an old high school rivalry on the Syracuse squad. Hemingway, until recently a sub guard, was moved up to a first string tackle berth yesterday, taking Issacs' place. He may stay there for Saturday's clash with Penn State.

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama Poly's plucky game evidently doesn't concern left and Hamp Williams to any great degree. Hamp scored his first touchdown for Auburn last Saturday by picking up the ball after Frank Gantt had blocked a Duke punt and racing 18 yards across the goal.

HANOVER, N. H.—If Dartmouth needs one point or three to beat Yale Saturday, the man to get them will be right in there. John Handrahan, subbing for the injured Joe Kiernan at fullback, gave a great exhibition of placement kicking yesterday, booting them from clear out in mid field. Another Handrahan, Joe, kick most of the points after touchdowns.

DETROIT—More than one Detroit University lineman seems to be entitled to use the line about being little but a little tough, too. The Titans have only one 200 pounder in their forward wall but all this season the team has made two consecutive first downs against them by rushing and only Villanova has scored on running plays.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Al Hessberg, Yale sophomore speedster, has copped a lot of glory by his touchdown runs this season but when the Ellis face Dartmouth, Dave Colwell may hold his place in the backfield. Colwell not only outweighs Hessberg by 20 pounds but can relieve Kim Whitehead of some of the punting chores.

... "Kid Boots" Schuble, the King who "rode" the Detroit Tigers into two championships, won't be with the Detroit

... opposing players, and the only member of the Detroit club who dared to "kid" Manager Mickey Cochrane.

On one occasion in St. Louis, Jack Burns, Browns' first baseman, made a great stop of a drive by Cochrane, when the Tiger manager was in a batting slump and hitting but .250.

"Hey, Jack," yelled Schuble, "you 250 hitters certainly don't help yourselves, do you?"

Schuble's caustic remarks were credited by Manager Cochrane with keeping the Tigers "on their toes," and Schuble was one of the most willing workers on the club. Pitching in batting practice regularly, he was given plenty of chance to play his first three years with Detroit, but muffed his opportunity by fielding misplays or wild throws.

"I quit reading the papers," he remarked once. "Every time I pick up a sheet it says 'Schuble boots another.'"

STAR TWO-YEAR-OLDS NOT ENTERED IN PIMLICO FUTURITY

JEAN BART AND HOLLYWOOD ARE LIKELY CHOICES FOR THE EVENT

PIMLICO, Md., Oct. 31.—The $25,000 Futurity, last of the waning Eastern season's rich stakes, will be removed after a lapse of two years at Pimlico Saturday, with about a dozen juveniles entered for the one-and-one-sixteenth-mile test. With virtually all the other big stakes winners, including Red Rain, Tintagel and Coldstream, either not eligible or in retirement, Hollywood and Jean Bart stack up as the probable choices. They finished second and third, respectively, back of Tintagel in the Belmont Futurity.

Wayne Wright, Rexburg (Idaho) veteran, and Joe Wagner of Lexington, Ky., apparently are determined to carry their battle for 1935 jockey honors right down to the end of the year. After yesterday's activities, Wright held a lead of two, 168 to 166. R. Neves is in third place with 165.

The entire active racing stable of C. V. Whitney will be campaigned in Florida this winter. Thomas J. Healey, veteran trainer of the horses carrying the famous light blue and brown silks, has applied for 40 stalls at Hialeah Park.

Although his luck in the last few weeks has not measured up to his early season successes, Alfred Guyon Vanderbilt has a strange hold on money winning honors among the owners. His charges have earned $281,645, compared to $185,560 for William Woodward.

Football Briefs

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Stan Hemingway of Newburgh, N. Y., and Abe Isaacs of nearby Middletown, are continuing an old high school rivalry on the Syracuse squad. Hemingway, until recently a sub guard, was moved up to a first string tackle berth yesterday, using Isaacs' place. He may stay there for Saturday's clash with Penn State.

AUBURN, Ala.—Alabama Poly's passing game evidently doesn't concern left end Hamp Williams to any great degree. Hamp scored his first touchdown for Auburn last Saturday by picking up the ball after Frank Gantt had blocked a Duke punt and racing 18 yards across the goal.

HANOVER, N. H.—If Dartmouth needs one point or three to beat Yale Saturday, the man to get them will be right in there. John Handrahan, subbing for the injured Joe Kiernan at fullback, gave a great exhibition of placement kicking yesterday, booting them from clear out in mid field. Another Handrahan, Joe, kick most of the points after touchdowns.

DETROIT—More than one Detroit University lineman seems to be entitled to use the line about being little but a little tough, too. The Titans have only one 200 pounder in their forward wall but all this season no team has made two consecutive first downs against them by rushing and only Villanova has scored on running plays.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Al Heasberg, Yale sophomore speedsters, has capped a lot of glory by his touchdown runs this season but when the Ellis face Dartmouth, Dave Cowell may hold his place in the backfield. Cowell not only outweights Heasberg by 20 pounds but can relieve Kim Whitehead of some of the punting chores.

Clark Now Athletic Director. Henry W. Clark, for several years assistant athletic director at Harvard, has been named athletic director at Lafayette College.

Zuppke, After 29 Years as Coach, Is Still Originating Plays That Trip Opponents

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 31.—Maybe you can't fool all the people all the time, but Robert Zuppke, the tricky little Dutchman at the University of Illinois, is still doing it on the football field.

For 29 years, 23 of them at Illinois, "Zup" has been fooling and beating bigger football teams with his astonishing magic and he's still pulling his tricks and bewildering the opposition coaches.

Zuppke's 1935 team, one that started the season by losing to an under-rated Ohio University squad by one touchdown, promises to be one of his greatest productions. Although it is one of the lightest teams in the history of big time football, scouts call it probably the thickest and fastest that ever handled their coach's intricate and baffling formations. California experts, who watched the old end over end pass from center enabled the charging enemy line to break up his intricate plays, "Zup" developed the spiral pass and worked up such speed that he won a national reputation with his preps.

As he kept on devising new tricks at Oak Park (Ill.) High and at Illinois, he was given credit for introducing the huddle, the screen pass and hidden end kick (no longer legal) and such famed and puzzling plays as the "flea flicker," "razzle dazle," "flying trapeze," "whoa back," "grapevine shift" and scores of others that he occasionally pulls from the moth balls to score upsets.

Belleville and Palmyra Teams Are Undefeated

Information that both the Palmyra (Mo.) Indians and the Belleville Legion Maroons will enter next Sunday's doubleheader for the benefit of the Municipal Football Association at Walsh Memorial Stadium as unbeaten teams, yesterday spurred on the training activities of the two St. Louis opponents of the visitors.

The Quadrangle Club, winners of the first half championship of the Mury last Sunday, have been matched against the Palmyra Indians, while the runner-up eleven, the White Line Laundry, will oppose the Belleville Maroons. The entire proceeds of the twin bill, less expenses, will be used as a hospital fund for the players injured in the Mury games.

Benny La Presta, former St. Louis University running star, and Tony Costa, fiery ex-Billiken guard, are sending the Quads through workouts at night at the Walsh Stadium, while Manager Les Herman and Line Coach Jack Andrews, former all-State tackle of Westminster College, are polishing the White Lines at the Forest Park field opposite Barnes Hospital.

Because the Palmyra line is supposed to be so strong that it has been unscathed upon this season, La Presta is working to perfect his aerial attack, with Don Root as the passer and Larry Romano, Courtland Schultz and Barney Brimmer as the main receivers. Schultz, who scored the touchdown that won the title for the Quads, also is being groomed as a passer in case Root is injured.

Four new linemen have signed with the champions, Fred Pribbie, Art Null, Bill Morgan and Dominic Caruso, who will act as replacements for a line that has held opponents to an average of only three first downs a game.

Because of friction with Catch La Presta, like Keith, one of the best running backs in the Mury, has resigned from the Quads and signed with the White Lines, with whom he will make his debut Sunday. Keith is expected to pair with Mike Ritekewicz at the halfback positions. Ritekewicz, switched from tackle to halfback, was one of the running stars of last Sunday's games.

BAUER, HUSKER STAR, OUT OF MISSOURI GAME

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—The Kansas Jayhawkers, as pleased as they were sure to find themselves leading the Big Six Conference, eyed the Oklahoma Sooners warily today as Coach Ad Lindey laid plans designed to keep his charges at the top of the heap.

Lindsey sent his first team through a dummy scrimmage against freshmen equipped with Oklahoma plays, and left to reserve and freshmen the heavy work of actual scrimmage. Clarence Douglass and Bill Decker, senior backs scrapping for a post in the starting lineup at Norman Saturday, tore off several nice runs. Both have displayed plenty of ball-lugging ability this week.

Decker, who made one of the most brilliant runs of the day against Kansas State last Saturday, only to have it called back because he stepped outside, has shown a world of speed and a shifty stride that makes him hard to handle.

Oklahoma, meanwhile, labored through a hard scrimmage as Coach Lawrence (Biff) Jones scrambled his lineups and shifted his backfield in an attempt to find the best running combination. Jones stressed his ground attack during the scrimmage, and the freshmen, running Kansas plays, had but mediocre success with forward passes and end runs.

At Columbia, Don Faurst watched with growing dissatisfaction a lengthy defensive practice against freshmen and third string men using Nebraska formations. The entire Missouri coaching staff concentrated on defense, but offensive combinations gained ground consistently for the underdogs.

"We're liable to get our ears knocked down good at that rate," Faurst mourned. Kansas State continued to add injury to injury, as Don Partner, a letter guard, turned up with a swollen knee that added him to the four other regulars on the totally inactive list.

George Veckenker held anti-aircraft practice at Iowa State, remembering the sandbag that hit other Marquette opponents came from above.

FOUR-ROUND FIGHTS TO FEATURE AMATEUR RING SHOW NEXT WEEK

Eric Koberg, South Broadway A. C. 118-pounder, has been signed by Matchmaker Benny Kessler as one of the principals in the sixth of 10 amateur fights at the Coliseum Tuesday night. Koberg recently scored a narrow margin victory over Ralph Puhse, Southern Illinois monarch, at the Coliseum and Kessler is anxious to sign the Illinois battler for a return match. Another possible opponent Kessler may sign for Koberg is Joe Camminati.

Two of the more important matches on the program have been increased from three to four rounds. One of these is the return bout between Tommy Starr, City Class A lightweight champion, and Tony Moretta, Class B titlist; the other is the battle in which Wallace steps into the featherweight class, taking on Willard Penrod, City Class A champion.

WARNER TO DEPEND ON NEW OFFENSE TO BEAT MICHIGAN STATE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Michigan State football scouts might as well tear up their notes of Pop Warner's undefeated and untied Temple University eleven. Warner, "The Old Fox," indicated he is ready to throw an entire new assortment of plays against the Westerners when they appear in the Temple stadium Saturday for an intercollegiate battle.

He drilled the Temple squad for hours yesterday on a series of new plays, designed to offset whatever State's scouts have been able to discover. Chet Messervy, star center, and Vince Renshaw, halfback luminary, will be able to play Saturday. They were injured in the West Virginia and Carnegie Tech games.

C. B. C. Team Beats Western.

MUNICIPAL BASKET LEAGUE WILL HOLD MEETING NEXT WEEK

While football is reaching its mid-season peak, the subject of basketball arises for early season discussion with the announcement last night by the City Recreation Department that the first organizational meeting of the Men's Municipal Basketball League will be held at the Sherman Park Community Center on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock.

It is planned to start the annual schedule late in November or early in December and application blanks for teams will be issued at the meeting, with a date set for their return.

Interest in basketball seems to have taken an early hold on managers as indicated by phone calls in the last month and the application of one manager, Dan Graville of the Dorners, as early as the first week of August. Also on file at this early date are the United Service Car Co. team of George Weiss and the Oscar E. Franz Co. Royal Hearts of J. C. Johnston.

Superintendent Frank D. Sullivan stated that the date for the annual organization of the Girls' Municipal Basketball League would be announced later, probably next week.

G.O.P. CAMPAIGNS ON NEW DEAL IN NEW YORK STATE

Administration "Stands at Bar of Public Opinion in Native State of Its Leader," Fletcher Says.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Republican speakers last night attacked the New Deal administration in a nation-wide significance to next Tuesday's State election.

Imputing to President Roosevelt a "cynical disregard" of the Constitution, former Solicitor-General James M. Beck described the election as "one of the most important electoral struggles in our history."

"It may—it probably will—determine the future form of our Government, and even the permanence of the Union," he said.

National Republican Chairman Henry P. Fletcher declared the results of the campaign "will have a far-reaching effect upon the elections of 1936."

"In this campaign the New Deal stands at the bar of public opinion in the native State of its leader," he said.

State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton said the voting would furnish "further evidence of waning New Deal strength."

Farm Woman Speaks.
Mrs. George B. Simmons, Marshall (Mo.) farm woman, inveighed against the AAA.

"The so-called benefit payments have been only bribes to get the farmer's liberty away from him," she said.

Beck, a former Congressman, speaking with Eaton and Mrs. Simmons at a White Plains rally, described the national administration as a "virtual dictatorship," and said:

"With its insensate attacks upon those who have a little property, and its palpable attempts to inflame class passion, this administration has been a satanic force of demagoguery."

"No administration in our history ever committed so many follies, and none in the history of the world has wasted money with such unreasoning prodigality."

"It has debased our dollars, dishonored our obligations, and even pulled down our flag in the Philippines and thus condemned them to chronic anarchy."

"It has been an administration of TRUSSES!

shamelessly broken promises, and its greatest strength has been in a subsidized ballyhoo."

Fletcher Broadcasts.
Fletcher, who spoke in New York over a State-wide radio hookup, said the New Deal "needs to carry this New York State election, for it is slipping."

Referring to Roosevelt's recent speech at Charleston, S. C., Fletcher said the President "insisted conditions existing today are the result of careful plans of his administration."

"If that be true," Fletcher continued, "he owes an accounting to the American farmer for the swift destruction of his export market and the slower but no less sure destruction of his domestic market."

Before the New Deal, America helped feed the world, he said, while now the world is helping feed America.

Roosevelt Heading for Ruin and Dictatorship, Speaker Says.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Representative John Taber, New York Republican, charged in a radio address last night that President Roosevelt's objective was "dictatorship."

Speaking under auspices of the National Republican Congressional Committee, he said that increased taxation would result from "rash New Deal expenditures."

"The policies of President Roosevelt are heading us for financial ruin and for a dictatorship in which I believe he desires and expects to be the dictator," he continued.

He predicted a sales tax of 2 per cent, a jump in the Federal gasoline tax from 1 cent to 10 or 12 cents, and a deficit "of upwards of five billion dollars for the balance of the fiscal year 1936."

STORE KEEPER ELOPES WITH MARRIED WOMAN
They Take With Them Three of His Children and Her Only One.

AMSTERDAM, Mo., Oct. 31.—This Bates County village of 40 families near the Missouri-Kansas line was excited today over the elopement Monday night of Willard de Haven, keeper of the general store, and Mrs. Ruth Sundquist, telephone operator.

Officers were looking for the pair who took with them De Haven's three youngest children, 1, 2 and 10 years old, and Mrs. Sundquist's 10-year-old only child. They left behind Mrs. Cora de Haven, who continues to keep the general store, with her two oldest children, 13 and 15; and Roy Sundquist, formerly a farmer and now partly employed laborer, husband of the missing woman.

The elopers have not been seen since De Haven piled groceries on the floorboards of his sedan, placed his children in the car and drove to a railroad crossing a half mile south of town where Mrs. Sundquist and her son joined them, officers said.

CLERGY OF 3 FAITHS TO AID CHARITY DRIVE

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish Ministers Pledge Co-operation at Meeting.

Co-operation of the Protestant, Jewish and Catholic clergy was pledged to the fund-raising campaign of United Charities, Inc., at a meeting yesterday at Hotel Chase, attended by about 200 clergymen.

It was decided at the meeting to set aside Sunday, Nov. 10, the day before the formal opening of the campaign, as a day on which the needs of 89 participating welfare agencies will be emphasized in pulpits in St. Louis and the county.

The meeting was the first to be held under the auspices of the Church Co-operation Committee. Speakers included Mgr. P. P. Crane, vicar general of the Catholic archdiocese of St. Louis; Rabbi Samuel Thurman of the United Hebrew Temple, and the Rev. Arnold H. Lowe, pastor of the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church and president of the Metropolitan Church Federation. Oliver F. Richards, campaign chairman, and Peter Kasius, director of United Charities, Inc., were other speakers at the meeting.

Kasius said that much of the success of the campaign in which $2,850,000 will be sought, will depend on the efforts of the clergy and their congregations.

"The situation today," he said, "is a challenge to neighborliness and generosity. At the same time it is a challenge to give sustenance to the suffering, to those in pain and in hunger. If we are to meet this challenge, a good part of the responsibility is in the hands of the clergy. If you, as interpreters of what needs to be done, can carry that message to the people of your faith, the campaign will succeed."

The fourth report meeting of workers in the larger subscriptions division, which has begun its solicitation in advance of the formal opening of the campaign, was to be held today at Hotel Statler.

BUSINESS SHOWS CONTINUED GAIN IN SEPTEMBER

Improvement That Began in Early Summer Keeping Up, Federal Reserve Bank Reports.

RETAIL TRADE

Orders for Holiday Goods
Earlier Than Usual—
Outlook for Late Crops Favorable.

There was a steady and continued improvement in commerce and industry in the Eighth Federal Reserve District during September and the first half of October, according to the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, issued today.

"While recessionary trends in certain lines of Eighth District commerce and industry developed during September, as contrasted with the preceding month," the report stated, "there were sufficient gains over August to carry farther forward the steady improvement in business as a whole which began in the early summer."

Purchasing by retailers, the report stated, continued largely on an immediate shipment basis, but there was more of a disposition than heretofore to cover distant requirements. In a number of lines, ordering of holiday goods was reported earlier than usual and on a considerably more extensive scale than during the preceding three or four years.

Crop Outlook Favorable. With mild weather continuing the greater part of the month, the outlook in the agricultural sections of the district was favorable for harvesting late crops. On Oct. 15 it was estimated that 90 per cent of the fall plowing had been completed, compared with the acreage usually plowed by that date and about 35 per cent of the wheat seeding had been done. The labor situation on the farms was reported as favorable.

It was pointed out that in the cities of the district, a more diversified and higher quality of merchandise was being bought in furniture, drugs, clothing, boots and shoes. A more favorable showing was made in wholesale distribution as compared with retail distribution, retail sales being affected adversely by the unusually warm weather during September and the first half of October.

Retail Trade. The volume of retail trade in September, as measured by the dollar value of department store sales in stores in principal cities of the district, was larger by 21.4 per cent than in August, but 6.7 per cent below the total for September, 1934. The cumulative total for the first nine months of this year was also slightly below that of the corresponding period last year.

Combined September sales of all wholesale and jobbing interests reporting to the bank were 1.5 per cent and 5.8 per cent greater, respectively, than those of a month and a year earlier; for the first nine months of the year the total was 0.1 per cent less than for the corresponding period in 1934.

Railroad freight traffic, according to officials of reporting lines, was adversely affected by the reduced movement of goods in connection with a strike of miners. However, the report stated since Oct. 1, there had been a noticeable pickup, with indications that the volume of traffic would exceed that of the same period in September and October last year. Increases were noted in all classifications except livestock, loadings of which continued to be less than for last year.

In Individual Industries. Conditions in individual industries during September were given as follows:

Automobiles. Sales of new passenger cars were 38 per cent smaller than in August and 14 per cent greater than in September, 1934. In the used car market, September sales declined 8 per cent from those of August, but were 32 per cent greater than in September of last year.

Boots and shoes. Increases were reported during September of 56 per cent over the August total and 7.7 per cent over that of September, 1934. Prices increased in step with an increase in the prices of raw materials.

Clothing. September sales were 4 per cent less than for September, 1934, and 3 per cent less than for August of this year. Movement of heavyweight clothing through retail channels was adversely affected by warm weather during the month.

Drugs and Chemicals. Sales showed increases, both over those of August of this year and of September, 1934.

Dry Goods. Due to unseasonably warm weather in September, ordering of seasonal merchandise in this classification was considerably less than the usual volume. Since the first week in October, however, there has been an improvement in all lines, reports covering the first half of October showing increases of from 5 to 10 per cent over the total in the corresponding period in 1934.

Electrical supplies. The usual seasonal increase over August was reported, the rate of increase being 39 per cent over sales for September, 1934.

Flour Output Increased. Flour production at 12 leading mills in the district totaled 189,273 barrels as compared with 174,991 barrels in August of this year and 300,784 barrels in September, 1934.

Furniture. The steady expansion of previous months was continued, September sales being approximately one-half larger than those of a year ago and the highest for a September since 1929.

Groceries. The usual upward seasonal trend in this line was reversed, September sales falling below those for the previous month, due principally to the heavy volume in August and the warm weather in September.

Hardware. Advance ordering for spring distribution was reported on a larger scale than at any similar period since 1930, particularly with regard to goods consumed in the rural sections of the district.

Iron and steel. September orders booked by warehouses were about 8 per cent greater than in August and about one-fourth greater than in September, 1934.

SUIT FOR $184,000 ON STOCK CHARGES MISREPRESENTATION

Action Against Alleged Associates of Old Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. Brokerage Firm. Suit for $184,825 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Clyde W. Wagner, assignee for 80 purchasers of preferred stock of the Sunset Stores, Inc., from the old Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. brokerage firm. The suit was directed against William C. Fordyce, Andrew H. Kauffman, Ralph B. Fairchild, G. Kimball Battle, Edwin H. Hilmer, Howard V. Stephens, W. C. Sipple Jr., Frank C. Rand, chairman of the board, and Andrew W. Johnson, treasurer, of the International Shoe Co., the Anco Investment Co. and the Reorganization Investment Co. The suit, alleging misrepresentation in the sales of the stock in 1929 and 1930, asks for judgments against the individual defendants and the companies, alleging each was associated with the Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. at the time the stock was sold.

The suit alleges Fordyce, Fairchild, Kauffman, Hilmer and Battle were the partners of the brokerage firm. The other defendants are stockholders in the Anco Investment Co., which was organized, the petition states, for the purpose of having its stockholders participate in the Anderson Co., without being assignees.

ITALIANS DRIVE ETHIOPIANS FROM ANOTHER FORT

By Capture of Amba Sion, Troops in North Carry Advance Within 30 Miles of Makale.

BATTLE REPORTED IN SOUTHERN SECTOR

3500 of Haile Selassie's Soldiers Reported Killed and Wounded on Ogden Front.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 31. — More than 3500 Ethiopians were killed and wounded in fierce fighting on the southern Ogden front, it was reported here today. The heaviest Ethiopian casualties were near Walwal, where Dedjazmach Abde Kimal, commanding the Ethiopian forces, was reported killed. The Italians were said to be solidly entrenched, supported by field artillery and tanks.

Invaders Said to Have Penetrated to Vicinity of Gorrabel. (Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.) ADIGRAT, Ethiopia, Oct. 31. — Italy's Southern army beat off Ethiopian defenders, unconfirmed press dispatches said today, and penetrated to the vicinity of its next objective of Gorrabel. The reports from Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, said the battle lasted for several days between Gorrabel and Scillave, a fortified Italian center. The dispatches did not estimate the number of dead or wounded.

Thousands of Italian troops and native soldiers were reported to have engaged in the combat, and to have swept aside successfully the Ethiopian warriors.

The reports were communicated to this Northern front, but could not be officially confirmed here immediately.

On Northern Front. Native troops on the Northern front, meanwhile, deployed tactically as far as Hauseri—on the way to the objective of Makale—and took possession of another fort, the famous natural fort of Amba Sion. The Ethiopian garrison retreated.

In a sharp action on the Northwest border, the Italians crossed the Petit River, dispersed and drove back a concentration of Ethiopians at Naighin.

The Fascist forces then recrossed the river and resumed the defensive on the side of the frontier between Ethiopia and Italy's colony at Eritrea.

Native troops of the left column of the Italian Army today occupied Mal Uec—two officers called Mal West—several kilometers beyond Edaga Hamus. Mal Uec contains several wells useful in the advance on Makale.

Another Ethiopian chieftain, Degiac Menegus Chenfie, ruler of a Northern region, arrived at Adwala to make his submission to Gen. Pietro Maravigna, commander of the right column of Italy's Northern army.

The taking of Amba Sion by native Askaris carried their advance within 30 miles of Makale. That fort had been the object of many battles between Ethiopian chieftains because it stands on a high plateau, has much water and good pasture and receives tribute from a few villages at its base.

How Emperor Got Fort. Recently, the fort has been in the possession of Emperor Haile Selassie himself as the result of what Ethiopian natives here say was a clever ruse.

The King had given the southern part of this section to Degiac Haile Selassie Gugsa of Makale and the northern part to Ras Seyoum of Adwala, knowing they were enemies, the natives said, and that they would fight over the territory.

When conflict arose between Gugsa, who recently went over to the Italian side, and Ras Seyoum, a leader of the Ethiopian defense, the natives said, Emperor Haile Selassie sent his own troops to take possession of Amba Sion in the name of the Addis Ababa Government.

Some years ago, when the Amba Sion district rebelled against Addis Ababa, the leader of the imperial forces was unable to capture it by force and resorted to other strategy. He sent slaves to the very gates of the fort to gather wood, with instructions to ignore any objections by the rebellious defenders.

The defenders rushed out to drive the slaves away, the imperial forces fell on them and succeeded in capturing the heights.

Communications Advance on Makale is Continuing.

ROME, Oct. 31. — Italian troops on the Eritrean front are continuing their advance on Makale, an official communiqué says.

The first army corps, the announcement says, occupies a region dotted with wells in the vicinity of Sinclair H-C gave as much as 27% more smooth power in recent road tests against 12 other well known regular gasolines.

WALLACE SETS NEW RATE OF 45 CENTS ON CORN LOANS

Available After Dec. 1 on Grain Grading Not Lower Than
No. 3 in Sealed Crib.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of a 45-cent corn loan for the 1935 crop settled the lending policy of the AAA corn-hog section for the present, and preparations were made for a gathering of farmers here Monday to work on the new corn-hog control contracts for 1935.

Producers from the principal corn-hog states will meet for a week's session to tell the AAA what they think the contracts should provide. The AAA already has made known the aim will be to increase hog production.

The corn loans will be made available after Dec. 1 on field corn husked and stored in the ear in sealed cribs. Loans will be made on corn grading only No. 3 or better, whereas in 1933 and 1934, a No. 4 grade was sufficient. Davis said that not more than $150,000,000 should be required to finance the loans this year.

The AAA released a tabulation, including returns from 22 states, showing $13,063 votes for and 128,347 votes against the corn-hog control program. The division between contract signers was 680,626 for a program and 64,789 against, while 132,347 non-signers voted for a program and 63,551 voted in opposition. The Missouri vote was 69,289 for, 9404 against; Illinois, 94,313 for, 11,911 against.

PETER GRIMM APPOINTED AID IN EMERGENCY COUNCIL

Assistant Secretary of Treasury to Co-ordinate Promotion of Home Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt appointed Peter Grimm last night as assistant director of the National Emergency Council and instructed him to co-ordinate the various Government efforts to promote home building.

Grimm is now Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. For several months, Grimm has gone about the country studying the administrative setup of the various Government agencies interested in housing and home finance. Some of the agencies studied by Grimm, are Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, the Federal Savings & Loan Associations, the Federal Home Loan Banks, the RFC Mortgage and the Resettlement Administration.

The appointment, a White House statement said, was a result of Grimm's reports which disclosed a "fast growing shortage of residential housing" due to the fact that families which doubled up during the depression are seeking more living space.

Mai Ucc on the road between Edaga Hamus and Makale. A fresh engagement is reported on the Somaliland front. Three Italian native soldiers were killed and two wounded. The Ethiopian casualties are placed at 11 dead.

The engagement took place when a detachment of Somaliland Durbais (native soldiers) at Makale attacked Ethiopian forces north-west of the Daura river. The communiqué says Gen. Emilio de Bono, Commander-in-Chief in East Africa, has liberated 16,000 Ethiopian slaves in the occupied territory.

Today, on the 29th day of hostilities, two more shipsloads of troops are leaving Naples for the war front.

Ethiopians Capture Italian in Army Tank, Looking for Water. (By the Associated Press.) ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 31.—The Ethiopian Government today announced the capture of an Italian officer and his tank, near Dolo, in Southern Ethiopia, as the only military news received from any front in the last 24 hours.

The captured officer was reported to have been found, suffering from thirst, traveling north in his tank in search of water. The Ethiopians said they gave him water but placed him in chains in a tent.

The Government said Italians were building an air base in the Wanakil desert, northwest of Mount Mussa Ali and 60 miles from the Eritrean border.

The Italians were also said to be constructing a road from Asmara to this proposed air base.

A Government communiqué says Danakil tribesmen attacked an Italian supply caravan Oct. 25 near Mussa Ali, killing 15 Italians and capturing 25 camels. It is stated that the Assamira tribe is salting all springs in the Mussa Ali region to deprive the Italians of water.

It is admitted that the Italian forces have occupied Sellave, a town in Southern Ethiopia, south of Gorrabel.

The Government declares it is probable that Mount Mussa Ali has not yet been taken by the Italian armies, but is still held by Assamira tribesmen. It adds that the Italian activities have been diverted from Mount Mussa Ali toward the northwest.

Fleet Will Not Be Reduced as Long as Situation Continues.

OBJECTS, ALSO, TO RADIO PROPAGANDA

Declares England Thinks There Are Still Too Many Fascist Soldiers Stationed in Libya.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Oct. 31.—Great Britain has made new representations to Premier Mussolini against the continuation of anti-British attacks in the Italian press, authoritative sources said today.

Similar representations were made in regard to alleged anti-British propaganda in Italian radio broadcasts. This action was taken yesterday when Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome, called on Mussolini, informal sources said. Drummond, according to these sources, adopted a firm attitude and advised Mussolini that Britain cannot relax its naval activities in the Mediterranean as long as the present situation remains unimproved.

Withdrawal of Troops. The Ambassador said, further, that the Italian withdrawal of one division of troops from Libya was satisfactory as far as it went, the spokesman continued, but the fact remains that the troops still there are greatly in excess of normal strength.

Mussolini was told the British feel their position still is being constantly misrepresented in Italy. "Until there is a general 'clearing up' of the whole situation as regards the singling out of British and British interests, there will be no relaxation of the existing fleet precautions, Drummond is reported to have told Mussolini.

Trade Warning Issued. The Government issued a warning against trade with Italy today. An official announcement, referring to Italian trade debts to Great Britain, said:

"Firms which contemplate export of further goods to Italy from this country should bear these facts in mind. "In these circumstances, his Majesty's Government cannot assume responsibility for endeavoring to secure payment for goods so shipped."

It was believed in some circles that the warning might cause almost complete cessation of trade between Britain and Italy, even before the economic sanctions, cutting off imports from Italy and exports of certain key products, go in force.

A statement by the Board of Trade estimated Italy's debt to Great Britain at more than £1,000,000 ($4,910,000). Actually, authorities estimated, more than £2,000,000 ($9,820,000) still awaited transfer to London.

Against this, there was little more than £1,000,000 to the credit here of Italian exporters, leaving a net deficit of about the same amount.

'Reply-to-Sanctions' Day Next Tuesday. When Italy Resolves. ROME, Oct. 31.—Next Tuesday, when Italians must submit to food restrictions and other economies to combat a boycott and embargo of key war products by League states, already has been assigned a place in the calendar of Fascist anniversaries.

Calling this Nov. 5 the day of "Reply to Sanctions," officials observed: "This date also marks the first day of peace after Italy signed her armistice with Austria Nov. 4, 1918, and thereby furnished the turning point in the great war."

Now, the officials said, the date will mark "the first day of discipline of food supplies with which Italy, the same Italy of 1918, of victory, showed its wishes to respond to attempts to impoverish her, imposed by her ally, Great Britain, and accepted by her ally, France."

Food prices dropped slightly on the November list, effective tomorrow. The reductions ran from 16 per cent on sausage to 2 per cent on spaghetti. Even meat prices were reduced 4 or 5 per cent.

Coffee soared 7 per cent to $1.13 a pound. Some merchants interpreted this as a method of discouraging consumption of imports.

Monument at Aduwa, Honoring Italians Who Fell in 1896

OFFICERS of the Italian army in Ethiopia gathered around the stone marker on Oct. 6 after the Italians had avenged the defeat of 39 years ago at the hands of the Ethiopians. On the horse is GEN. EMILIO DE BONO, high commander of the Italian forces. The inscription on the monument reads, "To those who fell at Aduwa, March 1, 1896. Today avenged by victory, Oct. 6, 1935. ## PROTEST BY GERMANY ON CHURCHILL ARTICLE

"Sharp" Representation to
on Hitler and Nazis.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The German Government ordered its Ambassador in London yesterday to make a "sharp protest" to the British Foreign Office about an article in the Strand Magazine in which Winston Churchill assailed Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and the Nazis. The article said what was left of European civilization must hang its head in shame and fear before this fact.

Churchill, in a speech in the British House of Commons several days ago, lashed out at Nazism and called Germany a greater menace to European peace through its rearmament than is the Italian-Ethiopian war. Churchill, a Conservative, is expected to be given an important Cabinet post if the present Government is re-elected Nov. 14.

The article, which aroused the ire of the German Government, said only time would tell whether Hitler would be a monster or a hero. Churchill wrote he was astounded that educated German people had endorsed Hitler's blood purges. The article said what was left of European civilization must hang its head in shame and fear before this fact.

4 Killed in Italian Plane Crash. By the Associated Press. ROME, Oct. 31.—Four Italian soldiers were killed and one was injured when a military hydroplane crashed during a training flight at Punta Sella, Oct. 28, it was announced yesterday.

Secretary Dorn in Hongkong. HONGKONG, Oct. 31.—George H. Dorn, Secretary of War of the United States, arrived early today from Canton. After a conference with V. M. Grayburn, manager of the Hongkong Shanghai Bank, he attended luncheon as the guest of the Fan Ling Golf Club.

Official Says Manufacturers Demand Almost Prohibitive Terms. LONDON, Oct. 31.—M. Zaphiro, an official of the Ethiopian Legation here, said today, "The arms and munition makers are convinced we do not stand a chance to win the war and are bound to hand over the kingdom to Italy, and so they refuse to extend credit except at almost prohibitive terms."

Protests From Committee. It was learned today this action had drawn sharp protests from the membership of the Liberty League committee, which includes some former presidents of the Bar Association and such national figures as John W. Davis, David A. Reed and George W. Wickham.

Some members of the Lawyers' Committee protested that its activities should not concern the Bar Association. One of those who took this view was James M. Beck, former Solicitor-General of the Justice Department.

R. E. Desvernine, chairman of the Lawyers' Committee, agreed to cooperate with the Bar Association inquiry, but told his associates on the committee that the move against it emanated from "sources close to the administration." He named David E. Lillenthal of the Tennessee Valley Authority as one of the authors of the move.

The Liberty League formed the committee to pass on the constitutionality of New Deal legislation. Continued on Page 4, Column 4.

LIBERTY LEAGUE LAWYERS PROTEST ON BAR INQUIRY

Committee Head Charges
Investigation of Activities
Originated "Close to Administration."

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Some of the American Bar Association's most prominent members were engaged today in an undercover controversy over its right to inquire into activities of the Lawyers' Committee of the American Liberty League.

The committee has been attacking the constitutionality of New Deal legislation and a member charged that the inquiry originated from "sources close to the administration."

First intimation of the controversy came yesterday when it became known that the Bar Association's Committee on Professional Ethics and Grievances had asked the Lawyers' Committee for a description of its activities and purposes.

It was learned today this action had drawn sharp protests from the membership of the Liberty League committee, which includes some former presidents of the Bar Association and such national figures as John W. Davis, David A. Reed and George W. Wickham.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Sylvan Gladders and the Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REPLYING to W. S. B.'s letter on golf in Forest Park: Perhaps he does not know that portion of the park west of the Zoo and south of the Art Museum, which is in its natural state. There are paths through it and an automobile road running back of the Art Museum to the southwest entrance of the park.

But where are the sylvan gladders? I frequently take this road, which is usually deserted except for a few neeking parties on Sunday afternoon, and I rarely see anyone on the paths, even on Sundays.

W. S. B.'s suggestion is: "Let us all join in one supreme effort to restore Forest Park to the people." Where do you find the people in the park? There are a thousand at the Zoo and the athletic games to every sylvan gladder. There are 800 golfers of moderate circumstances on Saturday and Sunday enjoying the hills and valleys in that portion of the park which has been rescued from cockleburra, beggar lice and poison ivy and is being kept up by the fees charged for the privilege of playing over the smooth rolling fairways, offset by an occasional vivid green carpet of bent grass. As to Lindell pavilion, that deserted, ramshackle building is now paying its way by means of a city-owned refreshment stand, the rent from a golf shop and from numerous lockers at reasonable charges.

The park is large. Let's enjoy it according to our individual tastes. There is room for the sylvan gladders, for the golfers, for games, for the Zoo, etc., but the main thing is to get out and use it.

Would Have Italy Vote on Mussolini.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OF all the idiotic ideas, that of holding a "referendum" on the hog-corn proposition and limiting it to the farmers, takes the prize. One really does not shoot Santa.

Now, let's have one limited to consumers and see if the "forgotten men" will overwhelmingly vote to pay the farmer for not raising little pigs so we can have the pleasure of paying more for what we eat. Also, let's hold a referendum limited to Chicago fans as to whether Lou Warneke or Schoolboy Rowe is the better, or a vote in Italy on Mussolini.

Murrah for "referendums."

HENRY GANT.

Substitutes and Depression.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been engaged in the box manufacturing business for more than 40 years, and believe I am able to show why we have more than 10,000,000 people unemployed. My belief is that they will never be employed.

When I had a wooden box factory in St. Louis about 25 years ago, there were 22 such factories here. Now there are two, which, I believe, are hardly able to make ends meet and could not if it were not for the brewing interests. Formerly we could see miles of lumber piled on landings on the river banks, and by many boats. The box manufacturers in past years cut 55 per cent of all the lumber manufactured in the United States. We then had approximately 1500 box manufacturing plants whereas we now have only about 200.

What has caused the great decrease in the consumption of lumber? Substitutes: corrugated and fiber containers. According to my estimate, it requires five men to manufacture the same quantity of wood boxes that one man can manufacture in the substitute line. The planing, sand and door factories have also been largely affected by substitutes. Consider the substitutes in other lines of manufacture. I realize that we are not able to go back to the old methods, and accordingly believe that the 10,000,000 men will remain out of employment and the depression will continue regardless of whether we have a Democratic or a Republican President.

ALWIN GUNDLACH.

Kilocyte Gleanings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE new Peshawar station on the northwest frontier in India is said to be operated by man power. A belt-driven automobile generator which is attached to the rear wheels of specially mounted bicycles and pedaled two hours daily by natives is used to charge the batteries. Whether the energy so created is converted into advertising cosmetics or bed sheets and readings from the Koran, dependent on the natives.

Aircraft radio operators, flying over the Valley of Kings in Egypt, report that signals disappear in this sector, although they are strong before and after crossing. There are people who think, and would have us believe, that this is due to some occult influence of the dead Pharaohs. The more sensible explanation is the theory that disturbances are caused by particles of flying sand which have become electrified by rubbing against each other.

Another report says there is no fire department or telephone in a small village near Rome. When a fire broke out there recently, an amateur radio operator sent out a call for help which was picked up by a listener-inn in Copenhagen, who promptly telephoned the authorities in Rome. Sounds like the land of Haile Selassie, but report is from Mussoliniland.

REMOVE DR. SHEAHAN!

Unless the St. Louis County removes Dr. Edwin L. Sheahan from his post as head of the County Hospital either today or tomorrow, he will continue in that position until January, 1937. That would be tragic for St. Louis County.

The St. Louis County grand jury reported last June, after an investigation, that the hospital under Dr. Sheahan had been "mismanaged to such an appalling extent that it constitutes a menace to the public safety and health of St. Louis County." It said that the hospital had been converted into "a gruesome political plaything, where the care of the sick is a minor matter and the jobs provided by the institution are the major interest of those in charge." It recommended the appointment of a "competent superintendent schooled in that particular line of work."

The County Court, accepting the grand jury's recommendation, removed Dr. Sheahan. The motion to remove was made by Judge Tighe and seconded by Judge Wohlschlaeger. Judge Thatcher voted no.

The next step was to find a suitable successor. The County Court asked a committee of representative county citizens to suggest a name. This committee, in turn, unwilling to assume the responsibility of selecting a technical man, asked three of the foremost men in the medical field to do so. These men were Dr. Alphonse M. Schwitala, dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine; Dr. Evaris Graham, professor of surgery at the Washington University School of Medicine; and Dr. Llewellyn Sale, chief of the medical staff at the Jewish Hospital.

These men spent about three weeks in a painstaking survey of all available physicians qualified for the job. Their choice finally settled upon Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, former Hospital Commissioner of the City of St. Louis.

It was the clear understanding that the man accepted by the committee of three would be accepted by the County Court. Judge Tighe and Judge Thatcher put themselves on record that they would accept him. Judge Wohlschlaeger declined to state his intentions.

When the question was formally taken up by the court, Judge Wohlschlaeger, who had voted to oust Dr. Sheahan in the first place, suddenly did an about-face and made a motion to reinstate him for a period ending January, 1937. He was joined by Judge Thatcher. Judge Tighe voted no.

As soon as Dr. Sheahan resumed his duties, he proceeded to shake up the hospital staff, further damaging the already lowered morale of the institution. This year there have been approximately 180 changes in the hospital personnel. Several physicians left the hospital as a protest against its use as a political plum tree.

In short, the county hospital situation is a major scandal; confidence in the institution has declined almost to the vanishing point; the great investment of $1,000,000 which the county spent for the hospital is placed in jeopardy.

If corrective action is not taken today or tomorrow, Judges Thatcher and Wohlschlaeger must bear the odium of the situation, and the county population will face the prospect of 14 more months without the proper hospital service for which they have paid their money.

THE NEW CARS.

Next year's motor cars are preening themselves in the advertisements. Here and there one darts along the road, spick, span and sparkling. On Saturday the New York automobile show will open. With that exhibit, 1936 will have been, so to speak, formally inaugurated. The genius of an industry that toils unceasingly under intensive competitive pressure will present its case to the court of last appeal—the consuming market.

Introduction of the new models in the fall is a departure from custom, induced by economic considerations. Heretofore, the new cars came into bloom with the flowers of spring. The result was that production reached peak when industry generally was swinging along at full stride. And the pre-Christmas period, when industrial employment is usually at its lowest, was motordom's slack season. The present experiment, it is hoped, will accelerate automobile manufacture when business as a whole most needs such a stimulant. Its effect in the spring remains to be seen, but the slump, if it comes, can be better borne, it is argued, in a time of activity than when things are slowing down.

The automobile people have had a good year. For the first nine months production of cars and trucks has exceeded 1934's entire output. Predictions are that 1935, with the new models now available, will be the best since the depression all but stalled the assembly lines. It is now only a step behind the comparable months of 1930, the actual figure, according to Editorial Research, being 4 per cent.

Really, the automobile has a right to blow its own horn.

A JOURNALISTIC RACKETEER.

Did the late Fred G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, accept $350,000 from the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey to silence his paper's criticism of a proposed natural gas franchise? Does this explain the Denver Post's abrupt change of policy from one of opposition to ardent support of the franchise? A report of the Federal Trade Commission presents evidence to show that this is what happened. The Denver Post makes a spirited denial.

In its statement, the Denver Post lays emphasis on the fact that Bonfils is no longer here to speak for himself. It says that "undoubtedly the honorable commission is familiar with the well-settled legal principle that where death silences the voice of one party to a transaction the law closes the mouth of the other." What is involved here, however, is no question of narrow legalism, but one of broad public importance. If the influence of the Denver Post was purchased, the fullest possible light should be thrown upon the transaction.

New York officials of the oil company, declining to comment upon the Federal Trade Commission report, say that the company will make a statement before the commission "if necessary." "If necessary" is it conceivable that so grave a charge would not demand a statement from the oil company?

It does not prove the case against Bonfils to cite a parallel one in his career, but it does lend credence to the commission's report. We refer to Bonfils' connection with the Teapot Dome scandal. Bonfils' paper was bitterly critical of the Teapot Dome lease to Harry Sinclair, but this criticism was mysteriously discontinued about the time that Sinclair paid a large sum to compromise a suit contesting certain leaseholds. Bonfils and his partner, Tam-men, had an interest in the suit and received part of the money.

Many other incidents in the long and notorious career of Bonfils could be mentioned to give weight to the franchise incident. Bonfils was a journalistic racketeer, a disgrace to the profession. Full exposure of his record is in the public interest.

WARFARE IN KENTUCKY.

Industrial warfare has broken out again in the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky. At the Williams mine, near Mannington, a band of union sympathizers was dispersed with machine-gun fire and tear gas, upwards of a dozen miners being injured, one of them seriously. As a result, a National Guard machine-gun unit has been called to the scene.

As in the past, the immediate cause is the opposition of the Kentucky mine operators to the unionization of the diggers in their pits. This, in turn, is only another side of the movement to free the miners from the intolerable working and living standards set for them in order to undersell the coal mines north of the Ohio River.

One of the worst aspects of the situation is the way in which local authority is in league with one of the parties to the controversy. When such is the case, the person of authority plainly is not a disinterested preserver of law and order, but a partisan of the side with which it is allied. In some ways, such a control of authority is worse than the old Pennsylvania coal and iron police, now outlawed by the Pennsylvania Legislature and Gov. Earle. The company police were at least company police, frankly in the employ of the operators.

But whether one side seeks to control the situation through company police, paid deputy sheriffs or subsidized local authorities, the result is always the same: men revolt at the injustice of the situation and violence follows. There is only one place for the law to stand in such disputes, and that is detached from both sides. Its function is to preserve order, a goal which can never be won permanently by its joining one camp against the other.

NORRIS OF NEBRASKA.

The news comes from Lincoln, Neb., that a committee has waited on Senator George W. Norris to urge him to run again for the Senate. His present term will expire in 1937. It is indicative of Senator Norris' attitude toward public affairs that the committee which is seeking to overcome his inclination toward retirement is a non-partisan body. We believe that the great majority of thinking American citizens, regardless of their politics or their opinion of specific items in the Nebraska's platform, would like to see Norris remain in the Senate.

To say that he is a useful member—though that would be a high tribute—is to understate the case. If only for the lame-duck amendment to the Constitution, the country owes him a debt of perpetual gratitude. It is likely, we believe, to become equally indebted to him for the State legislative experiment which is soon to begin in Nebraska.

There has been an increasing tendency to disparage the American Senate of these times; to say that the Blairs, the Bentons, the Clays, the Websters and the Calhouns have given place to an inferior breed. "There were giants," it is said, "in those days." We don't question that. But we venture that the history books of, say, 50 years from now will select a few men of comparable stature from the present era, and that one of these will be Norris of Nebraska.

FOR THE REST OF HIS NATURAL LIFE.

We had just been reading a piece about a St. Louis Police Judge accepting a traffic fine in chambers and another from Pennsylvania telling of a 75 per cent increase in the accidents caused by drunken drivers since the repeal of prohibition.

We had been reading these and similar items and relating them to the appalling list of dead and injured from motor car accidents in the United States, and wondering whether the conclusion was too obvious to be stated, when we chanced upon a newspaper clipping sent in by a reader. It is from the Kent (England) Messenger of Oct. 5 last, and reads as follows:

DISQUALIFIED FROM DRIVING FOR LIFE

Eric Prince, civil servant, Little Farthingloe Farm, Dover, was disqualified from driving for life at Dover Police Court on Wednesday.

Prince was accused of being in charge of a car whilst under the influence of drink and with dangerous driving. It was stated that a car driven by Prince smashed into a bicycle and carried it from Priory street to the Golden Lion public house.

Dr. J. R. W. Richardson, police surgeon, said that defendant was under the influence of drink. Mr. John Mowll, for defendant, pleaded guilty to the charge of dangerous driving.

If there should be a conviction on the first charge, he said, defendant would be automatically suspended from his work in the civil service and would lose his pension. He was a married man and would be ruined for life.

Prince gave an undertaking not to drive for the rest of his life.

The Bench imposed a fine of £20 on the second charge, but did not convict on the first.

The case of Mr. Prince of England can stand, without comment, as an editorial footnote on the subject of traffic-law violations in the United States.

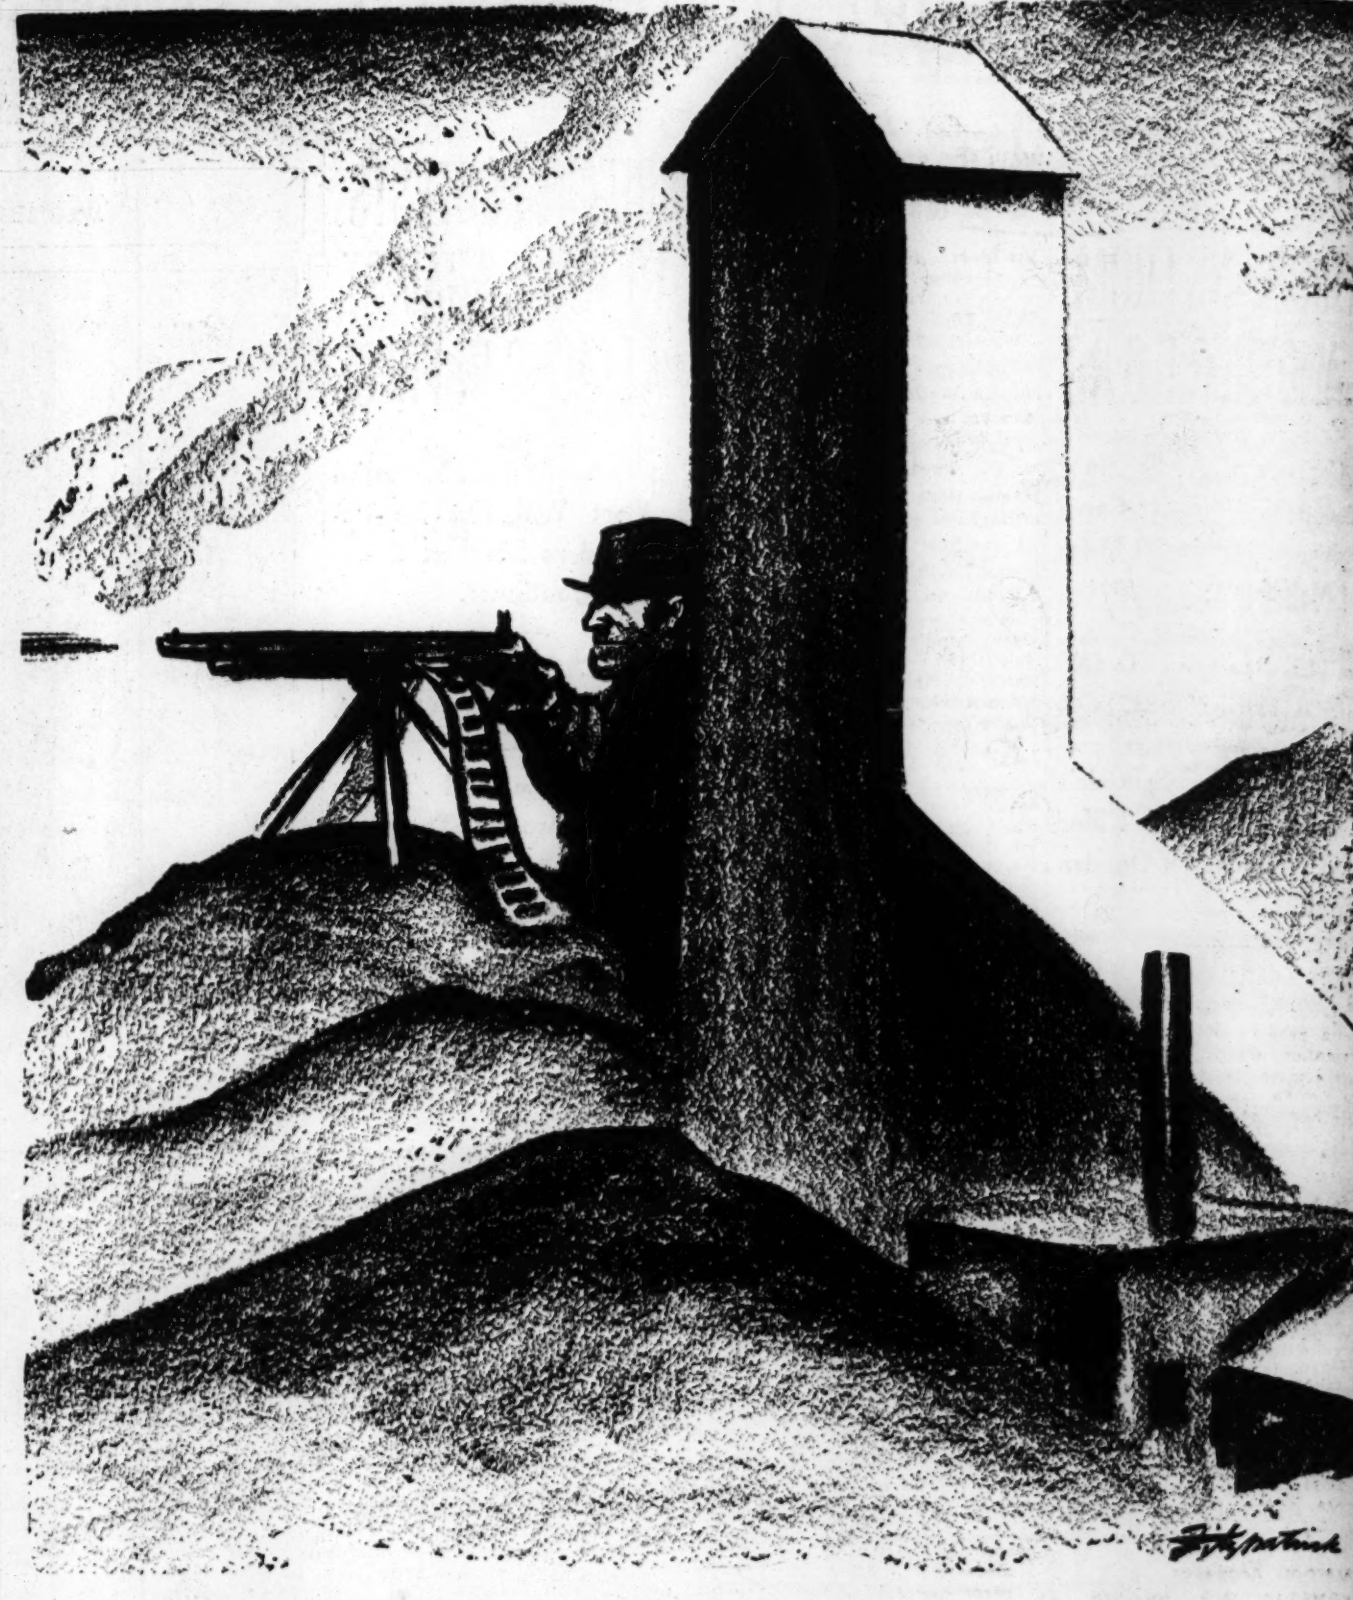

IS OPERA DYING?

When Lawrence Tibbett talks about grand opera, it is, we submit, an occasion. The jeweled dowager abruptly ends her monologue. The circle ceases its shuffling. In the balcony flirtation is suspended. And when, in golden accents, the speaker avers that opera "is dying on its feet," and Tito Schipa, in high dudgeon, offers to bet $10,000 that Tibbett is, or might as well be, a liar, it looks like an interesting evening, potentially.

Just what grand opera's respiration, pulse and blood pressure may be, we off-iders, obviously, cannot say. But when Tibbett, after measuring it for a shroud, asserts that grand opera can be, and ought to be, "darn good show," he touches a responsive chord. His prescription is simple. Just translate the librettos into English, so the people may understand what's being said, and we'll hesitate to turn sanctimonious thumbs down on Thais, and we'll be glad that Tosca stabbed the dumbbell, and some of us might admit that, were we in Tannhauser's place, we wouldn't leave Venus, either.

How did that postulate run—cogito ergo sum? Pale, lifeless words. But if a Latinist happens by to tell us "I think, therefore I am," we can then debate it.

As regards grand opera, it is Tibbett's notion that the public ought to know what it's all about. Why not?

THE KENTUCKY COAL INDUSTRY GETS BACK TO NORMAL.

War and the Status Quo

Road to war is constantly open, writer says, because change is inevitable and most peace efforts seek to prevent it; calls Kellogg Pact most futile plan because "it would perpetuate the world as it is," thinks satisfied nations should recognize that status quo cannot be permanent, and dissatisfied ones should have patience.

John Foster Dulles in the Atlantic Monthly.

THE true explanation of the imminence of war lies in the inevitability of change and the fact that peace efforts have been misdirected toward the prevention of change. Thereby forces which are in the long run irresistible are temporarily dammed up. When they finally break through, they do so with violence.

None would dispute the abstract proposition that, as the world has changed in the past, so it will continue to change in the future. We have not attained a state of fixation such that the world is immutably frozen in its present national lines. Inflexibility is, indeed, not only impracticable but undesirable.

As we must accept the inevitability of change, so also we must recognize that force, actual or potential, has historically proved to be the only mechanism which can be relied upon to effect international changes. Within the state, a solution has measurably been found. A superior force—government—has been set up which assures internal peace by repressing force on the one hand, and on the other hand establishing conditions under which change readily occurs.

When we turn, however, to the community of nations, we find no super-state qualified to repress war and to order a state of affairs such that international changes can occur without the pressure of force by one member upon another. In international law, each state is "sovereign." Its status is fixed by treaties which generally run in perpetuity. No changes can lawfully be made without the consent of all parties.

Such unanimous consent is rare, since nations, like individuals, are not prone to recognize their own decline, or the increased needs or needs of others, and voluntarily make statements accordingly. The most deep-rooted instinct is the instinct to relinquish only when compelled to do so. Thus in the field of international affairs, change and force are largely synonymous. History clearly shows that it is force, or the threat of force, which principally accounts for the evolution of the world to its present state.

If Articles X and XVI of the Covenant of the League were actually to be observed, existing frontiers would be perpetuated for all time save as one state freely ceded its territory to another. So static a situation is both impracticable and undesirable. We instinctively distrust the means by which it is sought to achieve such an end. No nation feels protected by the League Covenant or has altered its conduct in reliance thereon. The Pact of Paris (Kellogg-Briand Pact) is perhaps the most futile of all peace efforts. Force is thereby forever renounced as an instrument of national policy. No changes are permissible except such as may be achieved by "peaceful means." It is obvious that "peaceful means" as they now exist are wholly inadequate to effect changes which are inevitable and desirable. The pact would, thus, perpetuate the world as it is. Such a result is obviously unattainable in the early part of his reign, attempted the reduction of Ethiopia and Arabia Felix. They marched near a thousand miles to the south of the tropic; but the heat of the climate soon repelled the invaders and protected the unwelcome natives of those sequestered regions."

There must be a different type of leadership for peace. Today in each nation peace is held to be synonymous with the attainment of national ambitions. In Germany, Hitler repeatedly proclaims his peaceful intentions. But for him, peace implies a German empire. In Italy, peace implies a Roman Empire. In France, peace implies a maintenance of the status quo and the retention of war gains. So it is throughout the world. Everywhere peace is advocated, but with different interpretations conforming to national exigencies.

We cannot, of course, avoid a large measure of rigidity, particularly in relation to the establishment of international boundaries. We can, however, somewhat attenuate the undesirable consequences of territorial rigidity by encouraging economic fluidity. National boundaries lose much of their significance if there exist national policies which permit a diffusion of economic advantages.

Exports and imports, emigration and immigration, and the international flow of capital, even though these must necessarily be regulated, can bring about a large measure of international flux without shock to national boundaries.

Economic isolation, on the other hand, greatly exaggerates the importance of national boundaries and means that evolutionary forces can find satisfaction only through changes of boundaries, the form of change most difficult of peaceful accomplishment.

which they are the beneficiaries become in fact unduly repressive of others, this must be recognized and peaceful ways found to effect legitimate changes. "Revision of treaties" should not, as now, be denounced as a concept subversive of peace. Such revisions must be looked upon as both natural and inevitable, the only question being when and how. Nations must by their acts show appreciation of the fact that to continue repression serves to postpone, but not prevent, change, and to exaggerate its violence when it occurs.

On the other hand, those nations which are dissatisfied with their international status must recognize that there must be a large measure of stability. We cannot, of course, invite chaos or encourage the idea that any dissatisfied nation may take for the asking from those who have. It must be recognized that changes, if they are to come peacefully, will come slowly and only after justification therefor is abundantly apparent. Indeed, changes may often be delayed beyond the time when their desirability and inevitability may seem self-evident. Patience is indispensable to peace.

HISTORICAL FOOTNOTE.

FROM THE NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM.
FROM Gibbon's "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire": Augustus Caesar; reign, 31 B. C. to 14 A. D. "His generals, in the early part of his reign, attempted the reduction of Ethiopia and Arabia Felix. ## Quoddy—Vote-Generator

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE Stata Company of Boston declines to bid on equipment for the Passamaquoddy hydro-electric plant under Government construction on the ground that the project is economically unsound, is a waste of taxpayers' money and duplicates work already done efficiently by private industry.

As an economic venture, the Quoddy project has been condemned by virtually every responsible agent investigating its prospects. The Federal Power Commission condemned it. Mr. Jakes, as chief of FPA, condemned it; three times the FPA engineers turned it down on economic grounds as a bad investment. Numerous adverse reports were made by practical-minded engineers, who predicted that the project would be a superlative flop as a self-liquidating undertaking.

The politicians thought differently. Gov. Brann invited Jakes to Maine and explained how much good $38,000,000 would do the State—and the administration. The President solemnly assured the Governor that considerable funds were available for public works which might be diverted to the construction of such useful projects, and suggested that the Governor appoint his own commission.

This picked group could find no economic justification for Quoddy, but concluded that it would employ a large number of persons now on relief, was "socially desirable" and would be "a great benefit to the people of Maine," increasing the "annual recreational income of Washington County from $879,913 to $10,000,000 in 10 years."

Hence $10,000,000 has been appropriated for the $38,000,000 project which engineers claim will cost at least $50,000,000, has no market for its power when completed, and if it did would have to charge more than present private rates to meet costs of transmission and distribution. Or else, as Col. Luke, United States Army engineer, states, soak the taxpayers in all parts of the country to sell below costs of the project.

No more glaring example could be afforded of the Roosevelt administration's bald attempt to buy votes with public works funds than this monument to New Deal extravagance with the taxpayers' money.

THOUGHTS ON GUNPOWDER.

FROM THE OMAHA WORLD-HERALD.
T of gunpowder were the Chinese. Now a nation with such killing power in its hands could have become a supreme tyrant over all lands. If it had kept the secret close and employed it to the most destructive advantage, it could have gained territory in far places and imposed its civilization as ruthlessly upon the rest of mankind as did Rome in its glory. The Chinese didn't do it.

There are two ways of looking at the result. Some may gaze at China, a prostrate giant, apparently now at the mercy of the much smaller Empire of Japan, and shake their heads over a people who had such a mighty force within their grasp and failed to use it against other lands. What principally fascinated the Chinese about gunpowder was the noise. Instead of using the power in weapons to kill other people the Chinese fashioned it into firecrackers, to be used principally in celebrating New Year's and in paying delicate tribute to one's ancestors.

Sometimes, when one compares the use of gunpowder for killing and its use in ancestor worship, one is inclined to think that the Chinese were wiser and more decent than the rest.

NO matter what may be the outcome of the African war, one thing is certain. Haile Selassie, Anointed of God, Emperor of Ethiopia, King of Kings, Light of the World, Descendant of Solomon, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, will go down in history as one of the world's greatest leaders.

Properly to appreciate the salesmanship of the King of Kings it is necessary to get an accurate perspective of the land he rules.

Actually, Ethiopia is anything but an Empire. It is a collection of tribes—Mohammedan, Coptic Christian, Negro, Egyptian, Arab, Semitic—whose chief occupation is their flocks, till their fields, steal each other's wives, refuse to pay taxes and wage their own tribal warfare.

And during the 3000 years since the Queen of Sheba bore a son to King Solomon the Wise, their descendants have held only tenuous and sometimes broken reign over their nominal empire.

World Sympathy.

DESPITE that history, Haile Selassie has sold Ethiopia to the world as a homogeneous, patriotic people with a culture and civilization worthy of preservation. Furthermore, he has won the entire world's sympathy.

He has conducted his press conferences with skill. He has shown an uncanny instinct for invoking exactly the right article of the League covenant at exactly the right time. His notes to the League have rung with an eloquence rivaled by few others filed in the dusty vaults of Geneva.

Finally, his gesture of granting oil and mineral concessions of one-half his domain to American oil interests, just as it was about to be conquered by the enemy, had a quality of tragic showmanship which deserves to rank with the wooden horse that vanquished Troy.

Haile Selassie's salesmanship really dates back to the days when, as Prince Regent, he set out to pay his respects to the crowned heads of Europe.

Barefoot Emperor.

Italy-British Deal.

General Johnson

Peck, Not Wallace, Was

for Secretary of Agriculture

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

(Fourth of a series of 10 articles on the President's Cabinet.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.

AGRICULTURE and unemployment are the prime problems of the nation, and both are as threatening to it as it is hard to say which is worse.

The farm problem has been with us longer, is perhaps the more stubborn and surely requires the more adroit handling. It is a business problem involving the control of production, transportation, marketing and distribution.

The man of business who had given the most of study, effort and sacrifice to it in this country was George Peck.

He had a unique training, background and experience for such a task. In administration, he had been Commissioner of Flaxseed Production on the War Industries Board, in control of the greatest production program ever attempted—and had done well.

MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. No matter what may be the outcome of the African war, one thing is certain. Haile Selassie, Anointed of God, Emperor of Ethiopia, King of Kings, Light of the World, Descendant of Solomon, Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, will go down in history as one of the world's greatest salesmen.

Properly to appreciate the salesmanship of the King of Kings it is necessary to get an accurate perspective of the land he rules.

Actually, Ethiopia is anything but an Empire. It is a collection of tribes—Mohammedan, Coptic Christian, Negro, Egyptian, Arab, Semitic—whose chief occupation in times of normalcy is to pasture their flocks, till their fields, steal each other's wives, refuse to pay taxes and wage their own tribal warfare.

And during the 3000 years since the Queen of Sheba bore a son to King Solomon the Wise, the descendants have held only tenuous and sometimes broken reign over their nominal empire.

World Sympathy.

ESPIRITO history. Haile Selassie has sold Ethiopia to the world as a homogeneous, patriotic people with a culture and civilization worthy of preservation. Furthermore, he has won the entire world's sympathy.

He has conducted his press conferences with skill. He has shown an uncanny instinct for invoking exactly the right article of the League covenant at exactly the right time. His notes to the League have rung with an eloquence rivaled by few others filed in the dusty vaults of Geneva.

Finally, his gesture of granting oil and mineral concessions of one-half his domain to American oil interests, just as it was about to be conquered by the enemy, had a quality of tragic showmanship which deserves to rank with the wooden horse that vanquished Troy.

Haile Selassie's salesmanship really dates back to the days when, as Prince Regent, he set out to pay his respects to the crowned heads of Europe.

Barfoot Emperor.

CONSTANTINE BROWN, co-author of "The American Diplomatic Game," tells how he met the future Emperor at that time in Shepherd's Hotel in Cairo, accompanied by eight of his Rasas, who suffered excruciating pain from the shoes they were forced to wear in the dining room, while their chief stood upstairs—barfoot.

"When I met him, the faithful Rasas," explained Haile Selassie, "but their minds follow simple fundamentals. I am merely regent of my country now, and it is possible that during my absence one of them might attempt to replace me. I did not want anyone to lose his head as a result of such a brainstorm, so I brought my Rasas with me. It is safer for them and safer for me."

"The Rasas," he concluded, "if they see all the things I shall see on this trip, they will be less reluctant to adopt the reforms I have in store for Ethiopia when I return."

Italy-English Deal.

NOT long after this Haile Selassie made another attempt to sell Ethiopia to the world, when he discovered—in 1925—that Britain and Italy had made a secret deal to partition his domain. Selassie promptly wrote a note which remains a classic among the archives of Geneva.

"On our admission to the League," he said, "we were told that all nations were to be on an equal footing, and that their independence was to be universally respected, since the purpose of the League is to establish and maintain peace among men in accordance with the will of God."

"The people of Ethiopia are anxious to do right, but throughout their history they have seldom met with foreigners who did not desire to possess themselves of Ethiopian territory."

Woods U. S. A. REALIZING, however, the faults and failings of the League, Selassie turned his salesmanship toward the United States, sending special envoy Dr. Waldo Martin, who made a deal with the J. G. White Company to build a dam at Lake Tana.

Martin also persuaded the parsimonious Mr. Coolidge to send an American Minister to Addis Ababa despite the fact that Congress turned down an appropriation for a Legation. Later the State Department helped send economic and educational advisers to Haile Selassie.

But one of the best pieces of salesmanship was Haile Selassie's coronation. It really put him on the map.

The King of England sent his royal son, the Duke of Gloucester, plus a Marine Band clad in bright red and a coronation cake weighed a ton. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy sent the Prince of Udine plus 500 bottles of Chianti, while France sent Marshal Franchet d'Esperey together with an airplane, especially designed for the Emperor's personal use.

President Hoover sent a naturalized German-American as special ambassador and gold-framed photograph of himself.

The coronation attracted the attention of the world and sold the idea that Ethiopia was a united empire. It was one of the greatest pieces of showmanship the Emperor has ever pulled.

Ancient Bible.

LIKE all great salesmen, Haile Selassie has an eagle eye for details. Hearing that Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington had expected a prayer in his behalf, the Emperor sent him a gold-encased Bible done in the original Coptic script, depicting Christ and His disciples as Negroes.

Accompanying the Holy Book was a note which read:

"May peace be unto your Beatitude."

"Our heart was touched with joy and appreciation when His Excellency, the American Minister, told us of the prayer you had made for us on the day we were crowned with the Imperial Crown by the will of God."

"Just as the Lord Jesus Christ gave His Grace to all that believed in Him, both near and far, without distinction, likewise you, without distinction as to country or sovereign, made a prayer equally for a Christian king and country."

"We request you to forget us and our country of Ethiopia in your spiritual prayers."

Emperor Haile Selassie did not realize it at the time, but he was going to need the Bishop's prayers. (Copyright, 1935.)

Diva Arrives to Sing in Opera Tonight

"TURANDOT" TONIGHT OPENS OPERA SERIES

Jeritza in Title Role; New Convention Hall at Auditorium to Be Used.

Presentation of Puccini's "Turandot" by the St. Louis Grand Opera Co., with Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan Opera Co. soprano, in the title role, will mark the beginning of the first opera season at the new convention hall in Municipal Auditorium. The curtain will rise at 8:15 o'clock.

Tonight's performance is the first of four operas to be given in the hall, said to be the largest auditorium in which grand opera has ever been presented here or abroad.

Elda Vettori, St. Louis woman who is a member of the Metropolitan company, will have the part of Liu, a young Persian maiden. Giuseppe Bentonielli, Chicago Opera tenor, will play opposite Jeritza as the mysterious Prince. Others in the cast include Clem Laschowski, Norma Gordon, Joseph Cavatore, Ludovico Oliviero and Elfred Engelman. The conductor will be Genaro Papi of the Metropolitan Opera.

Jeritza arrived yesterday and was met at Lambert-St. Louis Field by a reception committee including Mrs. Harold E. Woodward, chairman of the Service League of the Church of St. Michael and St. George, which is sponsoring "Turandot," and Guy Goltzman, director of the St. Louis Grand Opera Co.

"Turandot" had its American premiere with Jeritza in the title role at the Metropolitan in 1929. The music for the lyric drama of three acts and five scenes was composed by Puccini to a libretto by Simoni and Adam, based on a fairy play of Carlo Gozzi. China of legendary days is the setting.

Turandot, Chinese princess, besieged by admirers, always propounds three riddles, failure to answer which means decapitation for the suitors. An unknown Prince solves the riddles and claims her hand. She wishes to withdraw her offer of marriage to the man who solves the riddles. The Prince proposes that if she can learn his name he will not hold her to her word and she may execute him.

Her spies learn nothing. They capture Liu, Persian maid in love with the Prince and who followed him to the city. For fear she might be forced into revealing the Prince's name by torture, she kills herself. The Prince gives his name to Turandot. As she prepares for his execution, she changes her mind.

Seats may be had at prices ranging from 50 cents to $3 with boxes at $5. They will be on sale at the Aeolian Company, until 5 p. m. and at the Municipal Auditorium box-office.

The Doctors Know Best
And doctors have known this for years

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

I Measure-out a cleansing dose of liquid laxative, regulating the amount to suit the age, condition and individual need.

II Tomorrow, take less; let the regular muscular action of the bowels do part of the work.

III Reduce the dose each time, until regularity has been completely restored.

MORE people could feel fine, be fit and regular, if they would only follow the rule of doctors and hospitals in relieving constipation.

Never take any laxative that is harsh in action. Or one, the dose of which can't be exactly measured. Doctors know the danger if this rule is violated. They give liquid laxatives, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.

Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. It's the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried. You'll never go back to fixed doses of strong cathartics that act with such violence!

Ask your doctor. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. Or get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if it isn't a joy and comfort in the way it overcomes any sluggishness or biliousness due to constipation, simply bring it back and get your money back.

Try Syrup Pepsin! Take regulated doses until Nature has restored regularity.

ARCHDUKE OTTO SEEKS SUPPORT OF VIENNA

Petition for Honorary Citizenship Filed as Step Toward Making Him King.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—Hapsburg legitimists in a counterstroke to the movement to make Vice-Chancellor Ernst von Starhemberg King of Austria sent a petition last night to the Vienna municipal government to name Archduke Otto of Hapsburg an honorary citizen. Legitimists believed that if the capital, with its nearly 2,000,000 population, gave such a distinction to the Archduke, he would have a great moral advantage over Von Starhemberg. The latter's supporters want to make him regent and eventually King.

Burgomaster Richard Schmitz told the legitimists their petition would receive serious consideration. If it is approved, they assert, Hapsburg supporters will hail the action as a decisive straw vote on restoration of the monarchy. Otto is the son of former Emperor Karl and Empress Zita. Drumming up honorary citizenship for Otto has been an important propaganda weapon of the legitimists. They have already induced 850 Austrian communities to name Otto a citizen, and they contend such a vote by municipal authorities has the force of a plebiscite. However, most of the 850 communities are tiny hamlets, with their total population little over 200,000. If the legitimists can put over similar action in Vienna it would be a great step forward for the Hapsburg cause, they believed. Meanwhile, the plan to make Starhemberg regent is unknown to a majority of Austrians. Newspapers were silent on the subject. A spokesman for the Heimwehr, the military unit which Starhemberg is the head, said the plan was to spread information of the movement through the Heimwehr.

Splinters From Truck and Paint Marks on Barn Lead to Arrests. Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., Oct. 31.—Splinters and red paint marks where a large truck had smashed against a barn door on Lee Greenlee's farm in Knox County led to the arrest at Shelbyville of John Bue, 22 years old, and Emmett Barnes, 25, who, according to State Highway Patrolman Victor Kelo, confessed the theft of seven steers from the Greenlee barn Monday night. The steers were hauled to Peoria, Ill., and sold for $520.

Two marks of a duo-wheel truck were found at the Greenlee barn. At a community sale at Shelbyville Wednesday the officers noticed a duo-wheel truck with splinters and red paint knocked off one side. Officers found the splinters picked up at the Greenlee barn corresponded with the marks on the truck and the arrests followed.

The committee gave an opinion holding the Wagner Labor Disputes Act unconstitutional, and had proposed studies of others.

Legal Service Without Fee. Recently Beck announced that members of the committee would serve without fee to protect the constitutional rights of citizens unable to employ counsel.

William L. Ransom, president of the Bar Association, disclosed that a lawyer of long standing as a member of the association, had asked for an opinion whether it was ethical for League lawyers to offer legal advice and assistance without charge.

"Is not such an advertisement encouraging litigation, which is not only reprehensible according to the ethics of the profession, but which violates the criminal provisions of the statutes in nearly every state in the Union?" the Bar Association member asked.

Committee's Request.
Two charges of unlawfully practicing law made against Samuel S. Mandel, a bill collector, have been dismissed by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank Mathews. Mathews said the cases were dismissed at the request of the St. Louis Bar Association's Committee on Unauthorized Practice of Law, which made the original complaint. He said he had received a letter from the committee stating that it was satisfied with Mandel's agreement to refrain from the practices complained of and adding that Mandel was to take an examination for a license to practice law at Jefferson City last Monday.

He was assigned to the Treasurer's office in the City Hall and to the inebriate ward of the City Dispensary when it was at Eleventh and Chestnut streets.

He is survived by a son, Albert W. Chase, with whom he lived at 4043 Wyoming street. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Kriegerhauser's Mortuary, 4228 South Kingshighway. The body will be cremated.

Ghosts' and Witches' Day.
China's Shakespeare.
$100,000,000 for Air-ports.
Starving Improves Mice.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1935)
THIS evening comes Halloween, or "all hallows eve." Modern children light bonfires on this day, not knowing that their ancestors have done that for centuries long before the beginning of the Christian era, to keep away ghosts and witches supposed to wander abroad on Halloween.

The ancient druids dreaded Halloween as a night on which "Sam-an," the Lord of Death, called wicked souls together. Now, with superstition and credulity diminishing, we have only candles in hollow pumpkins and mince pie, excellent substitutes for ghosts and witches.

Mr. Hsiung, called "China's Shakespeare," arrives with his pretty wife, six inches shorter than he, which makes him five feet tall. Her pleasing name is Dymia, meaning "black plum blossom." Her husband's latest play, "Lady Precious Stream," ran 400 nights in London and you may see it here.

Mr. Hsiung thinks American men will not understand "our Chinese philosophy of love." Maybe not, but they might try. Movies have greatly influenced China, says the Shakespeare of the East. "Some of our women even are becoming platinum blondes."

It is announced by Mr. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, that the Government will spend $100,000,000 building airports "in every state of the nation." Something must be done to put to work 3,500,000 "employables" by Dec. 1.

Airport building might include building parallel highways from ocean to ocean and from North to South, with some landings, properly lighted adjoining the highways at regular intervals. Seven hundred fifty airport projects have been approved, work will start on 250 at once.

In Italy, "menless Tuesdays and Wednesdays" take you back to our big war days when American mothers were told not to give sugar to their children because somebody in Armenia needed it.

Italian mothers may find comfort in interesting experiments by the distinguished Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute. Dr. Carrel experimenting scientifically with 40,000 mice, all inbred, brothers and sisters being mated, and practically all alike, found that a little starving increased the mouse intelligence. Smaller, more intelligent mice, were born when the mice were never allowed to have quite enough to eat. But what they did eat had to be the very best of food.

Mrs. Mina Miller Edison, 69 years old, widow of Thomas A. Edison, marries Edward E. Hughes, 73, retired steel manufacturer. Best wishes and congratulations to both.

If Edison could know about it, he would say: "I am glad that my widow is happy and will not spend the rest of her life with thoughts concentrated on a shadow."

Any man who would forbid his widow to marry again, if she could do so happily, may be classed with the primitive Hindu who insisted that his young widow be burned alive with his corpse when he died. You may thank England for stopping that.

Voltaire, in his "Zadig," presented a plan to stop the funeral burning. The young widow was to spend her evenings before the burning with the handmaiden youth in the village. She never turned up for the burning ceremony.

Four in New York won $147,000 each on lottery tickets when "Com-mander III" won the Cambridge-shire race. One winner was a Negro tailor in Harlem, another a grave digger in the Borough of Queens.

Statistics show that winners of such prizes usually move from humble abodes and abandon humble ways of living.

Later statistics of which you never hear, would show the majority of them moving back where they started, with millions of new foolish geese wasting money on tickets and hopes.

France and England will confer again and earnestly on the possibility of a peace agreement between Italy and Ethiopia. Peace is necessary, because Ethiopian chiefs show an inclination to gain Italian good will, good roads and other advantages by going over to the Italian side, voluntarily. It would be embarrassing if Mussolini and Haile Selassie should suddenly tell the League: "Stop worrying, we have reached an agreement."

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendenning, M. D.

MY OLD FRIEND, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, has just returned from a fishing party in the wilds of the mountainous part of the State.

"There is a great deal of loose talk about modern life being detrimental to health," he says, "that in our cities, with their houses and steam heat and nerve-racking pace, etc., we are far less healthy than the primitive children of nature."

"My observations on that of this is that it's the bunk. There are very few features of the most civilized life of modern life that don't tend to prolong life and conserve health. The first night out on this fishing trip nearly broke down all the stores of health that I have accumulated in civilized surroundings for several years. I stumbled around over rocks and gravel, nearly ruined my feet and sprained my ankle. One night I was so cold and melancholy that I acquired rheumatism, sprain and a cold."

"The kind of food that primitive man ate and the way he takes care of the skin of his body, or at least the way he doesn't take care of the skin of his body, conduces to skin infections, boils, furuncles, and discomfort generally."

"So far as the mental state is concerned, if anybody thinks it more nerve-racking to try to dodge motor cars than it is to sit in the dark around a camp fire and hear an animal walking around in the bushes about three yards away, he just should try the latter for a few hours. The animal turned out to be nothing more than a domestic hog, but before I found that out I imagined everything from a saber-toothed tiger, down."

"It is my opinion that the primitive child of nature living in the most so-called hygienic surroundings, shed all the time, was uncomfortable three-quarters of the time, never had any fun at all, and was subject to every mental disease known."

NOTES BY NOTABLES.

"The warrior eats the heart of his enemy to add to his own courage. As a system of treatment this came to be known as opotherapy. Wolf's liver was prescribed for diseases of that organ, hare's brain for nervousness and fox's lungs for respiratory disorders."

"It is historically interesting that modern medical interest in the internal secretions grew out of the ancient practice of opotherapy. Brown-Sequard was a French physiologist, who at one time was professor at Harvard University. Later he established himself in Paris, where he carried out a series of brilliant researches. Toward the end of his life he was overtaken by general debility and was led to treat himself by injections of sea glands. The experiments were reported before the Societe de Biologie de Paris on May 31, 1889—a date that is sometimes cited as the 'birthday of endocrinology.'—R. G. Hoskins, The Times of Life.

Underneath the shelf paper in the pantry should be sprinkled a good insect exterminator.

LOVELY LITTLE FOOL

By PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

Betsy Seeks Relief From Her Distraught Feelings in John's Company—Terry Startles Her.

THOSE words of the quarrel didn't matter any more, John Storm thought, but a boy never forgets the bitterness of a first love. He had driven all that night until the dawn that follows the dark had made him seem a young fool in his own eyes.

"Yes," John said. "I once wanted to get away from things. Not a dinner party, though!" And he laughed a little. "Shall we drive—say, to the Alps and bring home a mountain goat for a pet? Dad and I climbed Gross Venediger in the Tyrols last summer, and we saw a beauty. He was bilious and tired looking. All duked out in fancy horns next to his bland, powdery face. Like an Egyptian head-dress. He reminded me of a dissipated old woman trying to knock off 40 to 50 years!"

Betsy laughed and some of the years stopped dripping from her heart.

"But maybe we'd better be satisfied with a short drive out Conduit road," he suggested, grinning. "We'll go as far as 'The Rocks,' and then turn back. 'The Rocks,' as you don't know, belongs to the Thaddeus Simpsons. Newly rich. Made their money with an invention of a radiator cap that doesn't hiss like an old man with his teeth out. Great invention. All for it."

"The Rocks?" Betsy repeated questioningly. "What a horrid name for a home. It sounds cold and jagged and damp. I... don't like it. Do you?"

"Not for my home. But it's perfect for the Simpsons," he said, without any malice. "Their ambitious bark is destined for the rocks. They're snobs, Betsy. Looking down their noses, crooking little fingers—the vilest affectations. Only social climbers like the Simpsons, who aren't sure of themselves, who go feeling their way around in expensive velvet gloves to cover hands that show generations of honest toil, are ever snobs."

Betsy looked at John Storm—looked hard.

"I like you," she said frankly. "You came into my life at exactly the proper moment. I was needing someone just like you."

"I like you, too, Betsy," John said huskily. "I told you on the cruise last night. Or did I? I meant to."

The cruise last night. Now her brief reprieve of forgetfulness was shot through with the gloomy threads of remembrance. She was suddenly seeing clearly everything she wanted so desperately to forget. Last night... tonight. Would everyone, everything keep reminding her? First, Terry... then the white taffeta... and now—John. But she wouldn't remember. She'd do anything to forget. To get those thoughts out of her mind.

"John"—a small voice from somewhere below her heart. "Will you... will you kiss me?"

Another man ought to stop thought; it ought to kill memories. They were approaching a gnarled tree that leaned heavily, with the rheumatism of many years, upon the wall of an embassy. John stopped the car and drew up under the leafy branches. Tears later a gnarled tree would touch a memory and Betsy would feel sad; she would not remember just why. There were other light words on his lips, but he didn't say them. He took Betsy very gen-

Betsy Seymour, a young Government clerk, is madly in love with Marshall Van Devanter, who also professes love to her and wants her to marry him later, but who openly pays attention to Libby Stockton. He tells Betsy this is necessary, for her father can give him an excellent position and thus make it possible for her and Betsy to get married. At a racing party she has met Raoul de Prudente, a Latin-American diplomat, and John Storm, a young lawyer, both of whom become interested in her. The next day John appears at her home, where he had taken a room. That night as she starts to a dinner party at the home of Jennie Travers she finds Libby in the car with Marshall, who was to escort her. Raoul and John are also at the party. After the dinner, unable to withstand Marshall's attention to Libby, Betsy pleads illness and asks John to take her home. But instead of going home, they go for a long drive.

Oh, in his arms and kissed her. He, he kissed her indifferently enough at first, any young man kissing any pretty girl who had asked him to, but it didn't turn out to be like that at all. His arms dropped at last and she was free. He sat silently for a long moment looking at her. And something lay very still and lovely in John's heart.

"I'm falling in love with you, Betsy," his voice was as tender as his eyes. "And you're... you're going to love me, too."

Betsy saw that his fingers trembled as he found the ignition on the car and tramped remorselessly on the starter. The roadster groaned, plunged; he took a curve on two wheels, swung around a corner and left the gnarled tree growing small in the distance behind them.

The storm that had been threatening all evening broke like a pride to the very end of the world. Bright scissors of lightning slit the dark clouds and the sky thundered in agony. Rain cut down from the dismal sky in slanting crystal streaks. The wind howled in the trees like black cats hanging by their tails in the branches. Lightning made each house and street and object stand out clear and separate as if viewed through blue glasses.

Georgetown looked dark and old and drab in the storm, but oh, she loved it. Plain, honest, unpretentious little wet streets; and the light burning in the narrowest of them all was home. Father and Mother reading, probably; Terry studying; Tommy Collins' wailing poetry. Sing wanted to see Father now, to touch his hand. He would set her right, put things in their proper places. And what he said would be true. She'd tell him about Libby and being secretly engaged to Marshall; she'd tell him that she had asked John to kiss her. Mother would be shocked, but Father would understand. Father always understood.

"If father says I've been a jealous little fool, I'll go to Marshall on my knees," she told herself as the car drew up in front of the small house.

John shut off the motor and took Betsy's hand. "I don't know why you asked me to kiss you, Betsy. But whatever the reason, I'm—I'm glad."

Betsy couldn't look at him after that. Color burned in two bright coins on her cheek. She felt ashamed and cheap. She climbed blindly out of the car and ran up the three front steps, winking the rain from her lashes, not glancing back. If John knew why she had done that foolish thing, he would hate her... and someone as fine and real as John Storm hating her was an intolerable thing.

Her father and mother weren't reading, after all. They were asleep. Betsy knew it when she turned the key in the lock and stepped into the chilly dark hall. Their door was closed at the head of the stairs and there was no spillover of light where it fitted so poorly on its hinges. Tommy Collins' transistor was a bright square eye in the gloom. His typewriter was clicking merrily, out of tune with her thoughts, and he was whistling. Tomorrow he would be mailing verses in slim, neat, white envelopes to New York, and in a few days they would be returned to him. "The editors sent someone to Philadelphia to meet this batch," Tommy would complain, dryly. "So they wouldn't keep me in suspense! Thoughtful of 'em, wasn't it?"

Betsy was surprised to see Terry's light still on. She stooped then and he had sat at the dinner table that evening, not reading, not eating, his eyes red-rimmed as if he might have been crying. Terry crying!

She opened his door softly and thrust her blonde head around it. "Hello, wretch! Studying your?" her voice broke off abruptly. "Terry! What on earth are you doing with that pistol! Wherever

Discovering The Truth Of One's Life

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

SOME time ago a woman wrote you that she is 'not satisfied,' a lovely letter reminds me. "What you said in reply was good so far as it went, but the fact goes much deeper than you imply."

"She ought to be glad she is not satisfied. It is a life-signal if she only knows it, telling her that life has laid its tuning fork in her heart to awaken her to its music."

"She is a voice speaking for millions of men and women. Her cry is a prayer that will be answered, if she learns how to be still and listen. But not if she runs by the signal and does not heed it."

"There is a saying trite in these days that life begins at 40. It is true, far truer than the glib words tell. It is one of the most critical times of life, and to mishandle it is a vital matter."

"It is not enough to tell people to find other interests, study, sport, hobbies, and the like. Such things are well enough in their way; but a radical adjustment is needed and it is a vital matter."

"Up to 40 we live the sense-life; it fills us, floods us, satisfies us. About that time it begins to go stale and flat. Unless we learn to live in the spirit, we are in for a dreary, dull time."

"At 40 the world tumbled in upon me, smashed me, flattened me. Death robbed me of the joy of life. Sickness laid me low, taking away the things that had meant most to me in the years before."

"Yet it was a mercy, too, because I came alive to the truth of what I am and what life is. No one can really live until he has found why he is living, and that is what I found out at that time."

"Some old words in the Bible brought new life to me. Little by little I began to see things as they are, beneath the froth of misunderstanding. It dawned on me that we are spiritual beings!"

"Jesus told us that long ago, and we have to discover it for ourselves, and live it. Until we do, we are bound to be restless, unhappy and vexed. It is hard to tell others about it, but it is true."

Stewed Mushrooms

Peel and cut one pound of fresh mushrooms into quarters. Place in a saucepan with two large lumps of butter that have been rolled in flour. Cover and heat slowly and let cook in their own juices and the butter for 12 minutes, then add two tablespoons heavy cream, salt and pepper. Remove from fire and add one beaten egg yolk and one tablespoon sherry. Serve on slices of toast.

The Polite Thing to Do

We are so often sent good things to eat in jars, dishes or glasses, which we entirely forget after the good things are eaten and in consequence they are never returned. It is a good idea to write the sender's name on a slip of paper and tuck it inside of container. Then it will stand some chance of being returned—and soon.

Which Do You Do?

Do you stop in the vestibule of the friend's home and remove your soiled and wet galoshes, or do you just tramp the wet and dirt right in on the clean rug and remove them at your convenience?

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

(For Friday, Nov. 1, 1935.)

FIRST of two days for improving with neighbors and relatives; also for study and minor travel. Today: Don't trust too snap-judgment. Hasty decisions will probably have to be made over later—so take your time. Hold emotions.

Mind and Hand.

We have been looking at the differences between two people lately in regard to their strengths and responsibilities. And it is also well to realize that the same differences exist between different parts of the same person. Your mind is more responsible than your physical body. We cannot blame the hand that commits the crime; the sinner is the mind behind the hand.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead can be a profitable and important one, if you make changes wisely and slowly. From Dec. 6 go after all you deserve financially; be practical, seek elder. Danger: Dec. 12-Jan. 17; April 1-May 21; Aug. 17-Oct. 5.

Saturday.

Improve finances in minor ways; hold judgment on important matters.

On Wash Day

Try cooking a cup of rice in one gallon of water for 30 minutes. Drain and use this water for starch. You not only have a splendid wash-day starch, but a substantial lunch-oven vegetable.

YOU BAD LITTLE GIRL! EAT YOUR TOASTMASTER TOAST AND GROW BIG AND STRONG! MY MAMA DOESN'T HAVE TO COAX ME TO EAT TOASTMASTER BREAD. I LIKE IT BETTER! ANY!

Like some mothers, do you have to "sell" your youngsters on the idea of eating bread? Then take this tip—the next time you buy bread say: "TOASTMASTER!"

Kiddies love TOASTMASTER'S RICH "different" FLAVOR. They clamor for more and more of it—no parental coaxing is needed to get them to eat plenty of this great, ENERGY providing food.

And... thanks to our new baking process... TOASTMASTER'S acid-free taste and flavor gives it an entirely new appetite appeal. It's much easier to digest, too!

Hallowe'en at Puddle Muddle Received Joyously

By Mary Graham Bonner

IN a funny, squeaky tone of voice Willy Nilly told fortunes as he sat, dressed like an old witch, leaning over a pile covered with red paper which was lit by a flash light.

"Crow," said Willy Nilly. "If you will get a nut and drop it in the pail of water in which we have the apples and will watch it you'll see if you're going to get into any mischief or not. If the nut hits or touches one of the apples it means you're going to get into some mischief at some time."

Christopher's nut floated against one apple and a second apple and a third apple.

"Oh dear crow me," he cawed, "this is bad."

"They're so many apples in that pail I don't think the nut could have missed them," laughed Willy Nilly, as he continued telling fortunes.

Then they all bobbed for the apples, tried to catch the one that were hanging down, and then they lit the candles in the jack-o'-lanterns and each one made a wish after running three times around the lanterns. Then it was time to blow out the candles, and Willy Nilly said: "You wishes will come true if the candles are out after blowing three times."

Every one's wish came true, and each one had wished the same wish. It was that nothing would prevent them from having another birthday party and Halloween celebration the next year.

RE GALLAGHER

Hallowe'en at Puddle Muddle
Received Joyously

By Mary Graham Bonner

IN a funny, squeaky tone of voice Willy Nilly told fortunes as he sat, dressed like an old witch, leaning over a pail covered with red paper which was lighted by a flash light.

"Crow," said Willy Nilly, "if you will get a nut and drop it in the pail of water in which we have the apples and will watch it you'll see if you're going to get into any mischief or not. If the nut hits or touches one of the apples it means you're going to get into some mischief at some time."

Christopher's nut floated against one apple and a second apple and a third apple.

"Oh dear crow me," he cawed, "this is bad."

"They're so many apples in that pail I don't think the nut could have missed them," laughed Willy Nilly, as he continued telling fortunes.

Then they all bobbed for the apples, tried to catch the ones that were hanging down; and then they lit the candles in the jack o' lanterns and each one made a wish after running three times around the lanterns. Then it was time to blow out the candles, and Willy Nilly said:

"You wishes will come true if the candles are out after blowing three times."

Every one's wish came true, and each one had wished the same wish. It was that nothing would prevent them from having another birthday party and Halloween celebration the next year.

It's All Very Important---Today

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

It looks like the world is getting ready for war. Even the Canadian quintuplets are eating meat now.

Doctor Daffoe took the five young ladies out to lunch and fed them liver. It seems only yesterday they were just babies.

Everything changes rapidly these days. Former European allies are split like a talking crow's tongue.

The strangest change of all is in American politics. Mr. Hoover's two-chickens-in-every-pot had to move over to make room for another bird.

The third bird in the pot is the Blue Eagle.
